BILLIONS FOR WAR: NOT A VOTE AGAINST IT

BRITISH SMASH ENEMY'S LINES

WAR POLICIES AS OUTLINED BY AMERICA

Political Alliances Taboo, but Will Fight to Crush German Autocracy.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—I am now at liberty to state on high authority the position which the administration will assume in discussing with the British and French commissions the major policies governing the participation by the United States in the war with Germany.

OUTLINE OF U. S. POLICIES.

These policies, as they will be outlined by the administation, follow:

The United States will not enter into a political alliance, either temporary or permanent, with the entente allies, thus observing Washington's warning against "entangling alliances."

The United States will not sign the usual agreement of the entente allies not to make a separate peace with Germany.

The United States, however, will enter fully into a temporary military alliance for the purpose of prosecuting most effectively the war with Germany.

The entente allies will be assured that the United States will not make peace with Germany until the German autocracy, deemed the greatest existing danger to American national security, is overthrown and Prussian militarism, the chief obstacle to world peace founded on democratic ideals, is completely crushed.

PEACE AS ALLIES WANT IT.

In the opinion of administration officials the enunciation of these policies to the British and French commissions will constitute a sufficient guarantee that the United States will not withdraw from the war until a peace satisfactory to all the enemies of Germany is concluded.

Inasmuch as the allies have included in their war aims territorial aggrandizement, such as the retention of German colonies, the administration, in conformity with the president's declaration that the United States seeks no conquests, deems it unwise to enter into any hard and fast agreement to fight until the allies are satisfied with the peace terms obtainable.

The United States and the allies, however, are not far apart in their aims, and when America is willing to make peace on the destruction of the German autocracy, the allies will be in a position to exact the terms they demand.

ROOM FOR EMBARRASSMENT.

The administration realizes that in view of the diverse elements making up the American nation there is room for embarrassment in the character of the alliance with the entente eventually concluded. Yet this danger is inconsequential compared with the embarrassment to the government that would result from an announcement of the abandonment of submarine warfare by Germany.

Such a development would be likely to split the country, for from the west there would go up a great demand for withdrawal from the war. Yet such a withdrawal on the basis merely of the abandonment of submarine warfare would conflict with the president's definition of the national aim as the destruction of the German autocracy.

The administration would be opposed to such withdrawal, particularly as it would mean deserting allies with common aims and ideals, and the Latin-American nations which have declared their support of the United States largely from the motive of shding forever the German menace to the Monroe doctrine.

WATCH PEACE EFFORTS.

Although the administration is preparing for a war to last three or four years longer the peace maneuvering that is going forward points to the possibility of a kaleidoscopic realignment of the participating powers if not of the end of the conflict altogether.

The efforts of Germany to detach Russia through a separate peace are being watched with considerable anxiety, but this maneuver is offset by the moves of Austria and Bulgaria to sound out the allies on peace conditions as if they contemplated detaching themselves from Germany.

ARGENTINE "WAR MOBS" SET FIRE TO TEUTON LEGATION

Burn German Paper in Buenos Aires; Battle with Troops.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

BUENOS AIRES, April 14.—The German legation and German consulate were set on fire here tonight by mobs which surged through the streets demanding war with Germany.

Both fires were quickly extinguished, but the angry crowds stoned the chief of police when he endeavored to deliver a speech urging that they disperse. Police charged the crowds, injuring many.

There were repeated attempts to sack and burn German owned property. Following an attempt to burn the German owned newspaper Union, the mob started for other property. As the gendarmes arrived the crowd retreated before them, but still shouting and singing the "Marseillaise." Others shouted: "Kill the Germans." The gendarmes drew their swords and drove the mobs before them, using only the flat of their weapon.

The scenes were probably the wildest ever witnessed in Buenos Aires.

WOMAN TRAPS HUSBAND WITH GIRL IN HOTEL

Mrs. Charles B. Holliday, 4653 Hazel avenue, acted as her own detective yesterday. On the results of her operations, she proposes to bring suit for divorce against her husband, who is manager of a department of the Northern Jobbing company, 3636 South Loomis street.

Mrs. Holliday trailed her husband through a number of cabarets yesterday and caught him and Miss Loretta Jaffke, 1007 Oakley boulevard, in a room at the St. Regis apartments at 4041 Ellis avenue.

Mrs. Holliday was shopping yesterday. She saw her husband's auto in front of a store. She called her lawyer, in a loop office, and the two trailed her husband. He was accompanied by Miss Jaffke. They followed their car after it had stopped at several cafés until it drew up in front of the apartments.

There the wife waited until the lawyer called Detective Sergts. Powers and Bailey of the Hyde Park police station. The policemen went into the apartments and found Mr. Holliday and Miss Jaffke in a room together.

CITIES OF LENS AND ST. QUENTIN NEAR CAPTURE

BY ARTHUR DRAPER.

LONDON, April 14.—Sledgelike blows delivered by Field Marshal Haig today at the two ends of the huge front over which the British armies are operating seemed to seal the fall of both Lens and St. Quentin.

Swift forward thrusts carried Lievin, southwest of Lens, and Cité St. Pierre to the northwest, practically hemming the great French coal center against the supplementary Hindenburg line, while British troopers fought their way at the bayonet's point to within a few hundred yards of St. Quentin.

BATTLE NINETY MILES LONG.

These were not isolated actions. Along the whole front of forty-five miles as the crow flies or nearer ninety miles as the actual convolutions of the battle line lie there were what even the British official report calls "fierce encounters."

North of the Scarpe river to Lens the reduction of the Hindenburg line continued, and Gen. Haig's men reached points from two to three miles east of the Vimy ridge, from which the British artillery is now raining steel upon the retreating Germans.

South of the Scarpe Gen. Hindenburg threw in strong reserves in an effort to split the British wedge. Sanguinary fighting took place all day long. German attacks followed each other at brief intervals until nightfall, but in every case they were met by a British counter attack.

"Everywhere," says the British communique, "our troops maintained the positions previously captured and inflicted serious losses on the enemy."

FIGHT HAND TO HAND.

Further progress was made on a wide front north and south of the Bapaume-Cambrai road clear to St. Quentin. Just north of the burning city the battles were in open order and often hand to hand. Gricourt, within less than a mile of the Cambrai-St. Quentin highroad, and Fayet, just below it, were carried by the British with bayonet charges.

The Germans stood and met the shock, resisting stubbornly with grenades and clubbed rifles, but the British held the field, together with more than 400 prisoners and a host of German dead. Working southward in these attacks, the khaki clad soldiers made their way to within a few hundred yards of St. Quentin itself.

ARTILLERY POUNDS CITY.

With the French already occupying the southwest suburbs of the city, there is now nothing for the Germans to do but get out. That they are prepared to do so is indicated by the Berlin day report, which says:

"Since April 7, the heart of St. Quentin has been bombarded with increasing violence by the enemy's artillery of all calibers and irrespective of the objects struck. The palace of justice, the cathedral and the town hall already have been seriously damaged."

Likewise, says the Berlin statement, the French are to blame for the destruction of Reims, "having exposed historic buildings to the danger of damage by the effective fire of the Germans by placing batteries in the vicinity of the structures."

POUNDED BY OWN GUNS.

The greatest retreat of the Germans before the British has become so energized that heavy guns are falling into the hands of the victors with increasing frequency. Four more eight inch howitzers were officially reported captured today and unofficially it is stated that the number of German guns taken has reached 200 besides several hundred machine guns.

The Germans are unable to retire eastward with their heavy metal under the present intensity of fire. Not only has their loss in guns to date materially weakened their power of resistance, but a larger haul of artillery may be confidently looked for. Squads of Brit-

MARSHALL FIELD WILL ENLIST FOR WAR AS PRIVATE

Announces in New York Plan to Join the First Illinois Troop.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—It became known here today that Marshall Field of Chicago, the grandson of the founder of Marshall Field & Co., and himself the possessor of one of the greatest fortunes in America, is going to do his "bit" for the U. S. A.

Young Mr. Field has announced his intention of enlisting immediately as a private in the First Illinois cavalry, and intends to go to Chicago the first part of next week to join that organization.

The decision of Mr. Field is regarded as of special interest here, among those who have learned of it, as affording evidence of the tendencies of rich young men of the country.

Mr. Field is married. His wife is a New York girl, formerly Miss Evelyn Marshall.

MEXICO SENDING "NEUTRAL ARMY" TO THE BORDER?

El Paso, Tex., April 14.—[Special.]—A Mexican army of 100,000 men is to be sent to the American border to preserve neutrality, according to advices from Mexico City received by American government agents here tonight. The message said President Elect Carranza would appear before congress tomorrow to explain his aims and ask the necessary authority.

GIRL MAKES SELF A PRIZE OF WAR

Some time ago J. J. McNerney, in the plumbing business, asked Margaret Brandl, a TRIBUNE telephone operator, to marry him. She said "Yes." Last fall they set the date for some time in April. Then came the war and "war grooms and brides." But McNerney insisted that Margaret keep her promise, and she replied by saying "My husband must be a soldier." So McNerney made application for enlistment in the national guard and asked for a marriage license on the same day. Then Margaret married him and they have gone, for the time being, to live in a home he built for her at 7834 Constance avenue.

LOYALTY APPEAL FOR GERMAN LOAN

AMSTERDAM [via London] April 14—Desperate appeals are being made in the German newspapers to the public to subscribe to the sixth war loan which closes April 16. Some of the phrases used by the papers are:

"Give a straight answer to Wilson;" "America now an open instead of a secret enemy;" "Pretext for the war is the unrestricted submarine warfare;" "Wilson does not hesitate to endeavor to split the German people and German government;" "How little Wilson knows about the German nation, and German character;" "Pay up."

United States will send war cooperation committees to England, France, and Italy, as well as to Russia.

SUMMARY OF THE WAR

British troops also capture village of Gricourt and are within few hundred yards of fortified stronghold of St. Quentin.

THROW LIGHTED BOMB OFF BRIDGE

Portland, Ore., April 14.—One of two men detected by militiamen in the act of placing a bomb on an Oregon Short Line bridge early today was seen to plunge off into the water when the guards opened fire. The guards then rushed to the center of the bridge and threw the bomb, with fuse lighted and sputtering, into the river.

GERARD TELLS GERMAN VIEW OF LUSITANIA

America "Won't Dare Make a Move," the Authorities Held.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, spoke tonight at the Jefferson day banquet of the National Democratic club.

Mr. Gerard said that at the time the Lusitania was sunk an official of the German government in Berlin told him that the United States would not "dare to make any move," because there were 500,000 German reservists in America who would rise against this country.

"I told him something that you may have heard on another occasion about a lamp post," declared the former ambassador. "I told him something more practicable. I said to him: 'Can you point to one single man with an American passport who is serving in your army? There are thousands of men serving in the armies of the allies of American citizenship. But point out to me one with an American passport who is in your army. If you can show me one I will believe then that the German-Americans are with you.'

Roger Casement's Activities.

Mr. Gerard referred to Sir Roger Casement's activities in Germany.

"I would like to have the Irish-Prussians go with me to the camp at Limburg where the Germans collected 2,800 Irishmen and sent Sir Roger Casement to seduce them," said Mr. Gerard. "He did succeed in getting perhaps thirty to join the German army but 2,470 remained, as all Irishmen will, true to their oath and the flag they had sworn to serve.

"And I should like to ask this small band of Prussian-Irishmen whether they think they are going to come nearer to home rule for Ireland by supporting the autocracy of Prussia, or by getting behind President Woodrow Wilson, who is holding aloft the torch of liberty throughout the world."

The former ambassador warned Americans against the belief that "either starvation or revolution is going to end this war in our favor."

"The only thing," he declared, "that will liberalize Germany will be evolution. As long as they are ruled by a few, as long as the military spirit prevails, there can be no security and no peace in the world."

Mr. Gerard told of being directed by President Wilson to make a special effort while he was in Germany to secure the return of the Belgians who had been seized and carried away from their country into Germany. Cardinal Farley of New York, he said, also had complained bitterly of the treatment of the Belgians.

Deportation of Belgians.

"When I spoke of Cardinal Farley to the German authorities and related what he had told me," Mr. Gerard declared, "the only answer I received was: 'Why, that is because most of the Belgians are Catholics and the Catholics always stick together.'"

Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, brought a message from the president.

"I have learned with deep gratification of the intention of your organization to make its 1,000 members available in their respective capacities to support the administration in the conduct of the war," President Wilson wrote. "Certainly this is a time when America must use its forces and influence for the vindication of those ideals which give her a preeminent place among the nations of the world."

HOUSE PASSES HUGE CREDIT; AID TO ALLIES

Plan to Remit All Interest to France Gains Favor Among Members.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—The house of representatives today passed the $7,000,000,000 war revenue authorization bill. It now goes to the senate, where it is expected to be passed by Wednesday at the latest.

There was not a vote cast in opposition in the house. Minority Leader Mann demanded a yea and nay vote in order to give those who voted against a declaration of war a chance to go on record, now that war exists, in favor of prosecuting it to a victory. Three hundred and eighty-nine affirmative votes were cast. Meyer London, New York Socialist, voted "present."

Majority Leader Kitchin and Mr. Mann then announced that all of the absentees of all parties were in favor of the bill.

PROVISIONS OF BILL.

Under the terms of the bill bonds to the sum of $5,000,000,000 will be issued, and if found necessary the government is authorized to issue certificates of indebtedness to the sum of $2,000,000,000.

Both bonds and certificates are to bear 3½ per cent interest. The date of their maturity is left to the determination of the president and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

They also will decide the denomination of the bonds. It is probable many bonds of small denominations will be issued in order that all of the people of the country may share in the loan.

An amendment by Representative Fitzgerald of New York, which was adopted, reduced from one-fifth of 1 per cent to one-tenth of 1 per cent the proportion of the proceeds of the bonds which may be used for the purpose of flotation.

HUGE FUND TO ALLIES.

Three billion dollars of the bonds will be used to take up a like amount of bonds of the nations with which the United States now is joined in prosecuting the war against the Germanic allies.

The nations which are to benefit by this huge loan are not named specifically, but an amendment written into the bill by the administration representatives and passed provides that none of the money shall go to any nation which is neutral at this time and that authority to make loans shall cease at the close of the war.

This amendment was forced by Representative Lenroot, who asserted that some of the South American governments might enter the war in order to share in the credit.

MUST SELL AT PAR.

The bill forbids the sale of the United States bonds "at less than par" and permits the purchase of the foreign bonds "at par."

The other two billions of the bonds will be used to finance the part which the United States will take in the war. The two billion dollars in certificates also will be used for this purpose if it is found later that they are necessary.

The certificates really are I. O. U.'s issued by the federal government. They will be issued to banks and will be payable when the special taxes to be raised by the forthcoming revenue bill are available.

DOING AMERICA'S "BIT."

Out of the debate in the house today stood two big facts—America, regardless of politics, proposes to help the allies as much as possible and as soon as possible, for its own interest and theirs; France, godmother of the suffering American colonies during the revolution, can have almost anything she really needs that we can give her.

In this connection there is a strong and growing sentiment in congress for remitting all interest on any loan made to France. Some members even suggest that the amount sent to France be made a gift instead of a loan.

Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the house appropriations committee, and frequently referred to as "the watchdog of the treasury," announced that he would not care if the money handed over to the allies was never paid back.

"We loan this to conduct our own war," said Representative Fitzgerald. "I would loan $6,000,000,000 if we never got back a cent."

"We are not prepared to put men in the Said," said Minority Leader Mann. "There is only one way we can help—by loaning money to the allies."

A proposal by Representative Moore of Pennsylvania to limit the life of the bonds to fifty years was overwhelmingly defeated.

When Representative Rainey of Illinois, who was in charge of the bill on the floor, stated that any time limit would be objectionable, Representative Moore said:

"That gives ground for the claim that because Great Britain and France are fighting our battles we should bear the cost."

Representatives Copley, Madden, and Juul of Illinois all spoke in favor of the bill. It was Mr. Juul's first speech in the house.

Ready to Sacrifice All.

Mr. Madden, reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in congress, asserted that he was willing to give his entire fortune to the country if necessary.

"All that I am," he said, "is due to the fact that I found an opportunity in this country and all that I have is at my country's service.

"The question has been raised here that we may not get some of this money back. I do not care whether we ever get any of it back.

"We are in a war and the allies are fighting it. We can't put an army in the field for a year. It is our duty to posterity to get into it as soon as possible, in the best way we can, and meanwhile it is our duty to contribute in the best way we can to the prosecution of the war. That way is to finance it or part at least."

Rainey Denounces Delay.

Congressman Rainey objected to delay in passage of the bill.

"Today on the western front the greatest battle of war is being waged," he said. "The entire available force of the allied armies is being hurled at the Hindenburg line. Today thousands of our friends and allies are in the trenches and here before we can loan them a dollar to aid them we must discuss it while the very life of the states which are fighting our battle is at stake.

"France didn't act like that in the revolution. She loaned us millions and millions at the request of the great Franklin without much discussion, and yet while her young men are suffering and dying in the trenches we hesitate. The thing to do is to pass this bill and pass it quickly—to say to our friends we are going to help you and help you quickly."

Save Tax on Whisky.

To meet heavy withdrawals of distilled spirits from bonded warehouses in anticipation of a raise in the tax rate in the forthcoming war revenue bill, congress probably will be asked to make the effective date of the new tax rate earlier than the passage of the measure. Thus the government would obtain increased revenue on many million gallons of whisky which it would otherwise lose.

Approximately 210,000,000 gallons of whisky is stored at the present time in bonded warehouses, subject to withdrawal upon the distillers' order. Officials compare the situation with that in 1904 when the tax rate was raised from 90 cents to $1.10 a gallon. Forty million gallons were withdrawn then between the passage of the act and its effective date, the government losing $8,000,000 in revenue, which it would have obtained had the withdrawals been made at their normal rate.

Proposals as to the new rate of taxation indicate that the tax on whisky probably will be raised from $1.10 to $2 per gallon. This would net the government an addition of about $100,000,000 annually. The present rate on beer is $1.50 per barrel, and indications are that it will be raised to at least $2.

FIRST CAVALRY MAY BE ORDERED TO CALIFORNIA

Rumor Heard at Armory —Recruiting in Other Regiments.

"Somewhere in California" may be the destination of the First Illinois cavalry after that regiment is called into federal service, it was reported at the armory, 1330 North Clark street, last night.

"There is likelihood that the regiment will be called to the colors next week, and that a point in California will be its destination," a reporter was informed. "The regiment is in excellent shape, and the men are eager to be mustered in."

Medical examinations and swearing in of recruits went on up to a late hour last night at the First and Second infantry, cavalry, and artillery armories. At the armory of Battery B an officers' meeting was held.

Cavalry Nearly Full.

The Chicago units of the Illinois national guard ended the first week after the declaration of war with ranks nearer full than a week ago, but with few of them holding any great excess of enlisted men. The First cavalry is in about the best condition, its recruiting efforts for the week being so successful that the regiment was able to close its downtown stations and prepare for regimental muster tomorrow night. On that occasion it is expected there will be 1,300 officers and men at the armory.

Only Few Exceptions.

With this exception and further exceptions in the case of company units, such as B battery, First field artillery, the Chicago regiments are a considerable distance from the peace maximum to which Maj. Gen. Barry's order limits recruiting for the present. To make matters worse, there are sure to be decreases from the present roster because of the war department's order that men with dependent wives, children, and mothers must be released from service whether they wish it or not.

There will be a further, although less important, loss because of refusal by some of the men to take the national defense act oath binding themselves to federal service instead of state allegiance. There will be a still further loss through successful taking of examinations for the officers' reserve corps. This last loss is so difficult to estimate that none of the guardsmen attempt it.

How Regiments Stand.

Following is the present recruited strength of the six regiments which are for the most part exclusively Chicagoan in their makeup. There is given also the probable loss from two of the causes mentioned, with the result this would mean. Estimates are those of commanding officers:

	Present.	Probable loss through Dependency.	Fed.oath.	Re-cruit.
Infantry—	enrolled.
First	1,169	10	0	1,159
Second	1,091	150	40	901
Seventh	900	150	50	700
Eighth	1,210	150	20	1,040
First cavly.	1,300	...	..	1,300
First artil.	1,050	50	50	950

"I believe we are safe in saying we will lose none of ours," declared Col. Forman of the cavalry. "In this reckoning I have excluded all the uncertainties and I think we will keep 1,300 men until we encounter the more stringent physical examination by the federal authorities. There is no sense in fooling one's self, and I have tried to refrain from counting on men who would not go through to the end."

Col. Sanborn Explains.

The First makes a good showing because it has already been called out and its men have taken the federal service oath. Col. Sanborn put ten as the maximum to be lost because of the dependency order.

Col. Daniel Moriarty of the Seventh is far from discouraged by the prospect of losing so many of his command, for he thinks that once the regiment is called into service recruits will come rapidly. The Seventh lost a good many of its old noncommissioned officers a year ago at the federal physical examinations, and in the reorganization younger men, few of them with dependents, were installed. With that skeleton to build on, the colonel is optimistic about getting the regiment back into fighting trim with fair speed.

The Eighth Illinois, headed by the regimental band, will hold a recruiting parade this afternoon at 1:30. The regiment has not received a call yet, but 150 men have been enlisted in the last two days.

HOWARD H. GROSS, president of the Universal Military Training league, announced yesterday he had arranged with C. R. Perry, secretary of the International Association of Rotary clubs, to take up at a meeting of the board of directors in Philadelphia on Tuesday the matter of securing the official sanction of the association for the league's campaign to send high school students to farms for the purpose of increasing the production of food. At the same time Mr. Gross stated the president of one of the largest railroads entering Chicago would take up with twenty other railroad executives on Monday the question of providing free transportation to farms and utilizing railroad agents to place the boys on farms where they are needed.

A public concert will be given by the band of the First Illinois infantry at the armory, Sixteenth and Michigan avenue, this afternoon at 2:30. Following the concert, the regimental chaplain, Capt. Irving G. McCann, will conduct services which will be attended by all members of the regiment not on duty and their friends.

A special meeting of the University of Chicago Alumni club, members of the faculty, and former students, is to be held in the Hotel La Salle tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. for the purpose of considering the organization of a University of Chicago alumni training battalion; the arrangement for training classes for men unable to do active service but who wish to do their "bit" in some way; arranging for alumni drill classes, both at the university and down town.

Three French chefs, furnished by Manager Belfeld of the Hotel Sherman, will armory of the First Illinois infantry tomorrow. A regular field kitchen has been fitted up in the armory and a class of six will begin to learn the mysteries of the army ration.

Le Roy Spencer of the Chicago Allen company, automobile manufacturers 2836 South Michigan boulevard, is preparing a list of all experienced chauffeurs in the city who desire to enlist. J. M. Cram, president of the company, has offered his office as a recruiting station where chauffeurs of military age may enlist. Among those who have signed are George W. Peake, C. H. Barnikow, W. J. Spenser, E. C. Tester, A. T. Rattenbery, Le Roy Spencer, and H. Crume.

The Chicago Unit of the Preparedness League of American Dentists, with a membership of nearly 200, announces they will do the necessary dental work for any recruit of the army, navy, or national guard who has been rejected because of defective conditions and is unable to pay for the service.

TWO girls, alleged to have solicited orders for a magazine saying the proceeds would be given to the RedCross, were arrested yesterday. They said their names are Jewel Travers, 18, and Olivet Heinrich, 23.

After their arrest, it is said, they broke down and declared they wanted the money to pay for a training course in nursing so they could join the Red Cross and do their bit.

Both are pretty and have taking ways, so when they decided to become nurses and had not the necessary cash for a training course they started out to capitalize their charm.

They are held in the East Chicago avenue station pending investigation.

Books on military topics will soon be available at the Chicago public library and its branches. Dr. Max Henius, president of the board of directors, announced yesterday he has ordered between 100 and 200 each of a number of military books.

Harry M. Higinbotham, commodore of the Chicago Yacht club, and William Henry Dowe recently offered to equip two machine gun companies for the volunteers of Arizona. Mr. Higinbotham received a letter yesterday from Gov. Campbell expressing his sense of obligation but declining the offer on the ground there was no vacancy for such units at present in the Arizona troops.

S. J. Duncan-Clark, war analyst of the Chicago Evening Post, gave a lecture on the European war yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Daughters of the British Empire in the Auditorium hotel.

The Liberty Guards of America, a newly organized association for military training, will hold its first drill Tuesday evening at 8 p. m. at the Bohemian settlement house, 1847 South Racine avenue. Lieut. E. M. Bacharach of the officers' reserve corps of New York will be in command.

In the midst of a public dancing party in Hinckley, Ill., 150 couples burst into a chorus singing "America" as the orchestra struck the refrain. Cheers called for more verses until the entire hymn was sung. Over 50 per cent of the dancers were of German parents.

RUMBLE

A committee of twenty-five Evanston business men was organized yesterday at a meeting held to stimulate recruiting in the navy. Harry Hunton was elected chairman. The committee will carry on an advertising campaign through posters, pamphlets, and the press.

One hundred and fifty boy scouts of Evanston gave an exhibition of scout preparedness measures for war work yesterday afternoon in Patten gymnasium.

PACKERS ON WAY TO FIND IF U. S. IS TO FIX PRICES

Rumors of Regulation of Costs Have Disrupted the Market.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Heads of the four greatest packing houses in the United States are now on their way to Washington for a conference with the council of national defense on Monday on the subject of meat production and prices.

These men are J. O. Armour, Thomas E. Wilson, L. F. Swift, and Edward Morris.

The first question discussed at the conference will be the serious condition in the live stock market in the last week. Producers of live stock alarmed because of reports that the government intended to take drastic action toward fixing food prices, have been dumping their stock on the market with the greatest speed possible. This has resulted in a drop in the price of beef of 75 cents a hundred pounds in the last week alone.

Loss of Meat Tonnage.

Furthermore, it has resulted in a tremendous loss of meat tonnage. Stock many pounds short of the average selling weight has been sold because the producers have been afraid to keep it for the usual feeding season.

That these producers have been alarmed unnecessarily and that there is no prospect of government regulation of meat prices in the immediate future is the situation which has been found here by representatives of the live stock interests.

Everett C. Brown, president of the Chicago Live Stock exchange; C. B. Heinemann, secretary of the National Live Stock exchange, and Jay R. Brown of the Drovers Journal Publishing company of Chicago, who have been in Washington investigating the situation, find that there is no cause for alarm among the producers.

No Regulation Planned.

They have interviewed a number of prominent members of congress, members of the cabinet, and officials of the council of national defense, with the result, they say, that they have found practically a unanimous sentiment that the government will not attempt to regulate meat prices unless these prices savor of extortion.

Among others they have interviewed Senators Lewis of Illinois, Watson of Indiana, Kendrick of Wyoming, Paige of Vermont, Harding and Pomerene of Ohio, and Shafroth of Colorado. Practically every one of these senators, with the exception of Watson, agreed that there was no immediate danger of government regulation of meat prices.

Among the congressmen interviewed were Representatives Britten, Madden, and Rodenberg of Illinois, Moores and Wood of Indiana, and Heintz of Ohio. They were of the same opinion as the senators.

STEP INTO WAR BY LATIN-AMERICANS PLEASES WILSON

Regards Developments as the Death Knell to German Designs.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—The demonstration of loyalty to the United States by South American countries is regarded by the administration as sounding the death knell of German designs upon the western hemisphere.

President Wilson is gratified by the manner in which the southern republics are ranging themselves on the side of the United States against Germany. He believes this development has strengthened the Monroe doctrine and given force to his pronouncement a year ago that this American national policy not only should be defended by the United States but by the Latin-American nations.

No Effort Toward Alliance.

All this has come about without the administration putting forth any effort to form a pan-American alliance against Germany.

The declarations of support of the United States that have emanated from South America are interpreted as evidence that the Latin republics realize the vital necessity of overthrowing the German autocracy which for years has plotted to extend the German empire to South America in defiance of the Monroe doctrine.

There is a growing realization by the southern republics that if Germany triumphs their safety will be endangered and the strength of their northern protector put to the test.

New Basis for Reorganization.

If during the last two and one-half years the United States has struggled in this war to defend neutral rights today it is taking part in order to bring about important changes in the existing political and legal order, to reorganize the society of nations on a new basis, which will make that society more stable.

And this basis is an American basis, which has been tested in our continent for the last hundred years and which has resulted in strengthening the bonds of friendship between all the American states.

VANDERLIP SAYS EXPENDITURES SHOULD BE TAXED

Expenditures rather than incomes should be the basis of the war tax, according to Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, who is at the Blackstone hotel. He said that the rich man, as well as the poor, should practice economy in every way possible.

"The country is going to have great taxation," he said. "It should be as great as industry can stand without disorganization and as much as the individual can accept without discouragement. I do not believe in taxing 100 per cent incomes over a certain amount, as has been suggested. That would tend to cut off the very means necessary to meet the expenses of this war. Taxing expenditures would force economy where it was not practiced voluntarily. No expenditure should be allowed for anything not productive."

Mr. Vanderlip said the country is facing real danger of a food famine and that production of foodstuffs must be increased enormously.

Quentin Roosevelt Going to France as an Aviator

Montreal, April 14.—Quentin Roosevelt, son of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, has joined the Canadian aviation corps to obtain instruction for service with an American army at the European front should such an expedition go abroad. If no American troops go to France young Roosevelt will serve with the Canadian air forces, it was stated.

"Spirits of Patriots" at Meeting Uphold U. S.

Spirits who gathered last night at the West Chicago Masonic temple voted to uphold the United States and President Wilson.

"A reporter has just called up to know if Abraham Lincoln is with us," said President Burgess.

"He is," replied Julia English, medium. "He says, 'Honor your flag and your country. Stand by President Wilson. His name will go down in history as greater than mine.'"

"George Washington is lying awake nights in his spirit home worrying over this war," said Mrs. M. E. Cadwallader. Spirits "from over the ocean," probably allied spirits, urged enlistment.

Officers of the state association were elected, as follows:

BEST ATHLETES IN HIGH SCHOOL JOIN REGULARS

There will be no baseball or football teams in the Hammond High school this year, for fourteen of the school's leading athletes enlisted in the coast artillery in a body yesterday and will leave next Thursday for a training camp.

It is expected all the athletes in the school and in many other Hammond schools will follow the patriotic example of these youths.

Glen Warne, captain of last year's football team, lead the body into the recruiting office. Charles Hickman, member of the all-state football team and president of the senior class, was the first to fill an application blank.

Credit for the enlistments is given to Sergt. Welsh, who delivered an address appealing for recruits before the student body Friday afternoon.

The fourteen youths will be given the place of honor in a patriotic demonstration to be held in Hammond tomorrow.

U. S. ASKS BIDS ON MILLION POUNDS OF ARMY BACON

To feed Uncle Sam's fighting men, bids on contracts for more than 1,000,000 pounds of bacon were asked yesterday by Col. Frank E. Eastman of the central army department quartermaster's corps.

The specifications call for 200,000 pounds of bacon for delivery "as soon as possible," 500,000 pounds for delivery on or before June 6, and 423,164 pounds for delivery on or before June 21.

Bids were also requested for the following supplies:

Salmon, 2,201 pounds; flour, 184,534 pounds; beans, 24,000 pounds; salt, 13,000 pounds; pepper, 2,228 pounds, and 9,600 pint cans of milk.

Other specifications call for large quantities of hominy, tomatoes, tea, coffee, pickles, peaches, jam, tapioca, preserves, oysters, olives, and tooth powder.

Trousers Suggested for Red Cross Women

Whether to dress in bloomers, overalls, skirts or trousers is became a question yesterday after the enrollment of 4,000 girls of the University of Chicago in Red Cross work. Mrs. Arthur Ryerson of the Red Cross Shop, suggested short skirt and breeches. Mrs. Joseph Winterbotham Jr., said plain trousers.

Leading Irishmen Give Thanks to McCormick

Representatives of over twenty Irish societies of Cook county met yesterday to express their appreciation to Representative Medill McCormick for presenting to the house a resolution expressing the hope that peace shall witness the restoration of Belgium and Serbia and the establishment of a united and self-governing Ireland and Poland. A committee was appointed which will meet today at the Hotel Sherman to frame resolutions to be sent to Mr. McCormick. Judge John McGoorty, Judge Kickam Scanlan, P. J. Reynolds, L. R. Buckley, J. T. Ross, J. W. O'Donnell and P. J. Peel are members of the committee.

UNIONS FIGHT CONSCRIPTION IN CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., April 14.—Labor unions registered a vigorous protest against conscription in the house military committee hearing today, a letter from Samuel Gompers featuring the virulent opposition.

"The labor movement stands firmly by the voluntary principle," Gompers' letter said. "We know that only under voluntary institutions can the nation mobilize good will. Good will is essential to enthusiastic and effective united action."

Gompers' letter, which was read by Grant Hamilton of the American Federation of Labor, declared the voluntary system had not been given a real "effective and conclusive test."

"The organized labor movement," it said, "has always been fundamentally opposed to compulsion."

Other anti-conscriptionists who voiced their views were:

Jane Addams of Chicago and Marion Tilden Burritt of New York, representing the American Union Against Militarism. All declared that voluntary service was the only kind of military service in keeping with the principles of the republic.

The committee then closed its hearing, but not before the announcement was made of the discovery of an amazing propaganda to prevent enlistments had been uncovered in Philadelphia.

In addition to this propaganda, the threat was made to the committee that an anti-enlistment move would be undertaken all over the country—but who made the threat was not revealed.

'NOT TO EUROPE' MEETING BARRED

Oakland, Cal., April 14.—Determination that the municipal auditorium shall not be used Monday night for a demonstration designed to prevent sending of troops to the European trenches as planned by the Women's Home Protective league, Mayor John L. Davie issued a statement today saying that the police would be called in to break up the meeting if necessary.

Moved by the activities of the league in distributing what he called "anti-patriotic" literature, Mayor Davie took steps in dealing with the league's activities, which he says border on treason.

"Unless the agitators seeking to undermine the orders of our government in its declaration of war cease their activities they will all be arrested and interned as enemies of our country," the mayor said.

FEED FIGHTERS

Lloyd George Warns Britain It May Have to Depend on Home Grown Food; Urges Farmers to Do Utmost in Production.

LONDON, April 14.—"We may have to feed our army and navy as well as ourselves on home grown food," said Premier Lloyd George in a letter that was read at a meeting tonight of the Norwich-Norfolk agricultural committee.

"The line which the British empire holds against the Germans," the letter continues, "is held at some as well as abroad. If it breaks at any point it breaks everywhere. In the face of the enemy the seamen of our royal navy and mercantile marine and the soldiers gathered from every part of our empire hold our line firstly. You workers on land must hold your part of our line as strongly.

"Every full day's labor you do helps to shorten the struggle and bring us nearer victory. Every idle day and all loitering lengthen the struggle and make defeat possible."

A. B. C. NATIONS DESIRE UNISON IN WAR'S MOVES

Negotiations On for Pact —Paraguay Supports United States.

BUENOS AIRES, April 14.—The A. B. C. governments are reported to be negotiating with a view to convening in Buenos Aires an assembly of the South American republics in order to study and establish, if possible, a continental policy concerning the various problems arising from the war.

Notwithstanding the generality of the idea, it appears that Argentina and Brazil desire uniform action on the part of South America and Mexico.

Peru and Ecuador were in favor of convening a congress of Latin-American republics with a view especially to try to bring about an active coöperation towards peace in Europe. This tendency is not so strong since the rupture between Brazil and Germany.

Italians Flee Argentina.

An exodus of Italians from Argentina began tonight. This is taken as evidence of Argentina's likelihood of joining with the United States, Brazil, and Bolivia against Germany. The Italians apparently fear, in the event of Argentina's abandonment of neutrality, they would be conscripted to fight for the allies.

One other indication of the growth of sentiment in Argentina favoring a break with Germany was the announcement of the government that it had sent a note to Brazil "recognizing the justice of Brazil's action with regard to Germany."

A tight censorship in effect in Brazil prevented confirmation of widespread rumors tonight of violent anti-German demonstrations throughout the republic.

Paraguay Getting in Line.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, April 14.—The Paraguayan government in reply to the recent note of the United States says that it recognizes profoundly that Germany's military actions, which are opposed to the principles of the rights of neutrals, forced the United States to resort to arms to reëstablish order and reëstablish those rights. The Paraguayan government expresses also its most sincere sympathies with the government and the people of the United States.

Uruguay Against U-Boats.

MONTEVEDIO, April 14.—In its reply to the United States the Uruguayan government says Uruguay does not recognize the right to wage an unrestricted submarine war because it is an attempt against justice, violates neutral rights, and is an insult to humanity. Uruguay recognizes that the decision taken at Washington answers the situation arising from the submarine war.

In its reply to Brazil the Uruguayan government says that Uruguay, with reference to the submarine campaign, entertains the same view as Brazil and regrets that this friendly nation is thus obliged to adopt its present attitude.

Bolivia Assails Germany.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, April 14.—The note of the Bolivian government to the German minister announcing the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany denounces the attacks of German submarines on neutral vessels as violations of international law and of the Hague conventions. The note recalls that the Bolivian minister to Berlin was on board the Holland Lloyd steamer Tubantia when that vessel was sunk in neutral waters a year ago. The note concludes:

"Your excellency will understand that although we regret the breach of diplomatic relations between Bolivia and the German empire, such relations have become insupportable under exisitng circumstances. In consequence your excellency will find herewith passports for yourself and the members of your legation."

U. S. WILL FORM CORPORATION TO BUILD SHIPS

Washington, D. C., April 14.—The administration's program for building a vast fleet of wooden cargo ships to transport supplies to the allies and thus defeat the German submarine campaign, will be put definitely under way on Monday, when the shipping board will form a $50,000,000 corporation to build and operate the vessels.

The corporation will be organized under the laws of the District of Columbia and its entire stock will be held by the shipping board. In legislation to be introduced in congress early in the week the board will ask authority to increase the stock in the future, if needed, to an amount, perhaps, as $225,000,000. For the present the $50,000,000 will suffice.

Private shipyards will construct the ships on a standardized plan adopted by the shipping board on a basis in most instances of 10 per cent profit.

EXPERT FLYERS HERE

Greatest Aviatrix and U. S. Army Flyer Arrive in Chicago.

Miss Ruth Law and Capt. Roy Brown.

MISS RUTH LAW, the aviatrix who has been closer to heaven than any other American woman and who last year astonished the country by a magnificent flight from Chicago to New York, has offered her services to the government as a recruiting officer of the aviation corps. She arrived at the Hotel Morrison yesterday with her trench dog Pollu.

Capt. Roy Brown, U. S. A., and an aviation corps mascot also arrived yesterday. He will assist in training army aviators.

"Pollu is really a wonder," said Miss Law. "He did outpost duty at the battle of the Somme, going ahead and sniffing out the enemy and then reporting to his superior officer. His master lost an arm in the battle and Pollu himself received a frightful scalp wound in spite of his little steel helmet."

Miss Law left France on March 28 after some daring flights over the French trenches, the only woman aviator to fly in France since the outbreak of the war, she says.

"The French know far more about flying than we do," said Miss Law. "In France an aviator who does only straight flying does not count for anything."

Miss Law will make a series of flights over the middle west from Chicago in the hope of encouraging young men to join the aviation corps.

COLLEGES SEEK RETIRED ARMY MEN FOR DRILL

WANTED—RETIRED ARMY OFFICERS TO act as instructors of military training in the colleges of the middle west.

This ad, appearing in this issue of THE TRIBUNE, was inserted by a member of the board of trustees of one of the middle western universities. Thirty such positions are open.

Under the army law of June, 1916, the war department is bound to furnish colleges that adopt military training with an army officer to conduct the work. The war has taken so many of the officers away that the war department has found it impossible to furnish instructors.

Any army officer who can no longer serve because of his years or infirmity is invited to accept one of these positions, according to a university trustee.

Flat Denial of the Report Holland Is Kaiser's Haven

LONDON, April 14.—Flat denial that the kaiser is in Holland or is expected there was made in German information received from Rotterdam tonight. Berlin advices also declared there was no truth in reports that the emperor was gravely ill.

Will Take Battle Flag to France.

PARIS, April 14.—Former Secretary of State Robert Bacon cabled President Hanotaux of the Comité France-America tonight that he would shortly leave America for France with an American flag to be carried by Americans at the French front. His message included felicitations to France and the French army.

SUNDAY THINKS REVIVAL WILL SWEEP GOTHAM

New York, April 14.—"The recording angels will be working overtime chalking up new saved souls when New York begins to hit the trail," Billy Sunday told 20,000 persons who jammed his tabernacle tonight.

"Say, Jesus, I've been here a week and I believe little old New York is coming through," he shouted. "I know the devils in hell are growling because I can hear them. Watch us, Jesus."

Swinging into an attack on clergymen who have criticized his methods, Sunday yelled:

"I don't know any more about theology than a jackrabbit does about ping pong. But it doesn't do any good to go to war on a skunk with cologne water. And I think I know the animal I'm fighting. All that's the matter with most people is that they've got hell in them.

"And, ladies, don't fold your skirts in self-righteousness around your miserable carcass when you see a fallen girl. If you were in her shoes maybe you'd be the same way. You are a bunch of miserable sinners and if you get what you deserve you'll get hell, take it from me."

IRISH OFFICER WANTS TO RAISE BRIGADE IN U. S.

Man Who Helped to Quell Dublin Revolt Asks T. R.'s Aid.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, April 14.—Maj. Sir Harry Vane is in communication with Col. Roosevelt with a view to going to the United States to raise a force among the Irish-Americans for serving in the war. He has sent a letter to the former president explaining his plan in reply to one from Col. Roosevelt.

Maj. Vane was on duty in Dublin during the Sinn Fein uprising and was recommended for promotion for his services, but owing to a report he made on certain occurrences these recommendations were ignored. His Irish sympathies are pronounced, and he won great popularity when recruiting for the Sixteenth Irish division in south and west Ireland.

Sir Harry served with distinction in the Boer war and is a keen soldier as well as a clever organizer.

"I have been requested to offer my services to raise a force among the Irish-Americans," Sir Harry says in a cable to Col. Roosevelt. "Will you recommend me to the president for a command? As a major I was recommended for promotion for services in the Irish rebellion. Testimonials and reports on services in this and South African war following."

Urges Force Under Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—"Roosevelt can raise a better army and get better men than the conscription system can," declared Representative Emerson of Ohio today, discussing his bill authorizing President Wilson to send the colonel and 100,000 "Roosevelt volunteers" into the European trenches.

"His army would honor the United States as it serves us," he said.

Emerson held a volunteer army to be the best and a conscript army likely to have a wide gulf between officers and men.

Polish Alliance Will Raise Regiment Here

The Polish Military Alliance of America has obtained the permission of Capt. Franklin R. Kenny to recruit a regiment of Poles in the city. A parade of 400 uniformed members of the alliance began the movement for recruits yesterday. According to W. J. Andrzejewski, national secretary of the alliance, fifty members have already pledged themselves to serve.

GERMANY USING SOCIALIST HELP TO BRING PEACE

London Gets Reports That Berlin Has Inspired Conferences.

LONDON, April 14.—Germany may be working through her Socialists for peace. Despite denials from Berlin, it was reiterated in dispatches from Denmark and Sweden tonight that at least four German Socialist leaders were en route to neutral Scandinavian soil agitating a conference of Socialists of other belligerent powers.

It was realized here that Germany's hope is to effect a movement of the Russian Socialists for a separate peace between the new provisional government and Berlin.

But one Stockholm dispatch tonight quoted a Swedish Socialist leader, Henin, as declaring promises had already been received from German and French Socialists to attend a peace conference, which was being agitated primarily by Russian Socialists returning from exile in Switzerland via Germany. It was stated that British Socialists had rejected invitations to the conference.

Counter Move by Entente.

With the idea of heading off any Russian Socialist peace plan—the movement for which has undoubtedly been widely exaggerated by Teutonic sources—a plan was afoot here tonight to have Prince Kropotkin, the aged Russian revolutionary leader, return to the nation which banished him a quarter of a century ago. Kropotkin is bitterly anti-German. He is an idol of the Russian peasantry and liberals.

Amsterdam dispatches today asserted that German officials had granted special permission for three Socialists to accompany Philip Scheidemann, reichstag Socialist leader, to make the journey to Stockholm for conference—stamping this Socialist effort with the government's approval.

One of these—Dr. Felix Adler—was mentioned in Vienna dispatches as having been among a committee received formally by Count Czernin, foreign minister of Austria.

In the meantime German newspapers are printing apparently inspired stories reiterating that Germany has no desire for annexation of territory.

Aid to Peace Agitators.

STOCKHOLM, April 14, via London.—Recent reports concerning a meeting of Russian and German socialists in Stockholm to further the agitation for peace now appear to have been anticipatory. Such a meeting, however, may be held in the near future.

The fact that Russian peace agitators have been permitted to cross Germany from Switzerland seems also to indicate that the German government at least does not desire to throw any obstacles in the way of such a movement.

The party which arrived here on Friday included thirty Russians, who came through Germany in a sealed coach. Among the principal members of the party were Nikolai Lenin, the Russian radical socialist leader, and Zinovyof, another radical and peace advocate.

Makes Attack on British.

While in Stockholm the Russians issued a statement attacking England, accusing it of trying to "destroy one of the Russian revolution's results—political amnesty," and of refusing to permit Russian revolutionists abroad, who oppose war, to return to Russia.

The Dagens Nyheter says that it learns that Lenin undertook the trip to head an energetic peace movement and he and his friends already have won the promise of support from the German radicals for a congress in Stockholm. Some French socialists also approved of the plan, but English socialists flatly refused to take part.

BOYS NEEDED TO HELP FEED CITY, FARMERS SAY

Truck Growers Back School Board's Action.

Unless the children of Chicago can help in the harvest of the gardens and farms of Cook county the crops will be inadequate to meet the demands of Chicago is the verdict of the Cook County Truck Gardeners' and Farmers' association, whose board of directors met last night in Randolph market.

The association, which has a membership of 500, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the assistance offered by the board of education of Chicago be accepted; that we recommend all high school boys who are willing and able to do the work, to engage in this occupation; and be it further

Resolved, That our labor difficulties and shortage be taken up with the proper authorities for the purpose of a reform, so that we may be able to serve the public and the nation better.

The labor difficulty referred to is the child labor law, which prohibits all children under the age of 14 from working and allows children under 16 to work only after they have received special permits. The discussion brought out the fact that the farmers did not want children to do farm work, except on Saturday afternoons and in vacations.

"We could produce three times the crops we have been producing if we could get the labor," said President August Geweke. "There is no doubt of the constitutionality of the child labor law. That has been upheld by the Supreme courts. The question is, does farm labor come in under the heading of factory work.

"If we didn't believe that farm work was beneficial—far better than letting the boys and girls run loose in the streets—we wouldn't even suggest any reform."

ISSUE REPORTS GIVING DETAILS OF GREAT BATTLE

War Offices Tell Results of Clashes of Arms on All Fronts.

FRENCH FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, April 14.—The town of Lievin, southwest of and adjoining Lens, was captured this morning. Considerable quantities of war material have fallen into our hands.

In the afternoon we seized Cite St. Pierre, northwest of Lens, and our troops pressed on along the whole front from the Scarpe river to the south of Loos and reached points two to three miles east of Vimy ridge.

South of the Scarpe heavy fighting, in which the enemy employed strong reserves, has taken place all day. Attacks and counter attacks followed each other at short intervals. Our troops everywhere maintained the positions previously captured and inflicted serious losses on the enemy.

We made further progress during the day on a wide front north and south of the Bapaume-Cambrai road. In the course of a series of fierce encounters, all of which resulted in our favor, our troops fought their way forward during the day south and east of Fayet to within a few hundred yards of the town of St. Quentin and carried the village of Gricourt at the point of the bayonet.

The enemy resisted stubbornly and in addition to the loss of 400 prisoners suffered severely in killed and wounded. An attempted hostile counter attack was broken up by our artillery.

AVIATION.

Yesterday and during the night of April 12 large quantities of explosives were dropped by our airplanes with good results on enemy stations, ammunition depots, and airdromes, and hostile infantry and convoys were attacked successfully with machine gun fire.

In the course of the fighting behind the enemy lines four German machines were brought down and six others were driven down. Twelve of our machines failed to return.

DAY STATEMENT.

The village of Fayet, one mile northwest of St. Quentin, was captured last night after a sharp fight.

On the high ground east of Le Verguier we captured the important positions of Ascension Farm and Grand Priel Farm. We also made progress north of the Bapaume-Cambrai road in the direction of Queant.

North of the Scarpe our constant pressure compelled the enemy to yield further ground. We gained Vimy station, La Chaudiere, and the enemy's position at Fosse No. 6, and Buquet mill between Givenchy-En-Gohelle and Angres.

The guns taken from the enemy in this area included four howitzers, eight inchers.

The ground gained in our recent operations now links up with the positions wrested from the enemy in the battle of Loos, and include the Double Grassier.

The enemy attempted a raid east of Loos during the night, but was driven off.

FRENCH.

PARIS, April 14.—Between St. Quentin and the Oise our batteries continued their destructive fires. Our troops have organized the ground that we gained yesterday. The enemy has countered with his artillery on our first lines, especially along the valley of the Somme.

South of the Oise we have made progress on the plateau northeast of Quincy Basse. Our artillery has been particularly active against the German organizations in the forest of St. Gobain and the upper forest of Coucy. North of the Aisne and in the region of Reims both artilleries were active.

In Champagne and the Vosges the cannonading was quite violent in various sectors. An enemy surprise attack on one of our small posts northeast of Ville Sur Tourbe failed.

DAY STATEMENT.

South of St. Quentin our artillery continued to bombard the German positions. There was no infantry fighting during the night between the Somme and the Oise. Two German surprise attacks were broken up by our fire.

In the Champagne the artillery fighting was very severe. On this part of the front we made numerous reconnoissances, bringing back prisoners. Near La Chappelotte a German reconnoitering party attempted to reach our lines after a violent bombardment. It was dispersed and driven back to the German trenches.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, April 14.—Cannonading on both sides occurred in the regions of Dixmude, Zuyd-Schoote, and Het-Sas.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, April 14.—Northeast of Arras and on the River Scarpe there was a pause in the fighting activity yesterday. On both banks of the River Somme strong enemy forces again advanced against our St. Quentin position. The attacks failed under heavy losses, the British leaving three officers and more than 200 men in our hands.

At Croiselles and Bullecourt the British, after violent artillery fire, several times vainly attacked. In a counter thrust we inflicted considerable losses on the enemy.

Since April 7 the heart of St. Quentin has been bombarded with increasing violence by the enemy's artillery of all calibers and irrespective of the objects struck. The palace of justice, the cathedral, and the town hall already have been seriously damaged.

From Soissons to Reims the artillery of both sides is fighting at full strength.

The French exposed historical buildings in Reims to the danger of damage by the effective fire of the Germans by placing batteries in the vicinity of the structures.

AVIATION.

The British and French lost eleven airplanes on Thursday and twenty-four airplanes and four balloons on Friday.

TURKISH FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, April 14.—On April 10 Gen. Maude, withdrawing his advanced detachments on the right bank of the Diala river, succeeded in drawing the bulk of the enemy forces on this flank in a southwesterly direction toward Deltawah. Our forces made a night march from the neighborhood of the left bank of the Tigris toward the Diala and attacked the next morning.

The fighting had to be temporarily suspended owing to a mirage, but upon this lifting our offensive continued. Our guns, with the able assistance of our airplanes, rapidly asserted their superiority. Late in the evening the enemy was driven from his advanced positions near Ghaliyeh, ten miles northeast of Deltawah [thirty-five miles north of Bagdad].

Early on the morning of April 12 the enemy withdrew six miles in a northeasterly direction to Seraijik. Successful operations continued throughout the day and night, and Gen. Maude on the 13th reported: "We are following up the Turkish forces, which are falling back toward Dely Abbas. It is ascertained that the Turks lost 700 wounded during the fighting of April 11 and on that day 200 Turkish dead were found on the battlefield. Our total losses this day approximately equal the Turkish killed."

TURKISH.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 12.—Our troops operating north of the Diala river were attacked yesterday by an enemy cavalry division, reinforced by a brigade of infantry. We threw them back. The infantry brigade which attacked our right wing was repulsed with heavy losses.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, April 12.—Caucasian front—There were scattering reconnaissances and reciprocal firing.

AVIATION.

In the region of Bohorodcsany, Galicia, our aviators hit two German airplanes, which fell in the enemy's lines. One caught fire during the descent. East of Fokshani a German airplane was brought down.

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, April 14.—The artillery was active in the Lagarina and Adige valleys. The railway stations of Ostiliano and moving trains in the neighborhood were repeatedly hit, an ammunition depot was blown up, and a fortified position destroyed in the Zugna area. On the remainder of the Trentino front bad weather interfered with our activity.

On the Colbricon Massif, in the upper Cismon, enemy detachments attempted to attack the position which we captured on the preceding night after the explosion of our mine. They were repulsed with loss.

On the Julian front artillery duels took place in the Gorizia basin.

AVIATION.

Aerial reconnaissances made by both sides led to several air fights. Two hostile airplanes were brought down. One of our machines is missing.

In spite of a strong head wind, one of our air squadrons succeeded in dropping bombs on the railway stations of Prebacina and Volgia Druga in the Frigidio Vippaco valley. The airmen were compelled to fly very low because of the limited visibility of the targets and came under heavy artillery and machine gun fire, but returned safely.

RUSSIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, April 14.—Western front—On all fronts there were scouting reconnaissances and reciprocal firing. The enemy bombarded Brody with heavy artillery and some civilians were killed.

In various sectors of the front groups of Austrians with paper parcels in their hands came out of their trenches and, making signals with flags, endeavored to entice our troops to approach them. They were dispersed with shrapnel fire.

Daughter of Senator Gronna Weds.

WHERE GERMANS ARE LOSING GREAT BATTLE

Showing the Near-Fall of Lens and St. Quentin and the Vast Gains Made by British and French in Last 30 Days.

APPROXIMATELY one month ago the British and French offensive began coincidental with the German "strategic retreat" on the western front.

In that month, including Field Marshal Haig's captures yesterday, the Franco-British forces have recovered approximately 750 square miles of French territory from the invader, extending over a front of more than seventy-five miles, from Soissons to Lens.

In some places the British advance has reached forward twenty-two miles. This much was registered in the jump from around Roye to St. Quentin (3), where the suburbs of Fayet and Gricourt were occupied yesterday.

The line of the Hindenburg retreat was swung on two pivots—around Lens on the north (1) and around St. Quentin on the south, with Queant (2) in the center of the north half. It is at these pivotal positions that the greatest drives of the war are now being made—Gen. Haig and his British forces singly around Lens, which official statements today declared about to fall; Gen. Nivelle's forces coöperating with the British around St. Quentin and La Fere. St. Quentin cannot hold out much longer. Allied troops are within less than two miles of the cathedral, fighting in the suburbs of the city.

The line on which the fighting in this entire front was waged all winter ran approximately from Loos to Lieuwm, to Angres, to a point east of Souchez, thence to Neuville St. Vaast, to Ecuries, around the east outskirts of Arras to near Tilloy, thence down the railroad line to Achiet Le Grand and Pys, Thiepval, and Contalmaison. There the line swept sharply eastward to around Hardecourt, then south again to Ablaincourt and west of Roye and Ribecourt.

In the month just past this line has been shifted somewhat as follows, as far as official statements to date have indicated:

One mile around Loos.

Two and one-half miles' gain from Souchez beyond Vimy.

Four and one-half miles from Arras east to Fampoux.

Five miles Mercatel to Wancourt and Heninel.

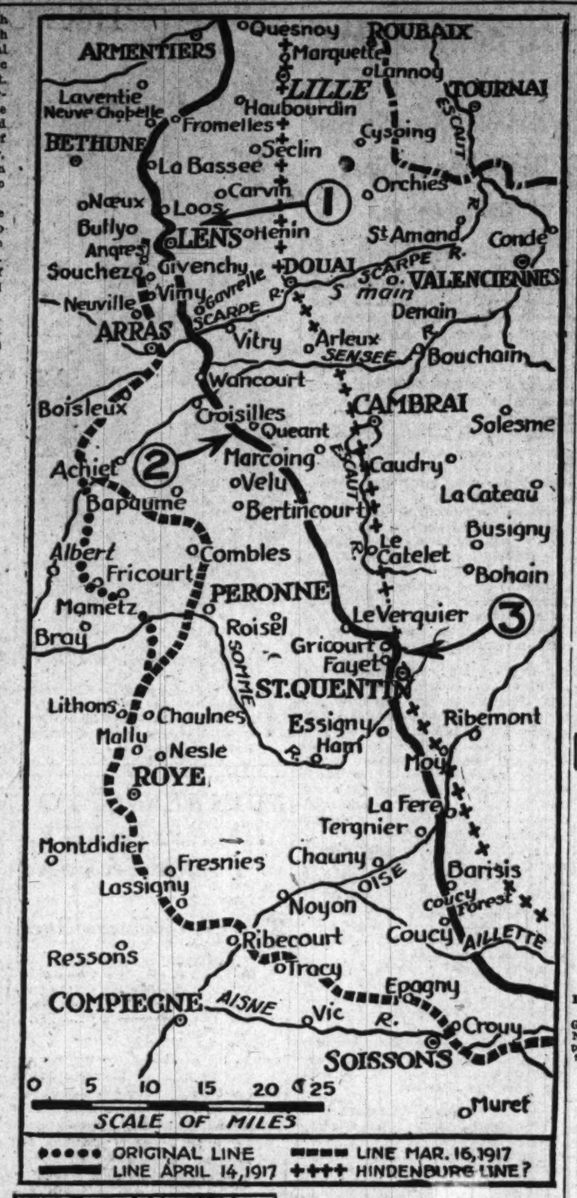
Eight miles from a point west of Achiet to near Queant.

Eighteen miles from Mametz to Ronssoy.

Twenty-two miles from Roye to St. Quentin.

Farther south the French have made these gains:

Approximately twenty-one miles of advance on a line drawn from Ablaincourt south to Roye, westward from Gauchy (near St. Quentin) down to Guiscard, Ham, Coucy, and along the Oise. Farther south than this the French have driven forward into St. Cobain forest.



U. S. WAR BOARDS TO ALL PRINCIPAL ALLIED NATIONS

America Also Will Sit in Entente Council in Paris in May.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—In addition to the commission on war coöperation which the United States will send to Russia, it was announced today that commissions with the same purpose in view will be dispatched to England, France, and Italy.

These commissions are to be nonpartisan in character, according to the administration, and it is possible that such prominent Republicans as former Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, former Attorney General Wickersham, and former Secretary of State Root will be named members.

Jew May Go to Russia.

Among the members of the commission to Russia President Wilson is expected to name an American Jew of national reputation if it is found the provisional government of Russia encourages the idea.

Secretary Lansing said the commission probably would cover all phases of Russo-American coöperation in the war. Mobilization of Russia's immense but latent resources is one of the main considerations. The United States, it is felt, could give from its own experience invaluable suggestions for the coördination of Russia's power.

To Let in War Council.

In addition to these commissions the government will send a deputation of officials to sit in the allied war council at Paris in May.

St. Louis Men Offer $5,000 for First U. S. U-Boat Prize

Washington, D. C., April 14.—A reward of $5,000 to the captain and crew of the first American merchant ship to destroy a hostile submarine was offered today by Benjamin and Anderson Gratz of St. Louis in a telegram to Secretary Daniels. The secretary thanked the senders for the spirit of their offer, but added that he felt money rewards for such deeds out of place.

RUSSIAN LABOR AND TROOPS FOR CONTINUED WAR

Ranks Are Divided, but Pacifist Wing Is in Minority.

PETROGRAD, via London, April 14.—The pacifist element is distinctly in the minority in the congress of district councils of workmen's and soldiers' delegates, which now is in session here.

The discussions thus far show two distinct currents of opinion. The first, which appears to be supported by an overwhelming majority, is favorable to vigorous prosecution of the war and support of the provisional government. The second group, composed chiefly of advanced Socialists, favors not only renunciation of all projects of annexation and indemnities but also steps looking to early conclusion of peace. At the same time this group is inviting the congress to express its distrust of the provisional government.

Pacifists Howled Down.

During the discussion yesterday of the action telegraphed by M. Bertelli, a member of the second duma, who is now on his way to Petrograd from exile, all amendments proposed by the second group were rejected by a large majority. Several pacifists attempted to speak against the resolution, which, while supporting the principle of nationalism, urged vigorous prosecution of the war and appealed to workmen to labor unremittingly in maintaining supplies of the army. An amendment offered by a soldier member urging the necessity of undertaking immediately active operations at the front was accepted by a large majority, and when the final vote was taken the opposition was able to muster no greater strength.

Plot to Disrupt Regime.

A statement issued by the government says:

"A number of Austrian officers and soldiers who deserted declare the Austrians and Germans are hoping that the various organizations in the interior of Russia which at the moment are obstructing the operations of the provisional government will bring about a state of anarchy throughout the country and demoralize the Russian army."

Half of People of Syria Disappear During War

New York, April 14.—Of the 750,000 persons formerly inhabitating Syria only 350,000 can now be accounted for, according to authentic advices, it was stated here today by Miss Caroline Holmes at a meeting of the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief to discuss plans to raise $10,000,000 for the continuance of its work.

THE OPEN ROAD

Completion of Sheridan Road Through Wilmette and Kenilworth Celebrated by Motorists of Chicago and North Shore in Gay Festivities.

PAGEANT OPENS SHERIDAN ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Motor Parade Takes a Leading Part in Jubilations.

There was a note of jubilation and a flash of gay colors yesterday when Chicago and North Shore folks joined in a ceremonial to mark the opening of the newly constructed stretches of Sheridan road in Kenilworth, Wilmette and the intervening portions in New Trier township.

There was a colorful parade headed by Capt. W. A. Moffett and a detachment of men from the Great Lakes Naval training station at Lake Bluff, a Maypole dance by children from Kenilworth and an impressive christening wherein a bottle of wine was broken upon the new highway.

Procession from Chicago.

Several hundred Chicagoans motored in a procession that started from the Art institute at 1:30 o'clock. In one of the automobiles was former Gov. Charles S. Deneen and Mayor Thompson. Both appeared on the speakers' platform and made addresses in the Kenilworth festivities.

There were three parts of the christening. In each instance bombs were exploded which released the national colors while the band from the naval station played "The Star Spangled Banner." This was followed by the ceremony of cutting a ribbon barrier. In Wilmette Miss Minnie Mae Schmidt officiated in the christening, breaking the bottle of champagne that declared the thoroughfare open.

Courtiers Surround Queens.

In Kenilworth the ceremony was performed by Miss Virginia Little, and for New Trier township Miss Katherine Scheidenheim. These were the three queens of the festival, and they came to the scene of their triumphs surrounded by their courtiers and maids of honor.

After the formal christenings the procession re-formed and proceeded to Wilmette and disbanded. The chief feature of the celebration was the Maypole dance, in which many young children of Kenilworth participated.

Nelson Lampert, president of the Lincoln park board, E. L. Lobdell, president of the Sheridan Road Improvement association, Mayor Schmidt of Wilmette, Mayor Bull of Kenilworth, and President Collier of the New Trier township commissioners, all participated in the events.

Mr. Deneen paid his respects to the sailors, suggesting that their presence indicates the interest of the federal government in Sheridan road as a means of military communication.

The speaking program was concluded when Mr. Lampert threw the last shovelful of earth from the completed road. The new pavements now complete the paved road to the north limits of Kenilworth, one of brick and two of concrete. They vary in width from thirty to forty feet.

SPAIN FEARING LOSS OF TRADE

MADRID, April 12, via Paris, April 14.—The cabinet today considered the possibility of a rupture between Germany and other Latin American republics and the possible paralysis of Spanish commerce, already hard hit by the war, which would be an inevitable consequence, as many of these republics form the principal markets for the products of Catalonia and the eastern coast of Spain.

Among the statistics read at the cabinet meeting was a table showing that the losses in shipping attributable to the war now amount to one-sixth of the total Spanish tonnage.

SHOT TWICE; VICTOR IN AIR

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, April 14.—These days are filled with thrilling incidents of individual exploits, which are difficult to sort from the mass coming in from so wide a battle front. One of the most remarkable is that of a young airman, who, although shot in the eye and the leg in an air duel yesterday, succeeded in bringing down the opposing machine in his own lines, dragged himself from the airplane, made a verbal report on his mission, and died a few moments later.

Pro-Germans Threaten Editor.

Aurora, Mo., April 14.—The lives of its editors and the destruction of the Aurora Daylight newspaper plant were threatened here today in a letter believed to have originated in pro-German circles.

AS GERMANS SEE VON HINDENBURG

BERNE, via Paris, April 13.—[Delayed.]—German papers arriving here are filled with editorial comment on an interview which Gen. Von Hindenburg granted a Spanish correspondent. The comment may be summarized thus:

"Field Marshal von Hindenburg is the greatest man almost that Germany has ever known. He says that America amounts to nothing. Therefore it must be true.

"The situation must be all right because he says so, even though our opponents report great successes.

"Hence the German people should have every confidence and above all subscribe to the sixth war loan, even though Von Hindenburg himself, in belittling America, says that its help can be only along financial lines."

ITALY SEEKING A DIRECT LOAN FROM AMERICA

Cabinet Minister Suggests Two Nations Establish Closer Relations.

ROME, via Paris, April 14.—"America must negotiate directly with Italy concerning loans," was the statement made to the Associated Press today by Sig. Scialoia, minister of the Italian cabinet without portfolio and a prominent authority on international law.

"America's entrance into the war," he said, "was greeted with such enthusiasm in Italy as to indicate that the relations between our country and America will become ever closer, assuming the character of an intimate friendship. It will be to the reciprocal advantage of each and may open for the United States a new European market and Italy's 35,000,000 inhabitants and our still virgin soil for American industries and commerce.

Urges Close Trade Relations.

"The present moment offers a good occasion for uniting financial relations looking to the development of industrial, commercial, and maritime connections, and Washington in deciding on loans to be granted to the allies for the continuation of the war should not let the opportunity escape to negotiate directly with Italy.

"America would thus establish a basis for the subsequent development of the larger entrance of the United States into commercial and industrial relations with Italy. The credit given to Italy would not mean drawing the money from America, because it would be used only for payments in the United States for American products which Italy needs.

Italy's Banking System Strong.

"Italy's strong banking system, including savings banks and postal savings banks, is not well known in America. Italy was in a prosperous condition before the war and will resume her upward movement when peace comes, and it will then be to the advantage of America if the financial intercourse between the countries has already been established. America should then retain a considerable portion of the commercial interests gained in Italy during the conflict and should take the place of the central powers in furnishing many products to our country. Much heretofore has been done in this line by England and too little by America, which should understand that the financial help given Italy during the war binds the debtor to the creditor for development after the war."

MEANS VICTORY

French War Minister Orders Gen. Nivelle to Convey to Troops in Field Notice of Entry of United States Into War on Side of Allies.

PARIS, April 14.—The minister of war, M. Painleve, has sent the following order to Gen. Nivelle, commander in chief on the French front:

"In the name of the government, I beg you to communicate by general army order to your troops the entry of the United States on the side of the allies.

"Have the goodness on this occasion to point out to them the unequalled importance of the event which causes the most pacific democracy in the world to abandon neutrality in order to defend law and liberty; recall to them that more than a century ago French and American troops fought side by side in a struggle for the same ideal and cemented the friendship of our two peoples by blood that was shed in a common cause.

"Finally, make them understand that the moral help brought by the United States is accompanied by material assistance, the weight of which in the scale will be decisive and assures to us more than ever the certainty of complete victory."

American Ship Shelled; Crew Taken Into Port

Washington, D. C., April 14.—The schooner Edwin R. Hunt of New York was shelled by a submarine April 7 off Cape Gata, and its master and the crew of eight were landed there. A report from Consul Gasset at Malaga said the crew had been brought to Almeria, but that the fate of the schooner was unknown.

NAVY AIMING AT 100,000 MARK BY DEWEY DAY, MAY 1

Friday, 13th, Set a Record—Chicago Recruiting Lagging Behind.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—"One hundred thousand men for the navy by Dewey day, May 1," is the slogan under which the recruiting forces of the navy are now working.

Secretary Daniels today announced that yesterday was the biggest recruiting day on record in the navy department, and it was Friday the 13th, too. One thousand three hundred and sixty-six recruits were accepted, bringing the total of the navy personnel up to 68,307 men. The department announced that the heavy gain in navy enlistments had been accomplished without lessening the physical standards required for entrance to the navy.

Work to Be Increased.

Since 1898, May 1 has been known as Dewey day, and the navy department feels the acquirement of 100,000 men will be a fit celebration this year of the day named for the great naval hero.

In order to get the necessary 100,000 men, the department intends to carry on its campaign with increased vigor. More and more recruiting parties will be thrown out over the country with the intention to comb every nook and corner of the nation by May 1.

The recruiting of the navy to 100,000 men, if accomplished, will give the navy the greatest strength in personnel it ever has attained. In the Spanish-American war the personnel of the navy probably was about half this number.

Chicago Recruiting Lags.

Records of the navy department show that Chicagoans have been slow to respond to the call for recruits. For the week ending April 5, Chicago furnished only eighty-three recruits and stood seventh among the cities of the nation, with New York, Boston, Newark, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Portland, Ore., standing ahead. The week before that Chicago furnished only fifty-nine recruits.

Peoria furnished twenty-one for the week of April 5 and thirteen the week previously. Indianapolis furnished eighty-two for the week ending April 5 and forty-six for the week previous. Milwaukee furnished twenty-five and twenty-two; Minneapolis, sixty-four and forty-two; Des Moines, thirty-seven and twenty-one, and Omaha thirty-seven and seventeen.

AMERICAN NOW FRENCH CAPTAIN

PARIS, April 14.—Charles Sweeney, who enlisted as a private in the foreign legion and won a commission in battle, has been promoted to the rank of captain. He is thus the highest ranking American in the French army, Lieut. William Thaw being the only other commissioned officer. Capt. Sweeney is leaving for the United States on indefinite leave of absence.

"I shall see what I can do in America toward helping out the recruits and training them, but I may return to fight with my detachment," he said today.

NEW GUARD UNITS LEGAL, BUT BAKER DOESN'T WANT 'EM

Urges Present Ranks Be Recruited Up to War Strength.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Baker today confirmed THE TRIBUNE'S report of the steps being taken to discourage the creation of additional units of the national guard before existing units are recruited to war strength.

The secretary explained the policy in a letter to the governor of Ohio, who had requested that new national guard units be authorized.

Judge Advocate General Crowder today ruled the states have a legal right to create new national guard units until the authorized strength of 800 men per congressional district is obtained. While the war department recognizes the ruling, it informs state authorities that neither money nor equipment is available for such new units, and it therefore discourages their creation at the present time.

Many States Make Request.

Requests for the formation of new units have come from the governors of Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Nebraska, Washington, and fourteen other states.

Although the war department cannot organize a real army until congress has passed the "selective draft" bill, army authorities are doing everything possible to provide the machinery necessary for putting the plan into operation.

Between the ages of 19 and 25 it is estimated there are about 6,000,000 men in the country. Of this number probably 4,000,000 would be exempt. This would leave about 2,000,000 from which the first force of 500,000 would be selected, probably by lot.

It was stated at the war department that no call would be issued for the members of the officers' reserve corps until congress had passed the new army bill.

When congress acts 6,000 enlisted men will receive commissions to train the first force of 500,000. Sixty men already have been designated from each regular regiment. They will be appointed lieutenants and captains of the new army.

Senate Body Clears Boards.

The senate military committee today cleared the way for taking up the war army legislation Monday by completing consideration of war department amendments to the present national defense act to perfect the regular army reorganization.

Virtually all changes in the national defense law suggested by the army general staff were accepted by the committee. The amendments include authority to increase the general staff to ninety-two members, to increase the number of machine gun companies in each army division from ten to twenty-three, and to increase the number of noncommissioned officers in each army unit.

"Separation" allowances for soldiers' dependents in time of war, recommended by the general staff, were approved and included in the bill. These provide that, during war, dependents shall be paid $15 monthly. If soldiers were killed in action or died from wounds or disease, the dependents would receive an amount equal to their pay for six months, and if in aviation service, a year's pay.

The committee is divided on the selective draft proposal, with a majority, however, understood to favor the administration plan.

BRITISH SMASH ENEMIES' LINES AT THREE POINTS

Fall of Lens, Great Mine Center, Expected in a Few Hours.

ish artillery gunners now accompany every infantry advance, and as the Germans are left no time to damage their lost weapons, these are often turned on their former defenders.

Break in Discipline.

A noteworthy fact reported from British headquarters is that the German prisoners in their cages behind the lines are refusing to obey their officers, either commissioned or noncommissioned. Such a condition has never been encountered in the past and clearly indicates a growing lack of discipline.

German prisoner officers say the chief cause of the present disaster is the trouble they have had in controlling their men. The "Haig plan," as the British call it, of shattering blows at widely separated points on the front seems to have greatly lessened German confidence in the "Hindenburg line."

The Advance on Lens.

Last night and early this morning the attack on the Lens coal mining district was taken up again under a steady drum fire from Gen. Horne's heavy pieces. When the infantry was sent forward Vimy station, La Chaudiere, and Fosse, lying between Loos and Givenchy, fell in rapid succession. Today Lievin, adjoining Lens and Cite St. Pierre, a little mining village built on a slag heap northwest of the city, became British occupied territory.

The mills and war material captured by the British form a considerable body of booty. These positions immediately adjoin the ground gained from the Germans in the battle of Loos and enable the British to dominate the plains of Lens and Douai. Hard, persistent fighting has been necessary to take them, as they consist mainly of great pyramids of slag near the mouths of coal pits and form unrivaled defenses.

Today's operations mean about another three miles of German front line trenches seized along the strongest part of the line.

This victory recalls the splendid British half success at Loos in 1915, when the British infantry entered Lens, but owing to insufficient artillery backing were obliged to retire.

EXPLOSIONS IN CITY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, via London, April 14.—Heavy high explosive shells were pouring into Lens late today and were undoubtedly giving impetus to the German plans to fall back from that central mining city, which has been in the hands of the Germans since the autumn of 1914, together with the mineral wealth represented in the surrounding district.

Fires in Lens, seen for the first time yesterday afternoon, were smoldering today. There apparently was no general conflagration. Time and time again explosions could be seen within the city.

Lens stretches over several miles, however, and in far distant parts of the city smoke could be observed pouring from tall chimneys, as if the industrial activities of the Germans in the French factories were progressing as usual. British patrols were this afternoon pressing toward the city from all directions.

City Splotch of Red.

From the northern slopes of Vimy ridge, recently captured from the Germans, it was possible today to see the spires and chimneys of Douai, still a German stronghold. Nearer, Lens seemed to lie almost at the foot of the ridge, with its suburb, Lievin, sprawling well into the new British lines.

Lens presents a striking contrast to the usual gray-white towns of northern France. It appears in the distance as one great splotch of red—red walls, red roofs, red chimneys—out of which loom the gray walls and gray towers of the cathedral.

Mine towers dot the surrounding country almost as thickly as oil derricks in the petroleum districts of America. Great slag heaps rise here and there like so many Egyptian pyramids. Into and around these red buildings and slag heaps shells exploded throughout the afternoon, throwing up dense clouds of brick dust which, caught up by the April storm wind, spread a pinkish yellow pall over the lower sections of the city.

Avenge Loss of Past.

Above Lens occasional shrapnel shells broke. With the usual British white puff-balls were mingled densely black puffs, the latter being the German 5.9 shrapnel recently captured and turned against the Germans.

Some of the points surrounding Lens, which are already occupied by the British, were thorns in the side of these same soldiers during the famous battles of the Loos salient. It was impossible at that time to blow the Germans out of their stronger positions. But now all this is changed. The difference between the bombardment with which the offensive began last Monday and that when the British inaugurated the battles of the Somme last July was so great that it is difficult to realize they came from the same army.

At the time set for the Somme bombardment to begin some of the British artillery officers were seeing large shells fired from their guns for the first time. When the battle of Arras began the British officers and gun crews handled the weapons like veterans. Behind them lay six or seven months of constant training, not only in the schools but actually in the field with the German positions as practice targets.

Rescue Captured Airmen.

Canadian patrols, pressing far east of Vimy ridge today, rescued from the Germans two British officers of the royal flying corps who were captured five days ago when forced to descend in the German lines. One of them had a fractured leg. The Germans had kept them in a dugout and had given them small bits of food and water but did not have time to remove them to the rear.

Labor Stands by Uncle Sam in War with German Empire

The state Federation of Labor and the joint legislative board for labor, the latter including representatives of the four railroad brotherhoods, have indorsed the stand taken by national labor leaders in Washington to "stand by the flag" in connection with the war. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Victor A. Olander, secretary of the federation.

School Authorities Investigate War Bride

A war bride of 14, whose husband of 19 prefers the steel mills to the firing line, is being investigated by the Joliet school authorities. The bride formerly was Margaret Scroggins, and now is married to Joseph Murray, said to be 19, but who gave his age to the clerk at Geneva as 21 and that of the bride as 18. Mrs. Scroggins, the mother, informed the school authorities her daughter had been freed of school obligations.

"The car of a thousand speeds."

An Astounding Service Record

"The first car I drove over 15,600 miles; the second car not quite 10,000 miles and have not had one cent of repairs. The original tires are on each car."
(Owner's name upon request)

These are the very words of the owner of two Owen Magnetic cars.

So why shouldn't he say that he is receiving "100% perfect" service.

But the reason for the remarkable performance of these two big cars is the Magnetic principle of transmission used in the Owen Magnetic.

It substitutes flexibility and ease of control, elasticity of power, constant torque and smooth riding at a thousand speeds, for the jerks and jars of gear-shift cars.

This same dependable Magnetic unit substitutes a little finger-lever on the steering-wheel for the awkward, hard-working, gear-shifting mechanism of other cars. It also provides for starting, lighting and braking.

This means greater mileage from tires and gasoline, less abuse, lower upkeep expense and far greater satisfaction.

It's probably hard to realize that these Owen Magnetic features are so much superior that they are causing gear-shift cars to become obsolete.

So before you decide on any other car, ask us to prove our claims. Pick up your 'phone now and arrange for a demonstration. We'll be glad to show you whether you buy or not.

THE FRANKLIN CAR

Should a Motorist Investigate Weight Before He Buys?

IF the words "Look Before You Leap" were aimed only at motor car buyers—and heeded—they would well serve the purpose for which they were coined.

Talk to the heavy-car owner a few minutes.

Listen to his regrets that he didn't investigate weight before deciding on a heavy car.

For one thing, had he investigated the Franklin Car, he would have traced Franklin popularity far beyond today's clamor for a light-weight car.

15 Years Experience To Bank On

Franklin Scientific Light Weight began in 1902.

Right from the start, Direct Air Cooling relieved the Franklin of 177 water cooling parts (well known trouble makers and excess baggage).

Ounce by ounce, the Franklin has scientifically reduced weight by the use of light and high-strength material, by relieving this material of every strain possible, and by the elimination of complicated mechanism.

Franklin Touring Car As Weight Standard

A touring car, weighing 2280 pounds; an enclosed car, the Sedan, weighing 2610 pounds.

To the experienced motorist, these Franklin weights mean more than mere figures.

On the road, they mean safety, ability, comfort, and reliability. In maintenance, they mean economy in tires, gasoline, repairs, and depreciation.

That weight figures tell you more than price figures is something we stand ready to demonstrate at any time.

SEIZE CHICAGOAN FOR THREAT UPON LIFE OF WILSON

Author of War Diatribes Admits Calling President Traitor.

Charles T. Mechler, an Edison park painter whose letters to Chicago newspapers, foreign consuls and public officials have caused secret service men to disclose him for the last seven months, threatening the life of President Wilson, was arrested yesterday on a charge of sending the letter to him by government operatives he broke down in the office of Hinton G. Clabaugh, head of the bureau of investigation, and, weeping like a baby, is said to have confessed that he sent the following letter to the president:

Woodrow Wilson, White House, Washington, D. C.—Woodrow Wilson: If George Washington were alive today and president, he would have you shot as a traitor to the American people.

M. A. MECHLER,
6815 Edison Park avenue, Edison Park, Ill.

Tumulty Prompts Arrest.

Joseph Tumulty, secretary to the president, turned the letter over to Washington secret service men. The Washington office instructed Capt. Thomas L. Ferree, head of the Chicago branch, to take the writer into custody.

Mechler's itching for the writing of letters denouncing the president has caused his handwriting to be as well known to Chicago secret service men as Mr. Clabaugh's, and he was under arrest within two hours after the Washington instructions had arrived.

Mechler, accompanied by his wife, was taken to the detention hospital, where Judge Scully will inquire into his sanity next Thursday. The letter, according to federal lawyers, lays Mechler open to a $5,000 fine and five years in prison, if Judge Scully decides he is mentally sound.

Wild Attack on Card.

An example of Mechler's handiwork, which was called to the attention of THE TRIBUNE several weeks ago, follows:

Only the real Patriotic-Americans are in opposition.

Fired for Talking War.

Mechler's home is at 6687 Olmstead avenue. Until a week ago he was employed as a printer by the Edison Press, 6845 Oriole avenue.

"I had to let him go because he refused to quit talking war around the shop," said Louis F. Schwartz, head of the printing firm.

"He is a strong Socialist and seems to have become unduly excited about the war. He did not print any of his cards or pamphlets in our shop."

Other Non-Patriots.

Edward Karoff spoke insultingly of the flag in the county building. He was taken to federal headquarters after a chase through the loop.

Two avowed anarchists, giving the names of Theodore Appel and Hippolyte Havel, denounced the war and the United States and were turned over to government agents.

Walter Blume was yanked off a street car when overheard calling the president a slacker. He was fined $25 by Judge Mahoney.

Ernest Reynolds, a Negro, was knocked down by Private Daniel Wolfe, who had asked Reynolds to join the army and received an insulting remark in return. He, too, was fined.

August Traboid is accused of saying the kaiser would make a better president of the United States.

Henry F. Meyers denied making unpatriotic remarks.

DEFIANT

Teacher, Whose Anti-War Pamphlet Was Seized by Government, Says He'll Issue Another.

OSCAR M. HEATH.

HEATH, 'SPIKED' BY U. S., TO KEEP UP FIGHT ON WAR

Pamphlet Seized, He Plans New and "Deadlier" One Soon.

The fact that federal secret service agents raided the office of Oscar M. Heath in the Powers building and confiscated his anti-war pamphlet, which President Loeb of the school board declared "treasonable and seditious," has not discouraged Heath in his literary efforts. He is planning to issue a longer and "deadlier" statement in a few days, he said after the raid.

Heath is a teacher in the Englewood High school and was suspended on Friday following a short but snappy conference in the office of the president of the board. He received official notice of his suspension yesterday from Supt. John D. Shoop and was told to appear for trial before the board of education next Thursday.

"Press-Money King League."

The federal agents did not arrest Heath or interview him. They were satisfied to take away his pamphlet, which he said he intended to distribute.

In the pamphlet he said that when he had more money he would "come again," and urged all readers to have his words copied and distributed.

He complained that the newspapers refused to print his stuff and followed that up with a claim that the newspapers were in league with the money kings to bring on the war.

Will Fight Dismissal.

Attorney William J. Lindsay has been retained by Heath to handle his case.

"I intend to fight dismissal," said Heath. "If I am not permitted to teach on Monday I shall start legal action."

"There is no chance that Heath will teach his classes on Monday," said Mr. Shoop.

"It will be useless for him to go to the school on Monday," said President Loeb.

Book Questions Marriage.

Heath's book, "Composts of Tradition," published in 1913, caused Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, then superintendent of schools, to make an investigation of his fitness as a teacher. In it one of the characters is allowed to question the wisdom of marriage in this wise:

"Marriage is a restrictive device which interferes with the greatest function for which mankind was created, and at the same time supplies an opportunity for the grossest immorality under the guise and disguise of holy matrimony.

"The greatest virtue a woman has is her longing for children. The greatest vice man has is his desire to monopolize her productivity."

OPPOSE PLAN TO SUPPRESS GERMAN PRESS

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Congress has received with little favor suggestions from various people in communities where there is a large Teutonic population that all publications in the German language be suppressed during the period of the war.

While the members and senators generally are opposed to suppression, practically all of them favor supervision of the German publications.

"We shall not contribute to our security by suppressing all newspapers published in the German language," Representative McCormick of Illinois said. "Rather shall we deprive the country of media in which there may appear cogent arguments for the support of the government. Seditious publications must be suppressed, or, rather, steps must be taken to prevent the publication of seditious matter in any language. I am told that a little newspaper in New York, published in the English language, so far has been the worst transgressor."

BIG PLANTS CAN SWAMP U. S. NAVY WITH MUNITIONS

Washington, D. C., April 14.—Millions of shells—many times more than the navy needs—can be produced by the big munition plants of the United States, as shown by projectile bids made public today.

The navy asked estimates on a total of 1,578,000 projectiles of all sizes, of which 1,170,000 were one pounders. Each of eleven companies out of twenty-five submitting figures offered to take up the entire order for the small shells while each of six companies offered to take up the entire order of three and four inch projectiles.

In brief, this means the navy could get several millions of one pounders and from 25,000 to 30,000 of the giant shells a month after delivery began.

GERMAN CHURCH IS LOYAL TO U. S.

Resolutions pledging loyalty to the government were passed at a special meeting of the German Methodist ministers of Chicago on Friday.

"We hereby pledge our unwavering loyalty to our national government in this tremendous struggle," the resolutions say.

"We further pledge our best offices in urging our membership to unflinching loyalty to the best interests and needs of our country in this world crisis."

These resolutions will be published in the press and read from all the pulpits of German Methodist churches. They were signed by the Rev. Henry C. Loeppert, district superintendent, and the Rev. A. H. Finger, secretary.

C. A. A. Will Pay Wages to Employes Who Enlist

The directors of the Chicago Athletic association have adopted a resolution to the effect that employés of the club who engage in active military service, either in the army or navy of the United States, will be paid the difference in wages received from the government and what the club pays.

The club also announces that "members of the association who accept active service in either the army or navy shall be given full privileges of the club during their period of activity with suspension of dues."

GERMAN CLUB PLEDGES TO FIGHT THE FATHERLAND

Ex-Congressman Vollmer Wins Cheers by Plea for Conscription.

Reiterating, on behalf of the German-Americans, his pledge of two years ago—"Though it tear their very heart strings, they stand like a solid wall against kaiser and fatherland and kin across the sea"—former Congressman Henry Vollmer of Davenport, Ia., yesterday urged the German Club of Chicago to "make good." Mr. Vollmer's speech was made in an Appomattox day celebration in the Hotel Sherman.

"The time has come for universal military training and service in this country," he said. "It is the only adequate measure of preparedness, and it is the only truly democratic system. Let the son of the multi-millionaire get down in the trenches and fight side by side with the son of the bodcarrier. Of the two, he has more to fight for."

Cites Civil War Examples.

Mr. Vollmer pointed to the services of the Germans for the union in the civil war when nearly a half million went to the front. His address was received with much applause and a pledge by members of the club to "keep faith with the union."

"We are not here to advertise our patriotism," he said. "Love of country is a sentiment too sacred for public exploitation.

"German-Americans always have been loyal to our government and always will be. Their entire history is a safe guaranty of this.

"During the civil war that titanic conflict the anniversary of whose closing we are observing today, over 500,000 of them enlisted in the armies of the union. Of these, some 216,000 were born in Germany and more than 300,000 were born in this country, of German parents. My old friend, Gen. Sherwood, himself the grizzled veteran of forty-two hard fought battles of the civil war, made a statement in the house the other day, as follows:

"I have a list here of forty-eight generals, all Germans, who fought on the union side in that great war, which I will print in the Record.

Defines Duty of Patriots.

"Let me define explicitly the duty of the hour: First—To support the government of the United States in all measures decided upon by the legal authorities. Second—To give no aid or comfort, information, or supplies to the enemies of our country. Third—To cease all discussion of the issues that have been settled by the legal declaration of a state of war by congress. Fourth—To assist in the building up of the military and naval forces of our country.

"The time has come for universal military training and service in this country.

"I want the United States of America to be strong enough to stand alone. I do not want it to depend on the navy or army of any other power, which in return dictates to us our foreign policy.

"The munition manufacturers and bankers of the United States will face an engulfing tide of state socialism in the not far distant future. After our mushroom war trade collapses, unemployment and labor unrest will occur in this country. Then the very classes that cover us with obloquy in the press they own and control will call upon us, the American citizens of German origin, to help out of the difficulties."

Rubens Resents "Insult."

Harry Rubens, former president of the club, said:

"It is almost an insult that German-Americans, after what they have done for this country in history, should be called upon now to reaffirm their loyalty to the United States.

"But it seems that unless one is an Anglomaniac, he is not considered a good American any more. We Americans of German origin will fight for the independence of this country up to the last drop of blood in our veins. But we must look forward and not backward, to the time when, after this war, we will do our share to down the Anglomaniacs in this country and see that America is free and independent for all time."

Y. M. C. A. EXPECTS 1,000 AT WAR FUND RALLY MONDAY

Cook County Asked to Raise $150,000 for Work.

It is expected that 1,000 men will meet tomorrow evening for dinner at the Hotel Sherman for the first great rally in the campaign that is to be carried on by the Y. M. C. A.'s of Cook county to raise $150,000 this week for its work among soldiers. The Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus, President Harry Pratt Judson, Col. Milton J. Foreman, and Wilbur Messer will be the principal speakers.

The First infantry band will furnish the music and the singing and cheering will be led by the campaign team of the University of Chicago, numbering about 100 men.

Alumni teams from seven universities will be represented at the meeting. Teams have been organized in the suburban towns and the leading business houses and clubs of the city.

Col. Foreman said: "The splendid discipline of the regiment on the border was undoubtedly due in great measure to the influences and work of the Y. M. C. A., which I regard as an essential element to the proper development of the soldier while in training."

A patriotic rally will be held this afternoon at the Hyde Park department. John W. O'Leary, president of the Association of Commerce, Marquis Eaton, and L. Wilbur Messer will speak.

The campaign committee will hold a meeting at the shops of the Northwestern railroad Tuesday noon. The meeting will be addressed by W. J. Farquharson.

First Cavalry Calls for Bandsmen for War Period

Musicians are wanted for the First Cavalry band. Albert Bobene, bandmaster, has issued a call for bandsmen for service with the First cavalry. Enlistments, he says, will be for the period of the war only and for band service only.

Any man having the required experience is asked to join, no matter what instrument he plays, but basses, trombones, and clarionets are those principally needed.

Applicants are asked to call at the First cavalry armory, 1330 North Clark street, any night this week. Bobene will be there at 7 p. m. every evening.

20,000 Acres in Florida Offered U. S.; Need Labor

Twenty thousand acres of land at Vero, Fla., will be turned over to the government for food producing purposes this year by Erving J. Albert, with offices in the Ashland building, provided a labor supply for cultivating the land is furnished.

HUNTING CLUBS URGED TO FARM THEIR ESTATES

George High Tells What Grand Island Lodge Will Do.

"Thousands and tens of thousands of acres, given over to hunting and fishing clubs, can be put into corn, potatoes, and small grains this year. Time has come to lay aside our fun, for the present, and become patriots," said George H. High of 1242 Lake Shore drive, president of the Grand Island lodge.

"Our club owns an island of 4,200 acres in the Illinois river. It is made up of alluvial deposits and ranks with the richest soil in the world. Between 700 and 800 acres can be planted this year. In the past it has never yielded anything for the market.

Will Farm Intensively.

"This year we are going to farm, intensively, and the land we cannot put into corn and potatoes will be used to run hogs on. They will eat the acorns and hunt their own food. We are going to harvest our swamp hay. It will all help, and we will make an industry of our fishing.

"There are twenty-five such clubs along the Illinois river, thousands of them all over the country, and in Canada. Wealthy men control them. They have the money and facilities to put them into cultivation. Every outdoor publication in the country should get behind the movement."

Some of the bigger clubs which will be asked to take similar action are the Swan Lake club, Duck Island club, Sanganois club, Coleman Lake club, and Wausaukee club. The membership of these takes in many of the wealthy Chicagoans interested in outdoor life.

Golf Meeting Called.

D. F. Kelly, general manager of Mandel Bros., said yesterday that, as president of the Chicago District Golf association, he had called a meeting of the presidents of the thirty-two golf clubs making up the membership for Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Chicago Athletic club. A plan to plant unused portions of the links will be presented.

Golf clubs belonging to the association are the Beverly, Bob-o-Link, Calumet, Chicago, Edgewater, Evanston, Exmoor, Flossmoor, Glen Oak, Glen View, Hinsdale, Idlewild, Indian Hill, Lake Shore, La Grange, Midlothian, North Shore, Oak Park, Old Elm, Olympia Fields, Onwentsia, Park Ridge, Ravisloe, Ridgemoor, Ridge, Riverside, Skokie, South Shore, Westmoreland, Westward, Wheaton, and Windsor.

WILSON NAMES CENSOR BOARD ON PUBLICITY

Aims to Guard Secrets of War Value to the Enemy.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—Control of publicity in connection with the government's war activities was placed by President Wilson today in the hands of a committee of public information, whose task will be to safeguard secrets of value to the enemy and at the same time to see that all affairs of the nation are laid before the people as fully and frankly as possible.

The committee named by the president is made up of Secretaries Lansing, Baker, and Daniels, who recommend the step, with George Creel, a magazine writer, as civilian chairman.

President Names Committee.

Announcement of the creation of the censor board was made in the following executive order made public at the White House:

"I hereby create a committee on public information to be composed of the secretary of state, the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, and a civilian who shall be charged with the executive direction of the committee.

"As civilian chairman of the committee I appoint Mr. George Creel.

"The secretary of state, the secretary of war, and the secretary of the navy are authorized each to detail an officer or officers to the work of the committee."

Wilson Asked to Act.

Mr. Creel, who was called to Washington for conference several days ago, has accepted his post. The president's action was based on the following letter, signed by the three cabinet officers:

"Dear Mr. President: Even though the cooperation of the press has been generous and patriotic, there is a steadily developing need for some authoritative agency to assure the publication of all the vital facts of national defense. Premature of ill advised announcements of policies, plans and specific activities, whether innocent or otherwise, would constitute a source of danger.

"While there is much that is properly secret in connection with the departments of the government, the total is small compared to the vast amount of information that it is right and proper for the people to have.

People Should Be Partners.

"America's great present needs are confidence, enthusiasm, and service, and these needs will not be met completely unless every citizen is given the feeling of partnership that comes with full, frank statements concerning the conduct of the public business.

"It is our opinion that the two functions—censorship and publicity—can be joined in honesty and with profit, and we recommend the creation of a committee on public information. The chairman should be a civilian, preferably some writer of proved courage, ability, and vision, able to gain the understanding cooperation of the press and at the same time rally the authors of the country to a work of service. Other members should be the secretary of state, the secretary of war, and the secretary of the navy, or an officer or officers detailed to the work by them.

Has Right to Name Board.

"We believe you have the undoubted authority to create this committee on public information without waiting for further legislation.

"The committee upon appointment can proceed to the framing of regulations and the creation of machinery that will safeguard all information of value to an enemy and at the same time open every department of government to the inspection of the people as far as possible."

U. of C. Alumni Plan for Special War Service

The alumni of the University of Chicago will meet in the Hotel La Salle tomorrow noon to consider a plan to train its members for activities in various branches of military service. The general committee on military training has interested the University of Chicago men who are in business in Chicago in this movement to offer their services along specialized lines. They will be drilled by Maj. O. W. Bell, U. S. A. Lawrence H. Whiting, secretary of the University of Chicago Alumni club and also secretary of the military training committee, has issued a call to 8,000 alumni to communicate with Walter L. Gregory, Hotel La Salle, giving their views.

Some of the Reasons Why I Would Buy a Jeffery Six

NASH Jeffery MOTORS

First of all, let me tell you, I am prejudiced.

That is only natural. For I have lived with this car. I have seen it made. I know what it has done—what it will do. I am absolutely convinced in my own mind that it is the best automobile buy within $300 of its price.

So I can honestly say, "If I were on the other side of the fence—a prospective buyer instead of a dealer in motor cars—I would buy a Jeffery Six."

I would be attracted by its wealth of power—the sheer smooth might of its 53 horsepower motor, rendered vibrationless by the extra heavy, inherently balanced crankshaft—strictly a Jeffery feature.

Its amazing flexibility and elastic pick-up which permits me to ease through Loop traffic at two miles per hour in "high" and its arrow-like flight at "sixty" on the open road, is a complacent thought.

Because it is well bred, a car I am proud to drive, proud to show off to my friends, I would be inclined to favor it. Its stream lines are pleasing, up-to-date, but not freakish.

Because it is built right, of finest steel, leather and wood, 93 percent the product of the great Nash factory, assembled by skilled mechanics, I know it is a car I can trust for any trip, ten miles or ten thousand.

And the mere fact that this car has been tried, tested, refined and approved by the Nash Motors Company would bear great weight with me. For I know that this organization comprises some of the finest motor car experts in the country. I know they would never lend their name to a product they did not honestly feel was the best in the land.

And because the twenty-five hundred satisfied Jeffery owners right here in Chicago are a well-pleased lot, because many of them have told me they would never buy another make of car—that this Jeffery Six has given them thousands upon thousands of miles of untroubled service, I would be prejudiced in its favor.

A Jeffery Six demonstration will give you some idea of its easy superiority. Spring and summer touring days lie just ahead. Drop us a line, telephone or call at our new showroom, Twenty-third and Michigan Avenue.

Centaur service, with its added facilities, is at your disposal. Because I am so enthusiastic about this car I want the opportunity to tell you more about it.

When may we expect you?

President.

ROUSE FARMERS! BANKS WILL AID, THEY PROMISE

Agricultural Papers and Officials Join to Fight Famine.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

"Wake up the farmers," said Frank Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, yesterday. "The world is short of food. If the farmers need money to finance the planting and cultivating of increased crops, they can get it from the banks. I had not heard, before I left New York, of the plan of New York bankers to set aside a special fund of $5,000,000 at low rates of interest for crop loans. But I approve it. I approve anything, in advance, which will help to get more seed into the soil."

"If the country banks need funds to finance spring planting and cultivating," said Arthur Reynolds, vice president of the Continental and Commercial bank, "the bankers of Chicago, I am sure, are ready to cooperate with them on a broad and generous basis."

Appeal to Employers.

"If there is any farmer or country banker who doubts the bitter necessity of increasing—doubling, if possible—the food supply of the United States, he should look over the newspapers of Canada. Every one of them carries a big advertisement of the agricultural department of the dominion calling for help on the farms. "An Appeal to the Employers" is the head of one half column advertisement. "Can any of your men plow? Send them to the state while the plowing season lasts."

"It is the solemn duty of all farm people to enlist," says the Breeder's Gazette of Chicago, "not in the army and navy but in the fields."

"This spring, right now," urges the Ohio Farmer, "the farmer should apply himself to strengthening the first line of the country's defense by producing more food of whatever kind his land may be best fitted for."

Responsibility Is Great.

"Never before has such a heavy burden of responsibility rested on the shoulders of the farmers of the Mississippi valley," says the Prairie Farmer.

"The great farming states of the middle west are waking up to the danger of the food famine which confronts not only the United States, but the world. The state of Michigan is already on fire. George W. McCormick of Menominee, one of Gov. Sleeper's newly appointed war council, stopped over in Chicago yesterday on his way to Lansing to report progress.

"On Monday next," said Mr. McCormick, "the state legislature will pass a bill appropriating $5,000,000 as a war fund. Last Thursday Gov. Sleeper called about 100 of the leading men of the state to meet with the state officials. Of that number seven were selected to act as members of the war council.

Leading Men to Aid.

"Former Gov. Fred M. Warner is our chairman. The other members are N. P. Hull, former president of the State grange; W. J. Orr, head of the state organization of warehousemen; Nathan Simpson, head of the Gleaners, which organization enrolls 60,000 farmers; W. J. Prudden, a leading manufacturer; John Haggerty, president of the State fair association, and myself, representing the upper peninsula.

"Already the county agricultural agent in every county in the state is busy making a census. He will find out what acreage of each important crop every farmer in his county is planning to plant and how much more he could plant if given assistance; also what kind of assistance he wants.

"We have money enough in Michigan. If farmers lack capital and cannot get it at the local banks, we shall see to it that the state furnishes seed and has money enough to buy fertilizer and pay for labor.

"We will organize the schoolboys of the state, above the age of 15 years, into a Home Defense legion. There will be a captain appointed in each county and every boy who works on a farm this summer will be awarded a button or other badge showing that he has done his patriotic 'bit.'

"If there is still a shortage of labor we shall appeal to manufacturers who make articles which are not strictly necessary in war time to release at least a part of their workmen for farm service. They also will be given a badge to show that they have served their country in the present emergency.

Will Guarantee Price.

"Michigan grows a large percentage of the bean crop of the United States. At our big meeting on Thursday one of the important farmers of the state declared that it was all very well for the warehouse men, with their bins stuffed with beans they could sell at $8 a bushel, to urge the farmers to increase their acreage. Next fall they would expect to buy these beans at $4 a bushel. He was answered by Mr. Orr, who is the head of the warehouse men of the state.

"'What guaranteed price for beans do you think the farmers would be satisfied with?' asked Mr. Orr.

"'I think we should have $5 a bushel,' was the reply.

"'How many acres can you plant?'

"'Perhaps fifty acres.'

"'Plant seventy-five and I will agree now to pay $6 a bushel for all you can raise. Go back and tell your neighbors to plant all they can. There will be a demand for more than they can raise.'"

ELEPHANTS DO THEIR BIT, BUT WIN NO RECRUITS

But Enlistment Campaign Makes Record Day for Regulars.

Bands, boosters, elephants, and a general whoop for recruits yesterday brought about the biggest day of enlistments for all branches of the military service since the recruiting campaign was begun in Chicago.

Bands played throughout the loop, boosters in small squads visited office buildings, a herd of elephants from the circus "acted up" in Grant park, and orators were kept busy everywhere. The result was 300 enlistments for the army, more than 50 per cent over the best day heretofore, nearly 100 in the navy, 62 in the marine corps, and a goodly scattering in the various militia camps.

Letter from Greek Patriot.

Some 1,500 members of the Hamilton club have offered their services in recruiting. Many unusual appeals have been made. One of these came in an open letter from George J. Katsoulos, a broker, who has enlisted in the First Illinois cavalry. He has urged his fellow Greeks to hearken to the Spartan spirit of defense.

Owing to the response the call for 88,500 men for the navy has received the date for the close of that particular campaign has been extended to May 5 instead of April 20. Lieut. L. M. Stevens, in charge of the navy recruiting in Chicago, was pleased last night with the day's work. He said he would try to get Chicago's quota of 1,800 by the first named date, April 20.

Many special stunts were used. The circus turned loose three of its elephants, which walked majestically down Michigan avenue and led a crowd up as far as the tent flaps of the recruiting stations, but unfortunately no farther. The "Spirit of '76" paraders gave up the job of arousing the spirit of 1917, and drummed their way home. A parade of war veterans with a band accomplished little.

Oak Park Gives Men.

In Oak Park, with only preliminary work done, three boys have already applied for places in the navy, and with the office opened on Monday, the navy ensign in charge looks for good results. This office is to operate in other west side suburbs as well. The rallies among Americans of alien birth have resulted in heavy enlistments from the Bohemian and Polish centers.

Retractions were offered gladly by every one concerned in the slander against Oak Park patriotism uttered by a recruiting seaman who said Oak Park was better at marrying than enlisting. Besides the three navy recruits, five youths appeared in a body at marine headquarters and passed the examinations, a remarkable feat in itself, and were started for Port Royal, S. C., for preliminary training.

Another 1,000 Jackies Ready.

Another contingent of 1,000 men will start from the Great Lakes Naval Training station next Tuesday to join the sea forces of the country in active duty.

It has been estimated that 30 per cent of the naval recruits come from cities, 25 per cent from towns of less than 10,000, 25 per cent from hamlets and villages, and 20 per cent from farms.

Capt. Moffett of the Great Lakes Naval Training station announced that the navy active service list is being swelled by the transfer of able bodied men now in recruiting service, their places to be filled by retired officers and by men enlisted in class 4—that is, below physical standard in minor respects, but well qualified for land duty. He has issued instructions to subordinates to enlist immediately for class 4 as well as for the active list.

Waiters Cleared of Plot, Unions to Seek Injunction

Following the dismissal of six members of the Cooks', Waiters', and Bartenders' unions from charges of conspiracy in connection with picketing at the Bismarck garden, Fred Eberling, business agent, said yesterday that an injunction against the police will be sought by the unions.

The six men were arrested in connection with the charges that dynamite had been introduced into the coal supply in the Bismarck. The charge was disproved and the defendants dismissed by Judge Jarecki.

"We serve the people of Chicago," said Eberling, "and it is harmful to us to have it said that we are using unlawful means."

Mob I. W. W. Flag Desecrator.

Render a Service to Your Country

Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, says: "Without going beyond their dooryards millions of American women and children can render service to the nation right now as real as that rendered by the soldier on the field of battle. A million gardens planted in the cities, suburbs and country would mean the release of millions of pounds of foods to our allies. Plant now. Get into the game and do your bit to win the war."

MAYOR BELIEVES PEOPLE AGAINST ARMY TO EUROPE

Opposes Draft and Yellow Ribbons on Cupid Recruits.

The first suggestion of defense for the lins that crowds the approach to the marriage license bureau came yesterday from Mayor Thompson, who went to his office in the city hall for the first time in more than a week.

The mayor's attitude was apparently sympathetic with those who oppose fighting Germany on European soil. He was asked whether he would follow the example of mayors in other large cities and issue a proclamation on April 18, Paul Revere day, for the purpose of encouraging recruiting.

"You'd come to the conclusion from the number of nonenlistments," the mayor said, "that the people of the United States do not favor sending an army to Europe. I believe, however, that the people of the United States would go to the limit in defending this country from invasion."

He's Against Conscription.

The mayor was then asked whether he favors conscription for raising an army.

"I can't say that I do," was his response. "Neither am I in favor of pinning yellow ribbons on the men standing in line to get marriage licenses. I don't think that will encourage any one to enlist."

"But do you think men ought to get married to evade military service?"

"I do not, but on the other hand I do not think the majority of them are getting married to evade service."

It was suggested to him that a large number had confessed this was their object.

"Well," he said, "you can call them anything you want to, but calling names won't help any."

Up to the Government.

The mayor evaded giving a definite answer as to whether he would take the lead in fostering enlistments as requested by the Rotary club.

"They haven't asked me yet," he said. "I'd sugest they take it up with the federal government. What is the federal government going to do about this war, anyway? Isn't it their business?"

SIXTH ILLINOIS HAS 14 CASES OF PNEUMONIA

Another Hospital Ward in Springfield to Be Taken Over.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—Fourteen pneumonia cases are now being cared for in St. John's hospital, all from the Sixth infantry, Illinois national guard, now in camp at the state fair grounds. Col. Davis and his medical staff made arrangements yesterday for an additional ward to care for the sick.

The pneumonia cases, it is asserted on competent authority, are due to hte lack of blankets and bedding when the regiment arrived in Springfield two weeks ago in the middle of a driving storm.

The medical supplies and camp comforts secured through Mrs. Frank O. Lowden and the volunteer Red Cross workers arrived in camp this afternoon. Gov. Lowden today sent out enough pipes and tobacco to attend to the wants of the regiment. The home towns of the different companies, through organized committees, have been sending in supplies, and the troops say now that they are not worried if the government supplies that were due two weeks ago never arrive.

COMFORTS FOR GUARDSMEN.

More comforts went to the soldiers at Springfield yesterday. Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, wife of the governor, returned to the capital with a hand hamper filled with medicine for coughs and colds. In a trunk that went on the same train there were gauze bandages, adhesive plaster, iodine, cotton, toothbrushes, and tooth paste. Twenty-five additional comfort bags went also.

By the end of this week there will be comfort bags for every soldier in Springfield, according to Mrs. Philip S. Doane. The committee on comforts, of which Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy is chairman, will make daily shipments. The committee on hospital supplies, of which Mrs. Doane is chairman, will see that the men are kept supplied with necessities for the hospital.

Report on Inspection.

Mrs. Louis Slosson, who took the big shipment to Springfield Friday night, inspected the hospitals and will make a report of conditions on her return to Chicago today. Mrs. Slosson is one of the instructors for the training in surgical dressings. She came to Chicago from Wolf, Wyo., to take up the work and offer her services to the Red Cross.

Girls of the Hyde Park and Wendell Phillips High schools have visited the Red Cross offices and volunteered their services. They will be given work sewing stomach binders and handkerchiefs.

JOHN POWELL'S FRIENDS SAY HE WILL SURRENDER

Friends of State Senator John M. Powell visited the office of Assistant State's Attorney Robert E. Hogan yesterday and informed him that Mr. Powell would be in Chicago soon and accept service on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of 15 year old Cecelia O'Connor.

Detectives are searching for Harry Martini on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Sophia Mackenbenn, 17 years old, Cecelia's chum. Charges against Martini and Powell and two men known as "Cupie" and "Mr. Hall" involve joy rides with Cecelia, Sophia, Eva Alcoba, and a fourth girl.

It was reported yesterday that Mr. Hogan knows who "Cupie" and "Mr. Hall" are. One of the men was known to the girls as "an aldermanic candidate," but Mr. Hogan says he has not proved this.

"I don't know whether this man was posing for the girl's benefit or not," he said.

Eva Alcoba was arrested early yesterday and corroborated the other girls' story that Powell, Martini, and two other men gave them joy rides to Forest Park and later took them to a hotel.

Mr. Turnbloom writes as follows:

"I am now driving my second King car—I bought a new King Eight March 1st. You may be assured that I had good reasons for investing in a King car the second time. I drove over 18,000 miles in my first King without a complaint, and I expect to surpass the record with the new car.

"The King is certainly the car of Satisfaction—and, you may add with equal truth, the car of Efficiency, the car of Economy and the car of Comfort. For great flexibility on high gear, quickness of acceleration, ease of operation, and in short for power, speed and elegance the King stands in a class by itself.

"I have compared my King car with cars of almost every make and none of them can equal the King in the important points that go to make a real car."

Acting With You and The Fruitvale Co.

Now Offers Wonderful Opportunity To Own Farm and Cash Income Home at Fruitvale

(The Garden Spot of Michigan)

We, "the Fruitvalers", send this message to you city people who are weary of the crush of crowds, the narrow flat, the smoky air and that everlasting toil for wages.

We want to tell you how the new Federal Farm Loan Bank established by our great-spirited government will actually advance money for you to secure a fertile, money making income home and garden at beautiful Fruitvale, in the very heart of Michigan—away from the city's noise and grime—yet only five hours from Chicago.

With practically no capital of your own, you can now leave the murk and grime of the busy streets and have a membership in this smiling, friendly community, where each man is an independent owner but enjoys the co-operative help of all.

The opportunity now offered to you is so great, so wonderful that you should at least get the information we will gladly send. We want more people like ourselves (we all came from the city, we were bookkeepers, office men and women, professional people and small shopkeepers) to join us as neighbors and farm owners in this clean, wholesome, prosperous settlement. IF YOU HAVE ONLY $100, or $50, or $25—as little as that, we have something to tell you—something that will show the way to a future you may have dreamed of but have hardly hoped to enjoy.

If you want to live in superb comfort where you hear the chirp of crickets and the songs of birds—where you own land that produces in marvelous plenty—cash crops 365 days a year—where your neighbors are your friends—where you can make more money—SIGN AND MAIL THE COUPON.

The Land—The Buildings—Chickens—Seed —EVERYTHING Complete

As a Fruitvaler you will come not as a pioneer to break the land and put up your buildings. You will step at once into a home and poultry garden complete—new—ready to live in—even down to firewood. Never before has the community idea been worked out like this. Never before such a chance for the man of small means to enjoy independence at once.

Let us tell you how a great organization with over $100,000 invested in buildings and ground alone, over $161,000 surplus, and $200,000 paid up capital guarantees you a deed in fee simple to 5 acres of land. A dwelling house. A modern chicken house for 350 hens—with trap nests and all necessary equipment (wire netting, drinking fountains, brooder stoves, etc.). Also 750 baby chicks of a fancy breed (all you need for first year). Feed to carry the chicks until they begin to lay. And besides all that—necessary outhouses, a well for drinking water, wood for your stove, and seed for your kitchen garden. Also the Famous Montmorency cherries and other cash producing fruits for 4 acres of your orchard. Let us tell you also about the big community incubator available to you as a member of the Fruitvalers. We will tell you all about this—in every detail—if you ask. Just sign and mail the coupon.

Here is a flock of Fruitvale chickens. Their owner gets 37½ cents per dozen for the eggs right on the farm.

City People Become Successful Farmers

This splendid co-operative idea goes even further. You will not be left to work out your own salvation. No experience necessary. Experts are on the ground to show you how to make money from the very start. They will tell you just how to go about everything. They will oversee your work. They will point out the short cuts to success. Learn how we (all former city people) have made a booming success under this system. We tell all about it in the literature which is yours for the asking.

Your Market At Your Door

Get information also on how you can sell all you raise—right from the farm—at your very door. No shipping to look after—no losses in transportation—no bother of any kind. Products sold at a big profit right on the spot. This is also a great idea in actual operation—an idea that brings you the money from your farm the very day you offer your eggs, your fruit, your vegetables—or anything else you produce. You will be interested in reading about this new way to merchandise farm products.

Community Spirit and Community Co-operation

We are all neighbors and friends. We have our clubhouse, where we meet for social enjoyment, and to exchange views and experiences on farming. While each is an independent owner, we have mutual interests. We co-operate with each other. And the big Fruitvale Company is back of us all—boosting us, opening markets for us, helping us to make more money than we ever made in the city.

There is room for more of you tired city people here. We will welcome you as Fruitvalers. The glad hand is ready for you. That Fruitvale farm is ready too. The big out of doors is here—the pure air which gives our children broad chests, bright eyes and pulsing health. We are all happy to be away from the merciless pressure of the city. We live our lives our way—and we are prosperous—we are making money.

Don't put this off a single day! The time will come when you are too slow for the city pace. Prepare for it with a Fruitvale farm where you can snap your fingers at bosses and time clocks. We want more good, industrious, honest, friendly people to join us. We have much to tell you about this wonderful home making opportunity.

What Fruitvalers Say:

Would I go back to the city to live? I never did really live in the city. I merely existed. And work? Slavery would be a better word for it. Here I live in my own way. I call no man "boss." My work is more like play—and I'm making good money out of it.

(Signed) WM. BREITZMAN.

Our ten-acre tract of land at Fruitvale is productive beyond our highest expectations and, since the selling arrangements are all looked after by the Fruitvale Co., we always make a good profit on our products.

(Signed) MR. AND MRS. D. R. TONEY.

City folks, this is the life. We've tried both kinds and we know. Go back to the grime, the hurry, the worry, fret and sweat of the city? Not us—not as long as Fruitvale is on the map.

(Signed) THORNTON P. MILLS.

ELKS GIVE $3,200 AND I. A. C. $2,500 FOR AMBULANCES

Mrs. Marcus Kavanagh Solicits Funds for Corps.

Mrs. Marcus Kavanagh, wife of Judge Kavanagh, is soliciting funds for ambulances for the American ambulance corps in France. An ambulance costs $1,600.

Money for two ambulances, $3,200, was appropriated at a meeting of Chicago lodge No. 4 of Elks last week. The funds were ordered at once and were collected yesterday. The bodies are to be made in France and the insignia of the Elks will be monogrammed on them. The men on the Elks' ambulance committee are Ralph Hamburger, Frank Loring, N. F. Hyland, E. C. Ryan, and Judge Kavanagh.

I. A. C. Raises $2,500.

Mrs. Kavanagh spoke at an impromptu gathering at the Illinois Athletic club and the members responded in amounts from $10 to $100, a total of $2,500 being raised in less than ten minutes. Enough to supply two cars will be forthcoming, it is said.

The Cook county real estate board has pledged one ambulance.

About Mrs. Kipling.

Mrs. Kavanagh became interested in the ambulance movement last week when she entertained Mrs. Arthur Wellesley Kipling, whose late husband was a cousin of Rudyard Kipling, and whose son, Arthur Wellesley Kipling Jr., is a captain of a section of the American ambulance corps. Mrs. Kipling, who herself donated a transport car, is touring American cities in the interest of the American ambulance corps.

Capt. Kipling is an enthusiastic American despite the fact that the family left New York over twenty years ago and have been living in a château in Normandie, where they have cared for many unfortunate war victims.

DENIED DIVORCE

Lincoln Bartlett Weeps When Wife Spurns His Plea for Reconciliation—Further Hearing April 23.

Mrs. Nina M. Bartlett was refused a divorce yesterday by Judge Marshall in the Superior court. The hearing was continued until April 23, when both sides will be given an opportunity to present further evidence.

Mrs. Bartlett in January filed a bill for divorce against Lincoln Bartlett, designer of gowns, charging cruelty. The case has been before Judge Marshall for the last week. Mrs. Bartlett on the stand charged her husband with several acts of cruelty. Mr. Bartlett took the stand on Friday and denied all his wife's allegations, saying his mother - in - law was the cause of much of his marital troubles.

When he heard the decision Bartlett turned to his wife, and, placing his hands on her arms, drew her toward him.

"I want her to come and live with me, judge," he said. "I will do everything I can to make her happy."

But Mrs. Bartlett moved away. Bartlett buried his face in his hands and walked slowly to the rear of the courtroom. When he turned around tears were rolling down his cheeks. He grasped little Lincoln Jr., who was playing around the courtroom, and pressed him to his breast.

Most of those present, while in favor of the principle of the bill, advised that it be amended to provide more definite means of administering the fund called for. Senator Glackin was present.

Mellen, was divorced by his first wife in Chicago in March, 1916, and married her the following month, Mrs. Myrtle Mellen had her marriage annulled today. Nation Must Be Dry to Win War, J. Frank Hanly Says

Indianapolis, Ind., April 14.—"National prohibition during the war is imperative if we are to meet, in a right way, the responsibilities we face," said J. Frank Hanly, Prohibition candidate for president last year, in a statement today. "Waste of food in manufacturing of alcohol in any form for beverage purposes at this time is little less than criminal."

LOWDEN ISSUES A PROCLAMATION ON FOOD TODAY

Will Warn Illinois of a Shortage and Appeal for Large Crops.

Springfield, Ill., April 14.—Gov. Lowden finished the first draft of his food proclamation this afternoon and will give it out for publication tomorrow afternoon.

The document will set forth the threatened shortage of food in Illinois and will appeal to agriculturists to raise the biggest crops possible. The labor famine in agricultural pursuits will also be dealt with.

Gov. Lowden today said school authorities had responded generally to the suggestion that high school boys be released from class work in order to work on farms and that they be allowed to go without loss of credits.

"In the smaller towns in the state the boys are for the most part more or less familiar with farm conditions and farm work," the governor said. "These young fellows can be of great help in raising crops this summer, and the sooner they get to work the better."

Western Farmers Add Acreage.

St. Paul, Minn., April 14.—Patriotic response to President Wilson's appeal for increased production of foodstuffs is resounding throughout the northwest. Reports today from Minnesota, the Dakotas, and Montana showed that greater acreage than ever before will be sown by farmers, while gardening has been given marked impetus in nearly every city and town.

Kansas Defense Council Named.

Topeka, Kas., April 14.—Gov. Capper tonight named thirty prominent Kansans as members of the newly created state council of defense. The purpose of the council is to keep in touch with the national council, agricultural departments, with the mayors of all Kansas cities, and with the schools and other organizations in the interest of the conservation and production of food.

Urges Co-operative Farming.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Representative Lever of South Carolina, chairman of the committee on agriculture, has submitted a plan to Secretary of Agriculture Houston whereby the government may aid in the increased production of foodstuffs.

It is proposed that the federal government, through some board or commission similar to the federal farm loan board, shall acquire farm land, stock it with machinery and seed, and induce tenants to work it on shares under a system of cultivation to be prescribed by the soil and crop experts of the department of agriculture.

SUFFRAGISTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—A nation-wide census of suffragists classified by the kinds of war service they are able to give is now being taken as the first step in the carrying out of the program of the National American Woman Suffrage association.

Radiating from a central committee in Washington and extending through subcommittees of state organizations, all under the general supervision of Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis, the work of taking the census is now going on.

When completed it will be an accurate record of the women who are able to go away from home as volunteer or paid workers and those who are able to work at home only.

'GO ON KNITTING,' NAVY ADVISES CHICAGO WOMEN

Comforts Needed and Appreciated, Says Capt. Moffett.

Members of the women's branch of the Navy league denied yesterday reports that the knitted garments which women are making for sailors are not needed. Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss, chairman of the women's department, received the following letter from Capt. W. A. Moffett of the Great Lakes Naval Training station:

"My Dear Mrs. Countiss: I write again in behalf of this naval station and the officers and men under my command to express to you our sincere thanks for the great assistance that the Chicago chapter of the women's section of the Navy league is rendering the men of the navy. The many articles made by these patriotic women are greatly appreciated by the men.

"Some of the articles are being kept at the station to be used permanently here. Most of them, however, are being retained by the men and will be taken to sea with them, where they will be of great use on board ship and when they are on exposed duty.

"I acknowledge the receipt recently of three bales of sweaters and packages of knitted goods and other articles, which are now being distributed and are greatly appreciated by the recipients."

Scores of letters have come to the Navy league from the recruits who have been given the knitted goods, and in the future the women doing the work will be asked to pin their names and addresses to their work because of the interesting character of the letters of thanks. The Navy league women have an army of workers knitting for the sailors.

STAGE FOOD PLAY DAILY IN LARGE BERLIN HOTELS

Guest Disrupts Routine to Get Three Ounces of Meat.

BY OSCAR KING DAVIS.

[Copyright: 1917: In U. S. and Canada by the New York Times Company.]

The main dining room of the Kaiserhof hotel in Berlin was brightly lighted and fairly well filled with the usual crowd of serious minded German men and women intent upon getting the last least particle of food which it was possible to obtain at one meal.

Dining is no longer a matter to be taken lightly in Germany. It requires sober attention and receives it. You cannot take a meal in a public place in Berlin or any other German city without noticing the concentration with which the men and women at the tables around you devote themselves to the business of the moment.

There is absolutely no waste of food. One thing the regulations for food control have accomplished, if nothing more. They have made it certain that what food there is in Germany is eaten, and none of it thrown away.

Last Drop of Soup.

It is quite the thing, for instance, and one sees it done repeatedly, to pick up the emptied soup plate, and, holding it on edge, let the last remnant of the little portion of soup which had been there drip slowly and carefully into the waiting spoon. I have seen well dressed women, and men in the uniform of the German army and navy, do that repeatedly, utterly oblivious of the notice their action might attract from any other quarter of the room. And after they have thus drained the last drop that would run out by itself I have seen the plate most carefully scrubbed clean by a sop of bread, especially if it happened to be a thick soup instead of the watery decoction called "draktbrühe," and purporting to be a beef extract, but suggesting to me the chemical laboratory rather than the butcher shop.

Scrubbing the plate with bread to get the last drop of sauce or gravy is a common thing in German restaurants nowadays. No one thinks anything about it. Attention is much more quickly attracted to the folly and extravagance of any one who should permit a particle of such food to go back to the kitchen on his plate. That is waste that is well-nigh criminal. It isn't done by the best people.

I knew some people at the hotel in Berlin who, having secured a liberal stock of butter from Copenhagen by virtue of being foreigners, used occasionally to be a little liberal with some of it in the dining room and deliberately leave little portions on their plates. That used always to attract attention from other tables, and especially from the waiters, who used to watch [illegible] or eight seats eyes to see the one who was fortunate enough to be serving at that table get those little pieces of butter safely stowed where he could put them to the best use for himself when the opportunity came.

"Kicked" About Food.

But this is not telling what happened that evening in the main dining room of the Kaiserhof. The Kaiserhof had among its guests that evening the usual throng of army and navy officers and German civilian officials, together with its sprinkling of Germans from outside of Berlin, and here and there the American or other foreigner. Suddenly, almost in the center of the great room, right under the huge chandelier and in a spot where everybody else in the room could see, there arose an extraordinary clamor.

In tones that carried through the whole dining room the excited guest declared he had ordered roast beef—the only kind of meat on the bill of fare that evening. He had delivered to the waiter meat card sections entitling him to 100 grams (about ⅓ ounces) of roast beef. The waiter had brought him one thin, skimpy little slice of meat, with all the blood and juice cooked out of it—a slice that certainly did not weigh 100 grams or anything like it. It was an outrage and a shame. He demanded redress and the rest of his 100 grams of meat and he wanted them both then and there.

And the Guest Won.

The directors and the managers and the head waiter and the waiter on duty [illegible] or eight other waiters crowded around, and all shouted at once, but the outraged guest shouted the loudest. Obviously he was going to win the engagement. And he did.

Weighing the Meat.

Presently the crowd about his table untangled itself, and there emerged from it a procession, formed almost in military order, headed by the director and the head waiter, which marched in solid column toward the kitchen. There was a moment or two of anxious suspense, while the other guests manifested in various ways their sympathetic interest in him who had suffered this indignity. Then from the kitchen reappeared that procession of director, head waiters, managers, and waiters from the rank and file, bearing with them a huge great pair of scales, built out of brass on the first principle of the balance. There was a tall upright in the middle, sustaining the long arms from which depended on slender chains the two wide spreading brass pans, one for the weights and the other for the article to be weighed.

The head waiter picked up the 100 gram weight and duly and solemnly placed it in one of the weighing pans. Instantly that side of the scales went down and the other up. Then, under the fascinated and unwinking gaze of that vast room full of observers, he selected a fork, picked up that innocent slice of roast beef, and dropped it gently and reverently into the other weighing pan.

A distinctly audible sigh went up from all around the room. "Ah," the witnesses were saying, half to themselves, "now we shall see!" They did.

The 100 gram weight was not lifted.

Judgment of Scales.

The dining room of the Kaiserhof simply exploded. The outraged guest shouted louder than ever. The whole room talked and gesticulated and shouted with him.

The directors and the managers and the head waiter and the other waiters were overcome with chagrin and discomfiture.

This manifest triumph for the outraged guest presently soothed a little the excitement of the other diners, who began to remember the imperative business for which they had come there, and resumed their table places. Then another procession came from the kitchen and headed toward the table of the outraged guest. In his hand the head waiter carried a plate, and on that plate there rested a slice of roast beef.

Was it a 100 gram slice?

Never in all the world.

It was a microscopic wafer, cut from the roast with all the skill and training of the most experienced cook in the Kaiserhof service, and it represented with almost mathematical accuracy the deficiency in the other slice detected by the gastronomic sleuth who had raised the outcry of protest.

Thus justice was done and the majesty of the food law vindicated in the Kaiserhof hotel.

WAR DON'TS

Dr. P. J. H. Farrell Names a Few of the Things Women Physicians Who Go to the Front Should Not Do.

SOME "don'ts" for women doctors who go to the front were issued Friday night by Dr. P. J. H. Farrell in a meeting in his office in the Field Annex building. Thirty women physicians were present. These are some of the things they must not do when they join the United States army medical corps.

Don't try to be a "man." Proper uniforms will be furnished.

Don't question others. Obey them.

Don't be late for mess. You may find the quarters locked.

Don't trail the bugle. Reveille is at 5:30 a. m.

Don't ask questions. Get busy.

Dr. Farrell believes that he is unusually qualified to tell the women what not to do because the first group of women physicians used in the United States army were assigned to him in 1898 in the Philippines, he said.

"There is a vast amount of work that women physicians can do," he said. "One of the greatest helps is in treating contagious diseases. Measles and mumps particularly are endemic with every mobilization. There are also cases of scarlet fever, pneumonia, acute influenza, and bronchitis, and other diseases. These are the diseases with which women have daily experience, and wherever a woman physician is available to care for them a man is relieved for the actual work of the trenches, where women are not permitted."

Aged Woman Found Dead.

Mrs. Marie Bradford, 84 years old, was found dead yesterday in the basement in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Addie Hula, with whom she lived at 2036 West One Hundred and Tenth street. It was presumed that death was due to natural causes.

DOWNSTATE MEN HAMPER LAW ON PRIVATE BANKS

Force Amendment of State Control Bill to Apply Only to Chicago.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—The downstate private bank interests, working as they have worked in every recent session of the legislature, seem to have accomplished their purpose of staving off a private banks law that would apply to them. They have had an active and persistent lobby that got results during the week just closing. It went home yesterday thoroughly pleased with its accomplishments.

In the face of an opinion from Attorney General Brundage to the effect that a bill applicable only to Chicago's private banking situation would endanger the constitutionality of such an act, the senate committee on banks and banking reported out a bill that runs only as to the city. This is precisely what was wanted by the downstate private banks crowd.

Regard Bill as Makeshift.

It is generally believed that a Chicago-only bill is the only kind that can be passed, and men who want some kind of legislation enacted at this session are disposed to accept the senate bill and take the chances of extending it to cover the entire state at the next legislative session.

The downstate lobby will not listen to any argument to the effect that the downstate banks need as much publicity and regulation as do the Chicago banks. The evidence of such failures as the Tonica and Duquoin banks cuts no figure with the thoroughly organized downstate private bankers.

If the senate bill is passed it will mean that such an act will have to be voted on by the entire state in November, 1918. The suspicion remains that the downstate private bankers would go the limit in defeating the referendum, fearing a legislature that would not react to their demands and that would enlarge the scope of the measure as quickly as possible.

Provisions of the Bill.

The senate bill provides that all private banks in Chicago shall come to a $200,000 capitalization within five years from the adoption of the law by referendum vote.

The insistence of Representative Thon, who introduced a private banks bill early in the session, that his bill alone be shoved forward caused serious trouble in the house committee and has complicated the situation. Chairman Pace and a strong minority of the house committee want a state-wide bill, if such can be secured. There is a chance that a combination can be effected that will get such a measure, but this now seems to be doubtful.

Gov. Lowden is insistent that the legislature enact a private banks bill. He is not committed to any particular kind.

Burglars Get 15 Gowns from Mrs. Dolly Matters

Burglars broke into the apartment of Mrs. Dolly Ledgerwood Mathers, 801 Drexel square, Thursday and took fifteen evening gowns, a set of furs, and a seal skin coat. The men ignored silverware and jewelry in the flat.

THIEF GETS $25; GIRL LOSES SUIT

Maybe the thief who robbed Miss Josephine Fournier, 2100 Forty-ninth street, Cicero, in the Boston store yesterday may change to see this and return the money. It's an off chance. But one never can tell.

Miss Fournier is an orphan. She works hard in a knitting factory. She had paid $5 down on a spring suit. She took $25 to the store yesterday afternoon to pay the remainder. She stepped into the wash room.

She left her pocket book with the money lying beneath her cloak on a table while she stood at a mirror. When she put on her cloak her pocket book was gone and with it her dreams of a new spring suit.

No Car Has Equaled the HUDSON SUPER-SIX

Judge for yourself what these things mean to a car you buy to keep. If they mean little, a Super-Six means little. But, if they mean much, a Super-Six means everything to you.

The Super-Six—controlled by Hudson patents—last year won all worth-while records.

That is, stock-car records in particular. Records made by cars just like you buy. And records that prove endurance.

Among these are speed records—one as high as 102.56 miles per hour.

Also hill-climbing records—including the world's greatest, at Pike's Peak, where a Hudson Super-Six made the best time.

Many great endurance records—including 1819 miles in 24 hours. That broke all like records by 52 per cent.

And a Super-Six twice broke the great transcontinental record in one continuous 7000-mile round trip.

Let's Analyze Them

Those are the standard tests—and always have been—for proving motor car supremacy.

Not that buyers want such speed, such power, or even such hill-climbing ability. But they want endurance, and these super-strains best prove it.

And a man who buys a fine car, as a matter of pride, wants the greatest car that's built. These tests are designed to show that.

It Is Exclusive

All the Super-Six advantages are exclusive to Hudson cars. This motor is patented.

All its advantages are due to minimized friction, the cause of motor wear. By reducing this friction—almost to nil—we have practically doubled motor endurance. Thus we added 80 per cent, at a single step, to the efficiency of a Light Six.

No matter what rivals claim for other types, the records show the Super-Six excels them. If the Super-Six could be used by all, other types would very likely vanish.

New Attractions

We have spent 18 months in bringing every Hudson detail up to the Super-Six standard.

The ablest artists and craftsmen obtainable have given their best to Hudson bodies. Every model typifies their highest ideals in style. Each is a study in motor car beauty.

The exquisite finish, the upholstery, the luxurious cushions and dainty touches all show a master hand.

This year we add a great gasoline saver—shutters on the front. Our patent pneumatic carburetor is self-adjusting to every engine speed, which, by controlling the heat of the motor, in part overcomes the disadvantages of the constantly falling quality of gasoline.

So there is now a wealth of reasons for choosing the Super-Six. Yet note how far it undersells many cars it out-performs.

But thousands who recognize these facts will delay and be disappointed. It was so last spring—it will be so this spring. When one type so dominates, there are never cars enough. See us now.

ASK EMERGENCY LAWS ON LIQUOR DURING THE WAR

Saloon Foes Urge No Sales to Troops and Sharp Limit on Traffic.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—The national legislative committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America has adopted a program for war emergency anti-liquor legislation. The program embraces the following proposed legislation:

1. No sale of liquors to soldiers and sailors. The sale or furnishing of liquor as a beverage to any soldier or sailor (officer or enlisted man) in uniform and the sale in any military station or naval camp or other place which is used for training or mobilizing the military or naval forces should be prohibited.

2. "Dry" zones around camps. To prevent the liquor traffic from preying upon our soldier and sailor boys in training and mobilization camps, a "dry" zone should be established around these places.

Would Limit Using Grains.

3. Interstate commerce in liquors. To further limit during the war the power for harm of the beverage liquor traffic, either prohibit the interstate shipment of all intoxicating liquors and all grains to manufacture such liquors or let congress include intoxicating liquors in its designation of narcotics, habit forming drugs, agreeable to the proved teachings of science, and place them under the provisions of the Harrison anti-narcotic drug act.

4. Food conservation in war crisis. Congress has power to provide for the "common defense and general welfare." It is believed that under this power congress may prohibit grain and food material from being used to make liquor during the war, as well as conserve the fighting power of the nation by effecting the prohibition of the liquor traffic. Under this and especially the taxing power of the federal government a prohibitive tax may be levied on the manufacture and sale of liquors.

Suggest Prohibiting Traffic.

5. Prohibition. The full scope of this power to provide for the common defense and general welfare in time of war is problematical. Its use in securing previous war measures justifies us in indulging the belief that legislation prohibiting the liquor traffic during the war would be sustained, as it would tremendously increase the nation's fighting force and safeguard her resources. Some of the above measures are now pending in congress in various forms as separate bills and amendments to military and naval bills.

The committee further makes this statement:

"War conditions require a nation to be at its best. The experience of our allies proves intoxicating liquors not only injure the health, efficiency, and endurance of the soldiers and sailors but decrease the resources and the power of the people at home to furnish the needed supplies."

BOYS RALLY AT CALL FOR ARMY TO FIGHT FAMINE

Students and Farmers Ask Board for Jobs and Help.

Farmers and boys responded yesterday to the proposal of the school board to give school credit to all boys over 16 who go to work on truck farms. The rooms of the board of education were kept open all day to take care of the inquiries. Numerous letters were received, some from farmers in other states looking for boys to help them.

One girl responded. She is Miss Madge Walborn of 6853 South Wood street, a student in the Parker High school. She wrote to President Loeb:

"Will you please tell me whether girls are allowed to go in on that garden proposition? I will be 16 years old in June, and am in my second year at the Parker High school. I want to help my country."

Principal Offers Plan.

Walter F. Slocum, principal of the Carl Schurz High school, has a plan whereby the boys of his school may continue with their studies and still do something toward raising food.

"We have three acres of school yard," he told President Loeb. "We should like to cultivate that land. The boys will take turns guarding it at night from vandals, and there will be plenty of students to do the work."

Mr. Loeb approved the plan.

Would Plant School Yard.

"We have many school yards that ought to be placed under cultivation at this critical time," said Mr. Loeb. "In Europe they are planting potatoes in the parks and in every available spot. Where our yards are not composed of cinders and sand, we should plant them with vegetables and permit the school children to do the work."

James Watson, special agent for the board, is outlining a campaign of protection for school gardens.

Supt. Shoop said: "There is a great deal of enthusiasm and interest in the plan among the boys. Its chief value will, of course, be educational. We expect to have full lists of the boys who will take up the work by Monday."

SHE WAS TAUNTED AS WAR BRIDE

Miss Helen Melhalic of 1261 North Macedonia street this week obtained a license to marry Peter Donarski, who is awaiting sentence before Judge Pam for burglary.

Miss Melhalic showed Judge Pam the license yesterday after he had refused to parole Donarski. She said she was confident he would be paroled and that was the reason she stood the taunts of the spectators in the county building.

When Judge Pam refused at this time to parole Donarski, the bride-to-be and his mother, Mrs. R. Donarski, created a scene. Fourteen years ago Donarski was convicted three or four times on charges of robbery. From that time until he became intoxicated and assisted in the burglary of the saloon his record has been clean. Judge Pam continued the case.

ROOSEVELT'S SON WEDDED; EXPECTS CALL TO COLORS

Boston, Mass., April 14.—[Special]—Archibald B. Roosevelt, son of Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, and Miss Grace S. Lockwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Lockwood of this city, were married at noon today in Emmanuel Episcopal church by the Rev. Elwood Worcester, the rector.

Among those attending the ceremony were Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby, and Quentin Roosevelt, who attended the bridegroom. Miss Mary Hunnewell, of this city, was the bride's principal attendant.

The date of the wedding was set forward because of the expectation of an early call to the colors by Mr. Roosevelt, who is a member of the officers' reserve corps at Harvard university.

Court permits, waiving the state law which requires that five days must elapse between the filing of a declaration of intention of marriage and the issuance of the license were obtained this week in Springfield, where Mr. Roosevelt has been making his temporary home, and in this city.

AVIATOR BUILDS DEVICE TO DRILL FLYERS ON EARTH

The old fashioned "teeter totter" gave to A. C. Beach, inventor and professional aviator, 1650 Monroe street, an idea on which he based the invention of an electrical device that he believes will be of material aid to the government in training aviators.

He designed the device, he said yesterday, to enable licensed aviators to acquire proficiency in handling an airplane in any conditions and to so accustom aviators to handling a plane that its control is instinctive.

The invention includes a pedestal on which are two radiating arms resembling a double teeter. The teeter is maintained in unstable equilibrium by a series of propellers on a horizontal plane. The propellers are electrically operated and are coupled to the controls of the electric motors driving the propellers. The airplane is mounted on the pedestal, its controls are connected with the motors of the practicing device. Barring the straight up and down movement, the aviator can thus practice balancing his airplane in almost any position. Briefly, he can learn to balance in conditions similar to those of flying. It eliminates accident and allows beginners to practice in all weathers.

Age 40--$17.80

The only element of real value in any Life Insurance Policy is the protection. You pay a high price for the so-called investment features of a policy, but you can get no benefit from them without penalizing or entirely destroying your life insurance.

When bankers study life insurance as a part of their business, they will keep a large percentage of the money paid out, in their locality, for investment and limited payment policies, in the savings departments of their own banks, and the community in which they live will be correspondingly benefited.

After May 1st, All Cars New Price

Last Chance for You to Own a "World's Non-Stop Record Champion Car" at the Old Price

Constant rise in cost of steel and other raw materials is forcing up the price of the Maxwell Car, because the Maxwell Company has refused to cheapen by a single penny anything that goes into the making of the "world's non-stop record champion car."

The factory has agreed to let us have our April allotment cars (ordered in March) at the old price; that is why we can give you for a few days more the biggest bargain in a real automobile ever offered in the history of the automobile industry.

We can give YOU from now until May 1st to own this world's champion car at the old price.

After May 1st Identically the Same Car—But at the New Advanced Price

Not a particle of difference in the car itself,
—the same model and design in every detail,
—the same super-product of the best automobile experience, the finest engineering skill and craftsmanship, backed by one of the largest factories in the world,
—the same speedy five-passenger, roomy, comfortable, easy-riding, beautiful automobile,
—the same famous record-making Maxwell motor,
—the same powerful motor that "laughs at hills,"
—the same Maxwell car that by its many records of 150,000 miles actual running (which equals 20 years' regular service) has earned for itself everywhere the proud title, "The World's Greatest Motor Car Value."

A Car of Endurance, Economy and Amazing Mileage Per Gallon of Gas

For 22,023 miles—for 44 days and nights—a Maxwell car ran without once stopping the motor.

There is the world's non-stop record for endurance, as testified to by the American Automobile Association.

Monthly Expenses $8.19

For 9,700 miles Mrs. Miriam Seeley, Professor at the Oregon Agricultural College, drove her Maxwell on a total expense account, including gas, oil and repairs, of 1½ cents per mile, making an average monthly running expense of $8.19.

There's a record expense performance—often lowered by hundreds of Maxwell owners every month.

When You Buy a Maxwell You Buy a Real Car

You don't have to figure up another two or three hundred dollars on "extras" when you buy a Maxwell car.

You get what you pay for and what you are entitled to—a thoroughly up-to-date automobile, complete in every respect.

You know the whole story now—the story of the increased price next month and the story of your last chance to buy at $635.

If you buy in May you'll get the same car exactly. BUT the price will be $665.

TODAY the Maxwell is $635.

The difference is the premium for your prompt action.

U.S. MUST FACE REVIVED BRITAIN IN TRADE FIGHT

English Plan to Dominate Commerce of the World After End of War.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[London Correspondent of The Tribune.]

LONDON, March 24.—What American business may expect in the way of international competition after the war may be learned in some degree from the policy outlined by Sir Albert Stanley, president of the British board of trade, in a recent address before the British Association of Chambers of Commerce.

At the present time, when there are few so optimistic as to venture a date for the conclusion of hostilities, British business men are looking forward with great satisfaction upon the unprecedented opportunities of market extension and control which will be theirs upon the materialization of peace.

Authorities on the subject say that England's position in the world of trade after the war will be greater than ever before in the last fifty years. Some even go so far as to declare that the war and the war only is responsible for resurrecting British commercialism from the lethargy which characterized it before the nation was put to the test of fire and sword.

Now Eager to Please.

The peculiar disinterestedness that existed heretofore between the British merchant and prospective trade is fast disappearing. Where before the attitude could best be described by the phrase, "If you don't like it you don't have to buy it," the disposition of the modern English merchant is rather, "Let me show you something else. I am sure we have just what you want."

Prehistoric methods of business, long intrenched with an insular tradition worship, are giving way speedily to the ways and means of moderns. Doddering old bookkeepers who perched on high stools in poorly lighted cubbyholes and pored over ancient business tomes or added columns with a pencil and their fingers are being supplanted by ledger copywriting machines, adding machines, and card index systems.

War has made this necessary. War has been unkindly to old customs and old men. New blood and young blood and new life have been injected. Efficiency that heretofore knocked in vain has been admitted, and economic wastes have been plugged up. There has been a tightening of the lines along scientific principles. Wasteful duplications have been eliminated, time saving devices installed, energies coördinated, routing systems implanted, closer organization perfected—in a word, great progress has been made toward the ultimate socialization of industries and economical and efficient distribution.

New Competition for U. S.

This is the new England that America will have to compete with in the trade war that will follow the conflict of violence. This is the national effort that the British boards of trades, the chambers of commerce, and the government of the empire intend fostering and developing. There is to be one special organization which will deal solely with after war problems that are beyond present anticipations, according to Sir Albert.

"Steps have been taken to establish an organization to be known as the British Trade corporation," the president of the board of trade said. "It will be given a charter, and its principal object will be to establish a large credit bank or banks to develop British trade abroad. The corporation will have on its board representatives of industry and commerce and also trade experts.

"An information bureau and intelligence department will be attached to the trade corporation. It will be capable of examining new projects and extending credit if needed.

"Higher wages have come to stay. It is to the advantage of employers and of the country that they should continue after the war. The British workman is as good as any workman in the world." The speaker further referred to the importance of the greater development of electrical generation plants and the coördination of the transportation facilities of the country. Sir Algernon Firth, the new president of the Association of Chambers of Commerce, in his inaugural address urged closer organization of the business interests to take care of post-war taxation and improve industrial and commercial opportunities.

All in all, the movement means that England is planning to get her share of the world's trade after the war, and the advance knowledge of her plans in this direction might offer serious food for thought for American interests that fondle similar ambitions.

A MOTHER'S ACT

She Needs Her Son, but She Lets Him Help His Country.

CAPT. HARRY STINE of the Seventh Illinois exhibited yesterday a letter he had received from the mother of one of the boys in Company I. With pride in the enlisted man and the enlisted man's mother, Capt. Stine gave out this copy:

Dear Captain:

I saw in the papers some time ago that the company is going to muster out those men with dependent families. My son belongs to Company I, and if he is needed at this time and the company is called out I feel that it is our duty to let him go. We will get along.

If everybody wanted to stay home there would be no one to go, and, too, he has belonged to it three years, and it is really his place at this time. I would rather you would not tell him I wrote, but tell him you called up and asked if he was needed at home, and I told you that he could go if he was called.

Yours very truly.

WILMETTE ASKED TO DEFEAT NEW TROLLEY GRANT

Opposition to the proposed new franchise of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Electric railroad has developed in Wilmette, and citizens have been asked by those fighting the ordinance to go to the polls on Tuesday and defeat it. It is alleged that high speed of trains, freight carrying, and other features, are dangerous to children and to the welfare of the village.

The village trustees have issued a statement in support of the ordinance explaining that the speed of trains will remain at fifteen miles an hour and no freight trains will be permitted save those used in the maintenance of the road.

The trustees also point out that the revenue will be far greater than if the present franchise remains in force. It provides for no revenue in the next six years.

LEO PFAELZER, PACKER, DIES

Leo Pfaelzer, who rose during the twelve years of his business career from office boy to president of a large packing company, died yesterday following a severe attack of tonsilitis. He was born in Chicago in 1880, and after graduating from high school, worked as office boy in the firm of J. & B. Moos, tobacco manufacturers.

After his father's death ten years ago he took control of the Louis Pfaelzer & Sons Packing company.

His mother, Mrs. Louis Pfaelzer, survives him.

MAYOR BACKS UP MRS. ROWE; FIRES SEVEN SHE FIRED

Rules Employment Bureau Jobs Are Illegal and Orders Discharge.

On orders from Mayor Thompson, Health Commissioner Robertson yesterday discharged the seven employés of the city employment bureau on the ground their employment was illegal.

Last Saturday an attempt to abolish the department, of which James W. Calley is the head, was made by Mrs. Louise Osborne Rowe, commissioner of public welfare.

Back and Forth.

When the finance committee refused to appropriate for the continuance of Mrs. Rowe's department, it transferred the employment bureau, which had been under her jurisdiction, to the health department.

Last Saturday letters discharging the seven members were sent out signed by Mrs. Rowe and Deputy Commissioner of Health Koehler, but within an hour this order was rescinded and later Dr. Robertson said the matter would remain as if was until the mayor returned.

Ruled Illegal.

The mayor returned last night and held a conference with Dr. Robertson, informing him that inasmuch as the employment of these seven persons had been held illegal by the law department a letter should be sent to each of them informing them their services were dispensed with.

GOMPERS TO LEAD ANTI-INJUNCTION MEETING HERE

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be the chief speaker at a meeting of representatives of Chicago labor organizations in the Garrick theater May 6 to protest against the issuance of anti-picketing injunctions during strikes.

Under the Clayton act, the federal courts are prohibited from issuing such injunctions, with the result that employers affected by strikes have gone to the state courts for them. At the present time a bill to take this power from the state courts is pending.

Labor leaders declare such injunctions "are used as strikebreaking measures to deprive workers of their constitutional rights," and resolutions denouncing the documents will be drawn up at the meeting. Judge Baldwin, who has sentenced several girls to jail for violations of his injunction during the present garment workers' strike, and Judges Holdom and Smith, who have issued such injunctions in other strikes, will come in for criticism at the meeting.

Bankruptcy Petitions Filed.

Plumber, plasterer, barber, clerk all filed petitions in the United States District court yesterday asking that they be declared bankrupts. They were: Plumber, Charles Haigh, liabilities $4,369, assets $1,320; plasterer, Daniel W. Edgar, liabilities $6,727, assets $405; barber, Otto J. Griesel, liabilities $753, assets none; and clerk, Albert H. Laub, liabilities $270, assets $100.

RECEIVER NAMED IN BOSTON FOR ROYAL ARCANUM

Member Charges Fund in Reserve Illegally Administered.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—Thomas J. Boynton, formerly attorney general of Massachusetts, was appointed receiver of the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum by Federal Judge Aldrich today.

The appointment was made on petition of Arthur L. Hobart of Braintree, a member of the order, who holds a death certificate calling for $500. Hobart alleged that the reserve fund of the organization, amounting to $3,800,000, had been illegally administered and would be entirely depleted within two years unless the court interfered.

He asked that an injunction be issued restraining the officers from further administering the funds and that the receiver wind up the affairs of the council.

Holds Action Not Justified.

New York, April 14.—Samuel N. Hoag, supreme regent of the Royal Arcanum, said here today that the appointment in Boston of a receiver was without justification and that an effort would be made to vacate the receivership.

"The appointment was absolutely without notice to the order," he said. "Our order is both commercially and actuarially solvent, with all death claims promptly paid and with a cash surplus of $4,000,000 over and above all known obligations."

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Laura Clark Dead; Odd Request Fulfilled

Mrs. Laura Hedrick Clark, 2027 Prairie avenue, wife of Andrew G. Clark, died April 5 in New Orleans. Her body was cremated in Chicago yesterday, and the ashes will be taken to Marquette, Mich. Mrs. Clark was a charter member of the Chicago Woman's club. It was her request that nothing be said of her death until her body was cremated and members of the club were not informed that she had died.

Mrs. Clark was a member of the Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. She would have been 71 years old yesterday. Chicago had been her home for the last forty-five years. Surviving Mrs. Clark are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Paul G. McIntire of New York, and a son, Capt. Paul H. Clark of the United States army.

Before her death Mrs. Clark prepared the form of funeral service, which was conducted by her husband in New Orleans. It consisted of Tennyson's poem, "Crossing the Bar"; the twenty-third psalm, and the lord's prayer.

JOHN G. JOHNSON, widely known lawyer, died yesterday at Philadelphia. Death was due to heart disease. He was 77 years old. Mr. Johnson ranked high in his profession, having been retained largely by corporations in many of the great legal cases before the Supreme court of the United States in the last twenty years. He refused positions in presidential cabinets and twice declined offers of appointment to the Supreme bench.

PROTECT YOUR HOUSE
as the Railroads Protect the Fruit they Carry

TAKE a lesson from the railroads. Think how their wonderful refrigerator-cars bring us tropical fruits in dead-of-winter and keep our meats in prime condition during sizzling summer.

Build that new home of yours the same way. Have it warm in winter and cool in summer. You can do this simply by lining the walls, partitions and floors with the greatest of all thermal-insulators—

LINOFELT
BETWEEN YOU AND THE WEATHER

Linofelt is used by leading railroads to insulate their refrigerator-cars, and it is producing wonderfully satisfactory results.

Linofelt is a building quilt of flax fibre between two sheets of tough Kraft paper, 38 times more effective than best red rosin building paper. Pays its way in 2 seasons in coal saving. Deadens sound. Rotproof, verminproof, odorless; practically indestructible. Architects recommend it.

32-page book FREE
Tells just what Linofelt is—what it does and how any workman can apply it. Prospective home-builders should not fail to read it.

It should be borne in mind by the thousands of contestants that we wanted the best lists of uses for Kibler's All 'Round Oil as well as the best names for the boy. By the best lists, however, we did not mean the largest number of uses. A good, practical list of twenty-five uses might be better than a hurriedly compiled list of twenty-five hundred impractical uses.

We wish to thank each and every one of the thousands of contestants who helped us make this contest such a brilliant success.

EASY WAY TO BE PATRIOTIC: PAY TAX IN ADVANCE

Government Asks for the Money as Soon as Possible.

Julius F. Smietanka, collector of internal revenue, yesterday sent out appeals to the patriotism of those who pay government taxes. While these taxes are not due until June 15, the collector believes they should be paid at once, so the government may have use of the money at the earliest possible time.

Letter to Taxpayers.

This letter is being sent to federal taxpayers:

"In view of the war conditions, the government will appreciate the prompt payment of taxes shown to be due by the notice herewith, if the taxpayer receiving this notice is able to make such payment without undue inconvenience.

Puts It Up to Them.

"The commissioner of internal revenue has no power under the law to make any rebate or discount on such anticipated payments, but hopes that in view of the conditions now facing the country a ready and large response may be made to this request."

A copy of the letter has been attached to each notice to taxpayers that tax payments will be due June 15.

MOONEY 'EXPOSE' AROUSES ANGER OF CHICAGO LABOR

Federation to Discuss Today Alleged Frameup in Frisco.

Indignation was expressed by members of Chicago labor organizations following the publication yesterday of charges of a conspiracy between the police, district attorney's office, and traction interests in San Francisco, by which Thomas J. Mooney was convicted and sentenced to death after being tried for planting a bomb in the preparedness parade in the coast city last July. Mooney had been active in organizing street car employés in San Francisco.

According to the charges of Chicago labor leaders, published in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, F. E. Rigell was induced by Frank C. Oxman, one of the chief witnesses against Mooney, to go to San Francisco to testify he was with Oxman when, according to the latter's testimony, he saw Mooney at the scene of the bomb explosion just before it occurred.

Rigell, in a confession obtained by Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, declares he was in Niagara Falls on the day of the explosion, and that, after his refusal to testify, he was paid $150 as "hush money" by District Attorney C. M. Fickert of San Francisco.

Chicago Labor Protest Today.

Voicing of the intense feeling of labor members over what they claim was "a gigantic frameup" to convict Mooney will take place this afternoon at a meeting of delegates of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

The following excerpt from "The Frame-Up System," a booklet issued as an exposure of the alleged conspiracy, is pointed to by labor leaders as illustrative of the methods used in obtaining the conviction.

"Certain complimentary tickets to a picnic were found in the house of Weinberg (now being tried as an accomplice of Mooney). These tickets announced an 'international picnic' to celebrate the Fourth of July, and that twenty volumes of Nietzsche would be given as a prize.

"One of the points upon which Mooney was condemned was that Weinberg 'insulted the flag by attending an international picnic on our national holiday,' and that a dangerous explosive, which the prosecutor could not pronounce but which was spelled 'N-i-t-z-s-c-h-e,' was to be given as a prize.

Nietzsche as a "Bomb."

"Attorney Bourke Cockran interrupted to say: 'Nietzsche is the name of a philosopher. The district attorney thinks it's a bomb.' Later District Attorney Fickert looked in an encyclopedia and explained to the jury that Mooney ought to hang, anyway, because 'Nietzsche, the writer, was a bad man, who associated with Richard Wagner.'"

YERION MURDER DIMS STARS OF FOUR POLICEMEN

Three policemen from the Stanton avenue station and one from the Deering street station were suspended by Chief of Police Schuettler yesterday upon a recommendation by First Deputy Westbrook in connection with the death of Meda Yerion, who was found murdered April 6.

George B. McClellan, Frank W. Verhoven, Michael E. Winn, and John O'Halloran are the men suspended. Charges will be filed with the civil service board that the policemen were loitering in saloons after 1 o'clock on the night of the murder.

Ernest Holschemaker, arrested as a suspect in the murder, was released after establishing an alibi. Frank Bardeaux, a Negro, is still held, but Capt. Meagher probably will release him today, as there is no evidence against him.

COUNCIL SLATE MAKERS DALLY ON CHIEF POSTS

St. Augustine, Fla., April 14.—[Special.]—A single development of importance came out of today's meeting of the Chicago city council organization committee. That was the probability that Ald. Thomas J. Lynch, one of the slate makers, will be made chairman of the committee on gas, oil, and electric light to succeed Ald. Lewis D. Stitts. His only opponent is Ald. Otto Kerner. Other chairmanship fights have boiled down as follows, the favorite in each fight being named first: Transportation, Captain vs. Lock; terminals, Healy vs. Lupe; streets and alleys, Haderlein vs. Wallace; schools, Walkowiak vs. Pegram.

With these clinches on for first places, the organizationists have found it almost impossible to establish tentative lists for the additional vacancies on important committees. With leeway allowed for shifts necessary by the final disposition of the top places, the schedule for important vacancies is as follows: Finance, A. A. McCormick, R. H. McCormick, Watson, and Hasen, with Scharts still a possibility; transportation, Cross, Franz, Roeder, and Wallace, with Block and Byrne possibility; terminals, Norris, Cross, and W. J. Lynch, with R. H. McCormick a possibility; gas, Schwartz, Hickey, Franz, Link, and Walker, with Ellison a possibility.

Farm Hands Wanted

Western Canada Farmers Require 50,000 American Farm Laborers AT ONCE!

Urgent demand sent out for farm help by the Government of Canada. Good wages. Steady employment. Low railway fares. Pleasant surroundings. Comfortable homes. No Compulsory Military Service. A splendid opportunity for the young man to investigate Western Canada's agricultural offerings, and to do so at no expense. Only those accustomed to farming need apply.

The demand for farm labor in Canada is so great that as an inducement to secure at once the necessary help required, Canada will give one hundred and sixty acres of land free as a homestead and allow the farm laborer, who flies on land, to apply the time he is working for other farmers as residence duties the same as if he had lived on the land he had applied for. This offer made only to men working on Canadian farms during 1917, thus making it possible to reduce the necessity of actual residence to two years instead of three years, as under usual conditions. This appeal for farm help is in no way connected with enlistment for military service but solely to secure farm laborers to increase agricultural output. A wonderful opportunity to earn good wages while securing a farm. Canadian Government will pay all fare over one cent per mile from St. Paul and Duluth to Canadian destinations.

For particulars as to railway rates and districts where labor is required, or other information regarding Western Canada, apply to

CICOTTE PITCHES NO-HIT GAME FOR SOX

PIRATES DOWN CUBS IN FINAL BY 4-2 MARGIN

Hendrix Hurls Good Game, but Miller Allows the Cubs Only Four Hits.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

That winning streak, which started the remodeled Cubs off in such unexpected style, was jolted out of place yesterday in the final game of the series against Pittsburgh's Pirates when the Pittsburgh tribe conquered the north siders in a tight battle by a score of 4 to 2. Inability to hit the curves of Frank Miller, once a White Sox recruit, caused the Cubs to fall down. They gathered only four blows all afternoon. Even with four blows they might have staved off defeat if a couple of mistakes hadn't proved costly. Cy Williams muffed a fly ball, some say the second time in his life it has occurred, and it gave Pittsburgh one run, and Rowdy Elliott heaved one into the small of Bill Hinchman's back as the latter was running to first base, which helped materially in the production of another.

Hendrix Drives in Tally.

Claude Hendrix was the slab victim in the combat, but Claude pitched good enough ball to satisfy every one present, and besides drove in one of the tallies with one of his two doubles. Besides having a lot of speed and a swell curve ball he used his brains in pitching to the Cub batters, and it was seldom that swatters like Williams, Wolter, and Saier were given a chance to pull one of their favorite drives against the bricks in right field. The right handed batters of the Cubs, with the exception of Hendrix, were easy victims for Miller as a general rule. Elliott was the only other one to cause him any trouble.

Doyle Poles Pinch Single.

Hendrix's pair of two baggers and a single by Elliott were the only hits registered until the ninth inning, when Larry Doyle was sent up as a pinch hitter for Zeider and responded with a single. Reuther then went up for Wortman, but after working Miller for the count of three and two and with only one out he took one a bit high and on the outside for a third strike and Doyle was doubled at second, thus ending the game.

It was another frosty day, with a stiff and icy breeze blowing off the lake, but there were more than 5,000 fans who paid to get in, and they saw a game worth looking at, for the Cubs had a chance all the way.

The Pirates treated Hendrix rather roughly in the first inning, when, with one out, Carey poled a two-bagger and raced home on Schulte's smashing single off Saier's shins. Claude got the next two men, and the Cubs tied the count in the second, when Saier led off with a walk, moved to second on Zeider's sacrifice, and scored on Elliott's single after Wortman had fanned.

Another Run in Fourth.

In the fourth Baird walked, and got home on Ward's sacrifice and McCarthy's two-bagger. The runs for the Pirates should have stopped right there, but in the sixth, with one out, Baird got an infield hit, took second on Ward's out, and came home when Williams dropped McCarthy's fly ball.

Hendrix stirred things up for the Cubs in the seventh, when, after two were out and Elliott was on first base, he lammed the ball to the corner of left field for two sacks, sending Rowdy home, but that ended the prowess of the north siders, and in the eighth the Pirates clinched the game. Schulte started with a single. Hinchman bunted, and was safe when Elliott hit him with the ball. Baird sacrificed, then Ward produced a sacrifice, letting Schulte home.

Notes

The St. Louis Cardinals come to Weeghman park today to start a four game series.

Vic Saier came within about three feet of a home run when he pulled a foul over the right wall and clear across the street in the second.

It is possible Jim Vaughn will be sent against the Cardinals today, but there are others ready for a fight. Demaree, Carter, and Prendergast all are in shape.

William Wrigley, one of the big stockholders in the Cubs, arrived from Pasadena Friday night and attended the game yesterday, but was not satisfied with the result.

Rollie Zeider executed some startling fielding plays during the game, or the Pirates might have made a few more runs. All told, Rollie handled twelve chances without a mistake.

Hubert Scott Perry, who was released Friday to Atlanta, hasn't left yet and thinks he may not accept the place made for him. The husky hurler has an offer to pitch semi-pro. ball at Joliet and is likely to accept.

Notes

St. Louis, Mo., April 14.—[Special.]—White Sox at Detroit tomorrow.

The first two innings lasted forty minutes, chiefly devoted to Jones' efforts to find a pitcher with control.

Austin made a spectacular catch of Weaver's foul fly in the ninth. He slid under it to protect himself from hitting the grandstand.

Rowland's men had to slip their suppers and get their eats on the rails tonight, in order to catch their rattler for Michigan.

It looked as if Schalk threw out Shotton stealing second in the first, but Risberg lost the decision by dropping the ball.

Cicotte wabbled some in the third after getting two out and passed Shotton and Miller. Sisler lined a drive to Risberg, who squeezed it brilliantly.

Threatening weather kept the attendance down to 6,000, but melted the icicles out of the air so that the players could discard their sweaters.

The first six Browns at bat filed to Jackson or Felsch. Gandil did not get a putout until the third man in the fourth round.

Four more days in Detroit will wind up the White Sox road work for a while, and they will open the south side season Thursday with the Browns as opponents.

IOWA SLUGGERS BEAT MAROONS IN 9-7 BATFEST

BY MAROON.

Iowa beat Chicago, 9 to 7, in a slugfest in the Big Nine opener on Stagg field yesterday. The Hawkeyes banged Larkin's curves to every corner of the lot for eight runs and nine hits in three and one-third innings. Then Pat Page sent Eddie Marum, an outfielder, to the slab and the visitors reached the plate only once again. The Maroons began slugging Gilles near the end, but could not overcome the nine run handicap.

The Hawkeyes scored in the first round on a pass, a single and a double steal. Three more came over in the second on two singles and Brown's home run drive to center field. The fourth ended Larkin's slab work. Before any one was out two singles and Gillis' homer to left center put three more over the pan.

The Maroons scored four runs in seventh, but could not drive home the two needed tallies. Pitcher Gillis of Iowa had a hard time on the slab, but hit three singles and a home run, drew a pass, and stole two bases. Score:

Barred from Rings of U. S., Darcy Leaves for Canada

New Orleans, La., April 14.—[Special.]—Having been denied the chance of boxing Jeff Smith here on April 23 by the edict of Gov. Pleasant, Les Darcy will leave tomorrow night. He will go to Canada. Darcy had little to say, except to say he would fulfill every requirement that the American people expected of him. "I will prove I am no slacker," he said. Fred Gilmore, Darcy's manager, was much put out over the turn of affairs.

Former Chicago Runner Wins Boston 10 Mile Race

Boston, Mass., April 14.—Bill Kennedy, former Chicagoan, now representing the Meeting-side Athletic club of New York, won the ten mile run of the Cathedral A. A. this afternoon. Kennedy had a handicap of 2:15. James Henigan of the Dorchester Athletic club, national junior ten mile champion, starting from scratch, won the time prize in 51:07, corrected time, making a record for the event. He was placed third.

'TRIB' TOURNEY GIVES WAY TO WAR'S DEMAND

Annual Baseball Event to Pick Best Amateurs Is Canceled.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

THE TRIBUNE'S third annual baseball tournament to determine the best amateur players in Chicago under 21 years old will not be held in 1917. At the conclusion of the war the tourney will be revived and made better and greater than ever before.

The purpose of this tourney, inaugurated with such great success in 1915, was to encourage the youth of Chicago in a helpful outdoor sport and to give those wishing to make baseball their profession a chance to show their budding skill before club owners and managers. For that reason the prizes were eastern trips as a member of the team, with either White Sox or Cubs. Results more than justified advance expectations.

Nation Needs Soldiers.

At this stage in our country's history there is no crying need for more trained ball players. There is need for more trained soldiers. Both the army and the navy are calling for recruits.

Many boys who would be eligible for THE TRIBUNE tournament this year already have enlisted in the military service of the nation. They have seen their duty and faced it squarely. Many others undoubtedly will do so. Still more will be taken if the selective conscription bill is passed by congress.

Duty vs. Prizes.

Therefore, without reflecting upon those who up to this time have not seen fit to enlist or who for special reasons may not be eligible, it does not seem fair that those who remain behind should have additional opportunity to win prizes, coveted by every boy in Chicago, because some of their fellows have followed the dictates of patriotism.

THE TRIBUNE tournament, which attracted 399 entrants the first year and 585 in 1916 when the entry list was closed to prevent absolutely swamping the board of judges, could be held this season with an entry list perhaps as large or larger than last season.

But would there be the same honor in winning from a restricted field—a field restricted because many brave boys had donned Uncle Sam's uniform?

Serious Business at Hand.

War, as the eminent purveyors of words on the editorial page assure us, is serious business. Baseball, as Mr. Sagborn and Mr. Crusinberry will tell you, also is serious business—that is, when there is not more serious business to be done. Soldiers are needed. Ball players are not.

So boys, the amateur baseball tournament is off for this season. You will have to follow your own conscience about enlisting. But THE TRIBUNE assures you that when the issues of war are determined and peace has returned, the amateur baseball tournament—called by veteran baseball men the greatest opportunity ever offered youthful players to develop into major league stars—will be revived.

ILLINOIS BUMPS NOTRE DAME, 9-7

Urbana, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—Illinois took another game from Notre Dame without much trouble today. Huff's men bunched their hits in the second, and Doorwin gave five passes, resulting in seven runs for the local varsity in that frame. Murray succeeded Doorwin and held the Illini to one run. "Mickey" Ryan pitched well for the Illini until the fifth, when the Catholics made three runs and he was yanked in favor of Davis.

CRAZY KENNEDY, DETECTIVE

Words AND Pictures

BY RING W. LARDNER

CHAPTER 1.

"AN unsolvable mystery," declared the police after a fortnight's futile work on the Deshler Death Case.

"There is nothing to do but give it up," they said.

But Mrs. Deshler, who had been deprived of a husband by the tragedy, refused to take the police's word, and it was her persistence that finally brought her to Crazy Kennedy's laboratory to employ the keen, almost uncanny detective skill of my friend.

"It is my reputation that I care for," said our fair client. "Joe, my husband, undoubtedly did it of his own free will. And my friends naturally presume that he killed himself because I was his wife. I want you to go to the bottom of this thing and establish his real motive."

"The dead man," said Kennedy, laughing, "has already gone to the bottom of the thing."

This jest struck home, for Deshler had suicided by jumping from the twenty-ninth story of the High building.

"I have already heard the details, so please tell them again," urged my friend.

"Well," said Mrs Deshler, "as I have often repeated, Joe was an ideal husband and perfectly happy in his home life. And there was absolutely no financial difficulty. Morsover, his health was perfect."

"Joe was an ideal husband."

"Perhaps," I hazarded, "he was afraid of the army draft."

"No," replied our client, "he has not had a cold since his adenoids were jerked out."

"You see the folly of hazarding, Morrison," said my friend reprovingly.

"There was no plausible reason for his doing what he done," said Mrs. Deshler, "and I don't blame the police for quitting. But I thought perhaps your wonderful deductive powers"—she smiled aimlessly—"would succeed where the cops failed."

Kennedy received her compliment with commendable sans souci.

"Was your hubby's body much messed up?" he inquired.

"Slightly," was the reply. "But his lungs and head managed to stay in contact, so that he was able to talk."

"And what did he say?" asked Kennedy excitedly.

"Just one sentence, a meaningless one," said Mrs. Deshler. "He said, to the whitewings that picked up that part of him, 'He owes my widow two dollars.'"

"Meaningless!" cried Crazy.

"Yes," said the client. "Because nobody owes me two dollars."

Kennedy laughed harshly.

"I'll solve your mystery in short order," he said. "Did your husband have any intimate male friends?"

"His partner, Mr. Hale, was the most intimate."

"And did they ever make friendly wagers with each other?" asked Kennedy.

"Why, yes, they did that all the time."

CHAPTER 2.

In less than an hour William Hale, the deceased's partner, was before us.

"Well, Hale," said Kennedy, "tell us the whole story."

The new visitor broke down.

The new visitor broke down.

"I would have told it before," he said, "except that I have been in financial straits and could not afford to give Mrs. Deshler her two-spot. But here is the truth: I bet Deshler that a person who jumped from the twenty-ninth story of the High building would not be killed. I did it just for a joke. But Deshler took the bet; yes, and won it."

"Some joke!" said Kennedy, taking a fresh chew.

SOX LET OUT YOUNG HURLER

Frank (String) Schellenbach, the 18 year old coast hurler picked up by the White Sox for trial on the training trip, has been released to Providence of the International league. Comiskey retains a string on the youngster, who gives promise of developing into a real star. News of his transfer came from Secretary Harry Grabiner of the Sox last night.

With Schellenbach cleaved from the roster, Manager Rowland now has only twenty-six men to look after. He has until May 15 to dispose of one more player so as to be at the league limit of twenty-five. One catcher is due for the discard to meet this limit.

RED CROSS FUNDS

WILLIAM F. MURRAY has taken the initiative among local racetrackers in collecting the war funds by announcing that at the remaining meetings in the Chicago Billiard league at either of his rooms a charge of 50 cents will be made. All money collected will be turned over to the American Red Cross fund. He believes local cue fans will respond generously.

EDDIE COLLINS TELLS BENEFITS OF ARMY DRILL

BY EDWARD T. COLLINS.

St. Louis, Mo., April 14.—[Special.]—Without wishing to rush into print as a military critic, I am glad to be given the opportunity to put before the public the benefit of drill to civilians and especially in regard to ball players. It is doubtful if any one regarded the proposal to drill ball players seriously, before it was tried. It is true the players themselves looked at it as a novelty, to be discarded as soon as the practice season was over. No one in particular figured that it would stick. This attitude was undoubtedly due to the fact that we are a nonmilitary nation, free and easy going in our ways, and always prone to drop anything which does not suit our fancies.

I am glad to subscribe to the fact that the opposite has been true ever since we started drilling. The Sox, the same as other clubs, undoubtedly looked like the average rookie at the beginning, and we had as much trouble as the majority in keeping our feet from entangling themselves. The greater number of the boys had never had the advantage of a single military drill in their lives, yet it soon became apparent that the discipline of the ball field was a great help. It is hard to point out any particular thing which helped, but that coördination so necessary for successful team work was undoubtedly a great aid.

Aid to Ball Playing.

It was predicted that the calesthenics and setting up exercises would adversely bring into play muscles which were not being developed in ordinary play on the field and thus upset the human machine, stiffen the men, and otherwise slow up the general run of ball playing. Nothing of the kind happened, and I think the boys can testify to the fact that, if anything, all this was a positive help to ball playing. As a matter of fact we were more fit for ball playing after a week of drill than we would have been without it.

I agree with those who maintain that the exercising of certain muscles, not ordinarily brought into play, is a great thing for athletes and should form a regular part of the spring training. The calesthenics especially are a good thing for those who have to get into condition in the comparatively short time covered by the spring training season.

It probably is just as well that we did not have the regular nine pound rifle at the start, as this, with other work, might have turned out a little too strenuous while the boys were still soft. The bats made a good substitute. So much for the physical aspect of the drill as it affected the individual man.

Drill Discipline a Benefit.

The benefits as a whole are likely to be more far reaching and not only have an influence on the players as a body but on others as well. There always is present a certain amount of discipline on a ball field, but that is entirely different from that which the military drill affords. "Not that Sergt. Smiley was an unusually hard taskmaster, as no man could have worked more smoothly than he did, or with more diplomacy, but that American sovereignty of giving advice to others cropped out at the start. That, of course, in

FIVE BROWNS REACH FIRST IN 11-0 ROUT

Rowlands Go on Rampage and Score Seven Runs in Second Round.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

St. Louis, Mo., April 14.—[Special.]—With Eddie Cicotte pitching historic baseball, the White Sox had an easy victory over the Browns today in their final game here. Score, 11 to 0.

Cicotte let the Browns down without a base hit or a run and did it with apparent ease. Only once did the enemy come anywhere near getting a safe hit. That was when Austin hit a bounder which filtered through Gandil's mitt in the eighth. It was a palpable error, as Gandil was all set in front of the ball and it bounded nicely. The official scorer squelched his yearning to give Austin a hit and called it an error.

Five Browns Reach First.

Besides Austin, only four Browns reached first base. Three of them drew bases on balls and the other was punctured. Nobody went beyond second base and only one Brown got that far. Cicotte was going best at the finish, for his control, which had been uncertain at the start, was perfect in the closing rounds.

Jones used four pitchers in a futile effort to stop the White Sox. Hamilton, who started, was batted off the slab in the second stanza. Park, a holdover from last year, could not get anybody out, so gave way to Rogers, a rookie who looked good in spite of lack of control.

Seven Runs in Third.

The White Sox reversed previous dope by scoring early. One run was gained in the opener when Collins walked, raced to third on Jackson's double, and scored on Felsch's single to left. Gandil skied. Hamilton was compelled to quit in the second round after hitting Weaver and being hit for a clean double by Schalk. Park tried to stop the Sox, but failed to get a man out.

Cicotte singled. Leibold singled. Risberg doubled, and Collins singled. That scored four runs and finished Park, who gave way to Rogers. The youngster's first attempt was a wild throw, which let Risberg score and Collins went to second. Jackson walked and Felsch sacrificed. Gandil flied out so far Collins scored from third. Sisler gave Weaver a life on a fumble, putting Jackson on third, from where he scored in a double steal with Weaver. Buck kept on to third and was trapped. The answer was seven runs for the round.

And Still More Tallies.

Rogers stopped the Sox in the third, but gave them a tally in the fourth. He passed Collins, who went to third on Jackson's single to center, which was scored as an error to Lavan by St. Louis' blind official scorer. Felsch's out let Collins home.

The sixth brought another Sox spasm. Leibold walked, Risberg singled, and Collins bunted safely, filling the bases. Jackson's out scored Leibold and moved Risberg up to third, from where he trotted home on Felsch's fly to Miller.

Marsans kept the Rowlands from increasing their score in the eighth. A wild heave by Lavan gave Risberg a life at second base. Collins and Jackson soaked long drives to left center, but the Cuban tore back and captured both of them brilliantly.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—Jay Gould and W. H. H. Huhn of New York, national court tennis doubles champions, retained their title today by defeating Joshua Crane and D. P. GOLFERS IN WEST TAKE ACTION ON AMATEUR RULE

Definition Opposes National Body Ruling and Breach May Follow.

BY JOE DAVIS.

For the first time since its formation in 1899, the Western Golf association has severed diplomatic relations with the United States Golf association regarding the amateur rule. For eighteen years the rules of the organizations have been practically the same, but after May 1 they will differ enough to cause friction and possibly a breach of wider dimensions.

On that date a "Definition and Regulation of Amateurism in Golf," recently transcribed on the books of the W. G. A. will go into effect.

Then it will be permissible for a player in western territory who has been, or is, a professional in any other branch of sport, to compete in W. G. A. events as an amateur. A player will not be rated as a professional merely because he deals in golf supplies, while another liberal ruling permits the payment of legitimate expenses incidental to the playing in an exhibition, match or competition given under the auspices of a golf association or golf club that is a member of an association.

Course Architects All Pros.

Course architects who receive compensation of any kind for their work are rated as professionals, the ruling agreeing with that made by the U. S. G. A. at its last annual meeting.

Another point on which the W. G. A. speaks with no uncertain sound is the commercializing of golfing reputation in any line of business, even in writing articles. As long as a golfer depends on the literary merit of his articles to sell them he will be all right, but if he seeks to enhance their market value by announcing he is a golf champion then he will overstep the boundary line.

Western Rules Are Clear.

The new code was passed only after several weeks of earnest consideration and frequent revision by the directors of the W. G. A. They believe their definition is clear and needs no "rulings" such as the U. S. G. A. has found necessary to make from time to time.

Western officials are just as anxious to conserve the true spirit of amateurism as are the officers of the U. S. G. A., but believe the national body has been narrow in many of its policies. Having waited in vain for more liberal rulings, they decided to formulate a code of their own, which they believe will accord with the spirit of the west. On May 1 it will go on trial.

How Country Is Divided.

The territory covered by W. G. A. embraces everything west of a line drawn from Buffalo through Pittsburgh. In this area are hundreds of salesmen employed in athletic goods stores who rate as amateurs under the western rules and as professionals under the U. S. G. A. rule. As few of these are skilled enough to compete in a national championship they would continue on the even tenor of their ways.

In the matter of accepting expenses there may be cause for worry on the part of some of the stars, but it is hoped the U. S. G. A. will recede from its position in this matter and follow the rules in vogue in tennis, football, track athletics, baseball, and many other branches of sport.

What Amateur Means.

Following is the new amateur definition:

"An amateur in golf is one who, since attaining his sixteenth year, has not directly or indirectly accepted any consideration [money or otherwise] for services as a caddie, caddiemaster, or greenkeeper, or for making or repairing golf clubs, or for playing or teaching the game, and who has not played for a money prize.

"2. No amateur golfer may for a consideration [money or otherwise],

"[a] Take part in laying out, constructing, supervising, or giving advice concerning the layout, construction, or upkeep of a golf course, or any part thereof; but this shall not apply to work confined to engineering or drainage;

"[b] Lend or allow the use of his name or likeness to anything, or for the advertisement, publication, or sale of anything, except in good faith, in the usual course of business, as the actual dealer, manufacturer, inventor, or author of the matter or thing done, sold, advertised, or published.

"[c] Exploit, advertise, publish, or declare his skill, prominence, record, or achievements in the game of golf in connection with any business, matter, or thing, nor allow the same to be done.

Ruling Regarding Expenses.

"3. Under special circumstances, where in the judgment of the officers of the association, the interests of the game will thereby be subserved, and upon the written authority of said officers, to whom previous application therefor shall have been made, an amateur in golf may, without forfeiting his status, accept transportation and other bona fide expenses necessarily incidental to play in an exhibition, match, or competition, given under the auspices of a golf association or golf club that is a member of an association; provided always that a verified statement of said expenses shall be submitted to the treasurer of this association for audit and approval.

"4. Should the conduct of an amateur golfer, in the judgment of the officers of this association, be prejudicial to the best interests of amateurism, he may be debarred by a two-thirds affirmative vote of the board of directors of this association from participating in any event for amateurs sanctioned by this association, subject always to the provisions of the constitution of this association; provided, however, that no amateur shall be debarred under this section unless he has been given an opportunity for a hearing.

C. A. A. IN AIR

Pole Vaulter, J. R. Graham, in Army Aviation Service Receives Instructions at Miami Training Camp.

J. R. Graham

J. R. GRAHAM, Chicago Athletic association pole vaulter, who has been confused in some reports with "Red" Graham, University of Chicago pole vaulter and football player, is now at the United States aviation training camp at Miami, Fla. The accompanying photograph shows Graham, who is wearing a Cherry Circle sweater, as he is receiving instruction in the guidance of his machine. Educated at Howe Military academy, Graham was employed in Chicago by the Thomas Cusack company when he entered the war aviation service. He is 23 years old. He left for Miami Feb. 28 and was accompanied to the camp by his mother. Graham had a pole vaulting record of 10 feet 9 inches when he became a member of the C. A. A. nearly three years ago. He has since cleared the bar at 12 feet several times. He also is a point winner in hurdle and broad jump handicaps, although hardly a scratch man in those events.

TEN FOOT PUTT WINS EXTRA HOLE CONTEST FOR EDWIN ASHCRAFT

A ten foot putt, which netted a three, gave Edwin M. Ashcraft an extra hole victory over Seneca J. Chadwick in their match in the first round of the ridge tournament at the Calumet Country club yesterday. These veterans furnished the feature match of the initial round. "Father" Ashcraft made the first round in 39 and was 3 up, but on the second round he encountered trouble and took 44. Chadwick, who went out in 40, made the second round in 41 and squared the match on the home green.

D. W. Heath and W. A. Cockrell, two members of the G. A. R. golfing brigade, reached the home hole before the former was able to claim a win. W. D. Stapp, who led the qualifiers, was unable to appear and defaulted.

FIRST FLIGHT.

E. M. Ashcraft defeated S. J. Chadwick, 1 up, 19 holes; W. C. Becker won from W. D. Stapp by default; D. W. Heath defeated W. A. Cockrell, 1 up; R. T. Larrabee defeated C. F. Rathbun, 3 and 2.

SECOND FLIGHT.

F. B. Bell defeated A. L. Ladd, 2 and 1; F. Rayfield defeated R. S. Prebble, 5 and 4; W. S. Whiteside defeated W. C. Brown, 2 and 1; W. C. Staley defeated A. H. Whittleben, 2 up.

Stewart and his troop of twenty club wielders defeated the side commanded by Vice President F. D. Burgess by 40 points, total strokes counting. Patrick M. McCann led the winning side with a card of 74, displaying something akin to midseason form. C. B. Lloyd Jr. with 79, L. Paul with 84, and E. B. Wittier, W. Scates, and O. W. Jones, each with 85, were the other low scorers. Dr. Clyde Cadwell was the "minimum" man on the losing team, getting an 80. Other scores were: C. F. Newman, 84; A. J. Bauer, 92, and S. K. Lyon, 93.

Maywood.

More than fifty Maywood members reported for the opening event, which was at eighteen holes medal play. Honors went to Harry Rautenbusch with 78, while Paul Burnett and D. F. LINCOLN PARK TEAM TAKES CLUB SHOOT WITH SCORE OF 205

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

With a total of 205 targets the Lincoln Park Gun club won the first annual fellowship handicap trap shooting tourney at the Lincoln park traps. The Metropolitan Gun club was second with 196, and the Evanston Gun club third with 197. The Elgin Gun club, the only outside organization represented, turned in a total of 182, and the Washington Gun club, the only other competitor, finished with 181.

Each contestant shot at fifty targets from distances ranging from sixteen to twenty-three yards. Clifford of the winning quintet was high with forty-six. He shot from nineteen yards. Steffens of the same club was second with 43, and Sangmore, also of the same club, was next high with 42.

Mrs. J. L. Hooper won the women's trophy. Shooting at fifty targets from the sixteen yard rise, she broke 36. Jay Graham of Long Lake won the professional trophy by breaking forty-seven of fifty birds.

Whiting, Ind., April 14.—Dan O'Leary of Chicago defeated William Kuse of Evansville by two yards in their match at the Rollaway rink. The veteran walked a mile in 8:05.6. The Hoosier skated two and one-half miles. They will race again tomorrow night.

SEPPALA'S TEAM WINS DOG DERBY

Nome, Alaska, April 14.—Leonard Seppala, driving a team of Siberian wolf dogs, won the all-Alaska sweepstakes dog race, arriving at Nome at 2:34 o'clock this morning. Victor Anderson was second, arriving at 7:05. Fay Delzene and his dogs left Council, eighty-five miles distant, at 3:50 a. m.

Seppala's time, 113 hours 34 minutes, was nearly forty hours slower than the record for the course of 412 miles from Nome to Candle and return, but he was storm bound two days at Topkok, an Eskimo settlement on the shore of Bering sea, east of Solomon. Seppala's dogs averaged 7.83 miles an hour. The race was for a purse of $2,500, and the long distance dog team championship of the world. Much money has been wagered on the result.

Paul Kjegstad, whose team of dogs was scattered, one killed and another injured by the storm, is making his weary way over the course, carrying his dead dog and the sick one on the sled, to prove his courage.

Seppala's winning team also won the races of 1915 and 1916, demonstrating the endurance of the Siberian wolf dogs. In appearance these dogs cannot be distinguished from wild wolves, but they are quite tractable.

Maupome Has Good Lead in Cushion League Race

With only one game to play and that on his home table, Pierre Maupome of Cleveland has the best chance to win the Brunswick medal, emblematic of the championship of the Interstate Three Cushion league, and the $1,500 first prize. Maupome won four of his five road games last week.

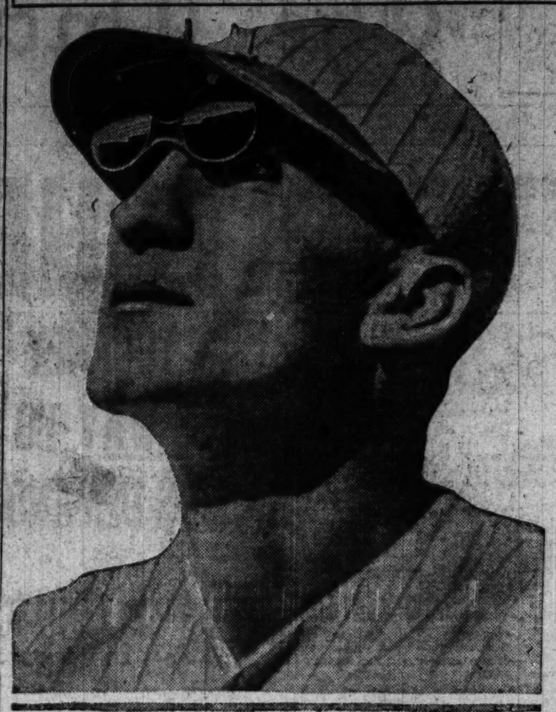
DEFYING OLD SOL

Fred Clarke, Former Pirate Manager, Equips Outfielders with Sun Glasses Riveted to Peak of Cap.



WEARING sun glasses is becoming more and more common in baseball. One style of glasses is riveted to the peak of the cap and works on a hinge. When not needed the glasses are tipped back and rest against the peak of the cap. When a fly ball is hit the fielder simply touches the rim of the glasses and they fall down in front of the eyes and give him a chance to see the approaching ball while looking directly into the sun.

These glasses were invented by Fred Clarke, former Pirate manager.

Rixey was effective all the way and played an important part in the scoring by hitting safely in the eighth, when Killifer was intentionally passed to bring him up, after Mowrey signed his Brooklyn contract today and Ed Appleton left for Baltimore. JOHNSON TO AID RECRUITING ON PATRIOTS' DAY

New York, April 14.—Coöperation of the baseball world with the recruiting committee of Mayor Mitchel's committee on national defense, which plans to make the anniversary of the battle of Lexington—April 19—a recruiting day, was promised today by B. B. Johnson, president of the American league.

"You will certainly have my hearty coöperation in any suggestion or request that you may make," Johnson telegraphed the committee. "Our club owners will be fully informed and announcement will be made at their parks on April 19 requesting all young men to enter the service in defense of their country. To launch this great movement on the anniversary of the battle of Lexington was a happy thought and should secure great results."

Washington Parkers Join Western Lawn Net Body

The Washington Park Tennis club voted to enter the Chicago Tennis association, one of the Western Lawn Tennis association district organizations, and to play out its schedule of matches regardless of war conditions. The officials said the game was particularly valuable in conditioning men who would otherwise have no time for physical training, and said their action was directed toward preparedness and against belittling the seriousness of the war situation.

The club was a member of the Public Parks association last summer, but decided to enter the larger organization, where its team would face keener competition. Officers for the season were elected as follows:

B. E. Carr, president; P. A. Orton, vice president; H. Metz, secretary; B. H. Banks, treasurer.

Benny to Meet Strong Foe in Milwaukee Go on Thursday.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Another eastern star is going to shine for the entertainment of boxing fans in this section of the country on Thursday night in Milwaukee, when Bennie Leonard of New York hooks up with Richie Mitchell, the pride of Beertown. Of course, the term "shine" is subject to revision, for Mitchell has been performing just as brilliantly as his rival in recent bouts and he declares without reservation that he intends to trim Leonard.

This will be the first time that Leonard has given local fans a chance to see him in action, for he has fought only a couple of times in the west and never near Chicago, one of these bouts being his knockout of Ever Hammer at Kansas City. Also this contest in Milwaukee promises to be an exhibition of real stuff, so it is pretty certain that a Chicago delegation of considerable proportions will be at the ringside.

Leonard Will Train Here.

Leonard is due to leave New York this afternoon, arriving here tomorrow. He will work three days at the Arcade gymnasium before jumping to Milwaukee. The eastern scrapper will be accompanied by his manager, Billy Gibson, who already has wired Kid Howard to line up a staff of willing sparring partners.

This scrap will bring together a pair of classy boys who do their main damage with the right hand. This is the most effective weapon they possess, although Mitchell has a left hand which is worth its weight in gold. As a jabber, Richie has all the lightweights in the country backed off the boards, and it's a cinch that his left is going to visit Leonard's face a lot of times before the finish of the contest. But in Benny, Mitchell will find an aggressive, hard hitting battler and he will be forced to pay considerable attention to the defense end of the game to avoid a K. O. from the easterner's right mauley.

Welsh to Watch His Rivals.

There will be a number of lightweight celebrities at the ringside on Thursday, one of the boys being Champion Freddie Welsh. Welsh is due here this morning on his way to St. Louis, where he boxes Battling Nelson on Tuesday night. After that session he will go to Milwaukee to see the aspirants for his title mill. Joe Welling, the local boy, also will see the contest. Welling is nursing a hand broken in his recent clash with Willie Beecher at New York.

Woods and Waters

EARLY TROUT FISHING.

BUSINESS of much busyness about the homes of trout fishermen. Rods are being varnished, frayed windings renewed, rattling fer-rules tightened. Enameled lines are being greased with deer fat (trade name for mutton tallow in most cases) and possibly polished with graphite to make them "shoot" better through the guides (a trick we learn from tournament casters), fly hooks or boxes are being replenished and—"Lands sakes!" the women folks say. "Such a lot of trash around the house." But the fishermen bibble not.

For, with snail-like pace, the trout season approaches and the angler is getting ready "to go some place." Perhaps he is going to some new waters for opening day—waters that he has heard are "lousy with trout that long, or even that long, by heck." More likely though, especially if he has grown gray at the game, he is going to the old stream whose ripples have smiled and flirted with him alluringly these many years. Anyway he is getting ready to go, and getting ready, brother, is one of the most enjoyable and least disappointing phases of early angling.

Early trout fishing has its disappointments. The stream may be just right, and then along comes a rain, either locally or at the headwaters, and the stream becomes the color and consistency of split pea soup. The trout then are inclined to hug the bottom, and that means, in most cases, bait fishing or no fishing.

Perhaps you have never met a purist. Congratulations! A purist is an angler who uses nothing but flies, and who looks upon bait fishing as a lowbrow sport.

No trout fisherman will deny that fly fishing is the higher art, and the more enjoyable, but when they simply won't rise to a fly we feel justified in going down after 'em with a plebeian "worm"—a big gob of 'em, in fact—and make no apologies for the practice.

If you insist upon using flies, however—we always give them a good chance before using anything else—use large, light colored ones. For murky waters nothing quite fills the bill in the fly line like a light colored bucktail. When a fly of this kind is retrieved a ways and then allowed to work back downstream, it sets the hairs to wriggling in an enticing manner, and few trout can resist it. Sometimes a tiny spinner ahead of the fly will do the trick, especially a gold one, as gold has a glitter all its own—and there be fool fish as well as fool men!

After you have tried all these near-last resorts you can unjoint your rod and go home, if you are a purist, or stay and catch some trout with bait.

Now there is a lot of merit in angle worms as trout lures, particularly if they have scoured or toughened in damp moss for about a week. Put 'em on the hook by hooking just through the skin at intervals, leaving plenty of loose ends to furnish the wriggle. Let the current carry them down among a tangle of stumps, fallen trees or under an overhanging bank—Zowie! Bingo! Hush, fluttering heart!

Some Early Trout Lures

The minnow should not be forgotten when bait fishing for trout. Hook the live ones through the skin near the back fin, being careful not to hook it too deeply. Send it gently forth and watchfully wait. Thread the dead ones—and that's the kind most trout fishermen must use, since toting a bucket is almost out of the question—on the shank of the hook so it will spin and keep it moving.

If you are cold blooded enough you might try a trick the natives up north use to catch big trout. They lash a field mouse to the shank of the hook, put the mouse to a piece of board, and when it has floated over a likely spot they twitch it off into the water. That's a little extreme, but the trick of floating a lure to a good spot on a chip is one worth remembering—especially when you are desperately hungry for fish or when your reputation as a fisherman is jeopardized.

FOOTBALL CARD TO BE CANCELED BY WOLVERINES

Letters Sent Out Asking Contracts for Games Be Returned.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 14.—[Special.]—Although football was not mentioned in the resolutions adopted this week by the board in control of athletics at the University of Michigan, which did away with baseball, track, and tennis while the United States is at war, plans for the canceling of all football games have been undertaken.

Letters have been sent out from the athletic office asking that contracts for games be returned. So far one reply has been received. This was from the University of Detroit, which states that the contract is canceled, but that the date will be held open pending the outcome of the hostilities of this country with Germany. The Detroit school, with Gilmour Dobie coaching, is loath to preclude arrangements for a battle with Michigan, which was to have been the first in years.

May Call Off Practice.

Announcements before vacation were that spring football practice would be continued after recess and that Coach F. H. Yost would appear to take charge of the squad. But at present after the entire backfield for next year's varsity had signed with a local naval unit, and games have been called off, it is doubtful if the training will be continued.

Pat Smith, full back and captain of next year's eleven that was to have been, created much surprise here earlier in the week by enlisting in the Seventh Michigan naval militia unit, composed of engineering students. Smith made a trip to Bay City to spend his vacation, but returned to Ann Arbor the following day and enlisted. He is color bearer for the Seventh.

Raymond Also a "Rookie."

Phil Raymond, who played half, opposite Maulbetsch in last season's games, is another "rookie." He was transferred from the Saginaw division. Hildner, who played half in several games two years ago, and who was being touted to take Maulbetsch's place next year, is the third member of a three man backfield to join the colors from the football ranks. Middleditch, another candidate, is enlisted.

Johnny Maulbetsch, who recently signed to coach at Phillips university, Enid, Okla., has written authorities there asking if he will be wanted. If he is not wanted "Maully" will begin to look about for another job.

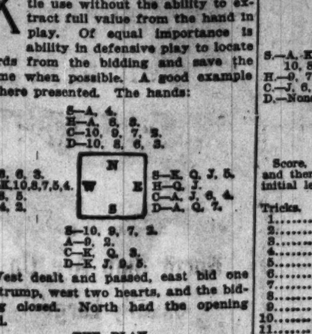
Coach Lundgren of the baseball team and Coach Farrell of the track squad have announced they will keep their men in trim throughout the season. Lundgren's men will be pitted against campus and Ann Arbor city teams.

The two units of the naval militia have been spending the week drilling and taking short courses in military science and special engineering work.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. Metcalfe

KNOWLEDGE of bidding is of little use without the ability to extract full value from the hand in play. Of equal importance is ability in defensive play to locate cards from the bidding and save the game when possible. A good example is here presented. The hands:



West dealt and passed, east bid one no-trump, west two hearts, and the bidding closed. North had the opening lead.

THE PLAY.

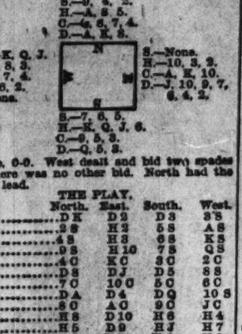
West secured ten tricks.

The opening by north was less objectionable than such plays usually are, as there was good reason to think that the lead could be placed with south in time for north to make a small trump in the spade suit. North could not see far enough ahead, however, to refuse the first round of trumps. The bidding should have marked south with both the king of diamonds and king of clubs, and had north waited until dummy played his last trump west could not have secured the lead and drawn the last trump from north. As it was, west played carefully and secured a game to which he was not entitled, but apparently neither north nor south had any idea that the game might have been saved.

The next deal shows an interesting opportunity. The hands:



Score, 0-0. West dealt and bid two spades and there was no other bid. North had the initial lead.

West made a grand slam.

West did not fail to note at trick one that south refused to echo and thereby showed four diamonds. West was perfectly aware that if he lost the club finesse at trick seven, his opponents would instantly make three tricks in hearts; but his only chance was to reenter dummy three times, and he therefore played the game for the full limit and secured a grand slam. East showed unusual intelligence in refusing to interfere with his partner's bid.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—Are authorities agreed to the number of sure tricks a player must hold before raising partner's bid in auction bridge? The players with whom I associate differ, some claiming one trick, others saying as many as three tricks are necessary before raising. J. M.

Answer—When the dealer makes a suit declaration and second player overbids, the third player should support his partner once when holding two certain tricks, or one certain and two probable tricks, and he should support his partner once more for each additional trick in his hand.

Certain tricks are as follows:

Ace, king, or queen of trumps.

Ace or king-queen at the top of a plain suit.

A singleton in a plain suit.

Being void of a plain suit should count as two tricks.

John W. Bate's Idea Of What You Want In a Lifetime Car

Come see the Mitchells in both sizes. See the extra features, the matchless luxury, the vast over-strength

John W. Bate, our great efficiency engineer, has built 19 Mitchell models.

He has spent 14 years in perfecting these cars. He has worked out more than 700 improvements.

He has traveled far and wide to get other men's ideas. He spent one year in Europe.

So this year's Mitchells show—in finality—his conceptions of ideal cars.

Must Not Skimp

To build an extra-fine car the maker must not skimp. He must have a margin to work on.

Mr. Bate secured that margin by cutting factory cost. He built and equipped this model plant, just for this single type. By utter efficiency he cut factory cost in two. On this year's output, his methods will save us about $4,000,000.

It is that $4,000,000 which pays for Mitchell extras. For the 31 extra features, for the 24 per cent added luxury, for the 100 per cent over-strength.

31 Extra Features

For one thing, the Mitchell is a complete car. It has 31 features which nearly all cars omit. Things like a power tire pump, reversible headlights, dashboard engine primer, ball-bearing steering gear, etc.

You will find each extra something that you want. When you see it, no car will seem complete without it.

This year our bodies are built under Bate methods, in our new body plant. The saving is enormous. All that saving goes into comfort, beauty and luxury. We have added 24 per cent to the cost of finish, upholstery and trimming. So the Mitchell is the handsomest car in its class.

Now Double Strength

For three years Mr. Bate has worked to double our margins of safety. We used to give 50 per cent over-strength. We now give 100 per cent in every vital part.

Over 440 parts are built of toughened steel. All safety parts are vastly oversize. Driving and steering parts are built of Chrome-Vanadium.

This means some added weight. It means much added cost. But it means to you a lifetime car. We have proved that Mitchell cars can render 200,000 miles of service.

We applied this standard two years ago to Bate cantilever springs. Since then, not a single spring has broken. Not a leaf of one.

One Size, $1150

Yet one Mitchell Six—Mitchell Junior—sells at $1150, f. o. b. Racine. A car with 120-inch wheelbase—with a 40-horsepower motor. It is the greatest value ever known at this price.

The larger Mitchell offers at least 20 per cent extra value over any rival car.

Come and confirm these facts. They are bound to win you to a Bate-built car.

LAST week's real estate market reflected to a considerable extent the disturbing effect of the German war situation, but the showing under the circumstances was of an encouraging character. Factory property again made a good showing, as did vacant, one deal in which was the feature of the week. Apartment and residence property also was much in evidence, but the market as a whole was rather slow and considerable complaint was heard among brokers of the slowness of prospective purchasers to close.

It is what might be termed a waiting market, particularly on the part of big investors, always more timid in times like the present than small investors. Many of them are holding their money in the bank, waiting to see the effect of the government's war preparations, and particularly the proposed big bond issue on real estate and the loan market, including real estate securities and general investments. Many are of the opinion it will not help the situation, particularly in downtown property, where returns are under, say, 6 per cent. A 3½ per cent government bond, tax exempt, and absolutely secure, will look better to many than the property mentioned with its taxes and other charges running up to 2 per cent or more.

Tighter Money.

There also are many of the opinion that the diversion of so much money from the ordinary investment channels will result in a tighter money market with higher interest rates. It is generally admitted, however, that the whole business is a guess, and in view of the mistaken predictions made at the beginning of the war as to its effect on the money market, there is a general disposition on the part of the larger financial men to fight shy on the prediction business. In other words they are up in the air and this applies to some of the shrewdest and most experienced men.

The feature of the week's market was the purchase by the Baird & Warner syndicate, Charles E. Marsh taking title, from the Catholic archbishop of the block bounded by Sheridan road, Pine Grove avenue, Cornelia avenue, and Addison street.

The property fronts 676 feet on Sheridan road and Pine Grove avenue and 660 feet on Cornelia avenue and Addison street, and the transaction has the distinction of being the largest in high class vacant property in the history of Chicago. The consideration is not disclosed, but it is stated the price placed on the property by Archbishop Mundelein has not been less than $600,000. Baird & Warner formed the syndicate for the purchase of the property, realizing its great possibilities in a high class subdivision way. They are now subdividing it and placing it on the market in lots ranging from 50 to 100 feet, to sell at from $250 to $750 a foot. Residence restriction is removed from the block, but there will be building restrictions which will tend to make it one of the most desirable subdivisions in the city.

New Street Formed.

The alley running north and south through the block has been vacated by the city and a street 66 feet wide will be run east and west midway between Cornelia avenue and Addison street, giving lot frontages on Sheridan road, Addison street, Brompton place [the new street], and Cornelia avenue. All street improvements will be put in in Brompton place. John T. Wheeler of Baird & Warner represented both parties. Nathan W. MacChesney acted for the purchasers in a legal way, while Nicholas Finn acted for the archbishop.

The property was purchased during the regime of Archbishop Quigley in 1914 with the purpose of establishing a Catholic school for young men. The rapidly advancing value of the land, particularly during the last few years, suggested the wisdom of selling it and establishing the proposed school elsewhere, where values are lower. With this purpose the Quigley preparatory school is being erected at Pearson and Rush streets, and the larger school originally planned will be located in the rapidly west part of the city, probably.

The Sheridan road block was first subdivided by E. B. Mundley in 1835 and was conveyed by him to Oliver Diston of Boston in 1837 for $60,000. A. J. Drexel of Philadelphia subsequently secured it for $100,000. Later it was secured by E. T. Stotesbury.

Realty Men to Discuss Vacant Lot Gardening

"Vacant Lot Gardening" will be the subject of discussion at Tuesday's weekly luncheon of the Cook county real estate board at the Hotel Sherman, the speaker to be L. J. Houghner of the Chicago garden bureau.

NEW HOTEL ON LAKE SHORE

Clarendon Beach Apartments, Notable North Side Improvement.

A NOTABLE north side improvement in course of construction is the Clarendon Beach apartment hotel at the southwest corner of Clarendon and Windsor avenues, opposite the new Clarendon beach.

The building, which has a particularly attractive architectural design, will be nine stories high and will contain seventy-six rooms, consisting of large living rooms, kitchenets, baths, and dressing rooms, twenty-eight single rooms with bath, a large and handsome parlor and ballroom on the second floor, and a dining room and café on the first floor. All iceboxes will be cooled by artificial refrigeration.

The building will be of fireproof construction, will cover a lot with a frontage of 56 feet on Windsor avenue and 94 feet on Clarendon, and with the land will represent an investment of about $350,000.

George Remus and J. A. Taggert are the owners, Mr. Taggert being the architect. W. N. McQueen & Co. have underwritten a serial 6 per cent bond issue loan of $150,000 on the property in connection with the construction of the building.

S. KARPEN & BROS. GET LEASEHOLD IN WABASH AVENUE

Will Remodel Building for Furniture Display Purposes.

With the exception of the acquirement by S. Karpen & Bros. from Ralph W. Olmstead and others of the leasehold interest at the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Eighth street, recently leased by Mr. Olmsted and associates from the Wheeler heirs, there was little doing of any importance in business property, either downtown or outside. The land is 109½x180 feet and under lease for ninety-nine years at a graded annual rental of from $10,000 to $20,000. The Karpens will take possession of the property at once, it is stated, and will remodel the building, formerly occupied by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, converting it into a showroom for the display of their furniture.

In an interesting transaction in South Halsted street property involving the taking over by the Universal State bank, recently organized, from Anton Olszewski, a private banker, of his bank, the Universal acquired the property of Mr. Olszewski at the northwest corner Halsted and Thirty-third streets, for an expressed consideration of $100,000.

Mr. Olszewski, who is vice president of the new bank, also conveyed to the Chicago Title and Trust company a number of other parcels of property in various parts of the city, subject to $90,000 incumbrance. His private bank is now being liquidated and the latter holdings are being used. In a statement in THE TRIBUNE in the early part of the week the statement was made that the Universal bank was until recently the Kedzie Savings bank, a private bank own by Shiff Bros. & Shiff, who converted it into a state bank and changed the name. This was a mistake, as the Shiffs, who own the Independence State bank, never had any connection with the Universal bank.

Leo L. Brunhild has conveyed to Louis Nath the business property at 6351-55 South Halsted street, 50x145 feet, west front, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000. The actual price is said to have been $40,000. The deal was negotiated by Sidney C. Edenberg and Graff & Balch.

Real Estate Transfers.

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 213, of which 161 were in the city and 52 outside, including 17 under the Torrens system. Transfers were as follows:

BUYS VACANT AT TWENTY-SECOND AND ROCKWELL

There were several interesting transactions in vacant, some of the smaller ones involving large flat improvements.

There was filed for record an interesting transaction in industrial vacant at Rockwell, Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets in which Warren Pease, an attorney, acquired 504x120 feet, south front, in Twenty-second street, twenty-four feet east of Rockwell street, also 528 by 125 feet at the southeast corner of Twenty-first place and Rockwell street. An undivided half interest was acquired from Charles A. Pulsifer and the other half interest from Edward S. Rogers and Annie F. T. Camp, trustees of the estate of Mary F. Thompson, for a total of $57,500, or $28,750 for each half interest. It is understood that Mr. Pease is taking title for clients, who plan extensive manufacturing improvements. White & Tabor were the brokers.

In another deal in vacant in the northwest part of the city, Albert O. Anderson has purchased from Charles E. Simpson and others the vacant block bounded by Diversey, Parker, Kilbourn, and Kenton avenues. A nominal consideration is given, subject to an incumbrance of $6,500, but the figure is understood to have been about $24,000. The property fronts 612 feet on Diversey and Parker avenues and has been subdivided into forty-four lots, with twenty-five foot business lots on Diversey and thirty foot residence lots on Parker avenue.

WEEK MARKED BY GOOD DEALS IN APARTMENTS

Two Transactions on the North Side Are Unusually Large.

Apartment property again figured conspicuously in the week's market, business including some unusually interesting transactions. Possibly the aggregate volume, measured by the number of transactions, was not quite up to the general average of late, but this was compensated for by two unusually large north side transactions, which featured the week's market in this class of property.

There were not as many medium priced transactions as was the case during the previous week, the falling off being quite noticeable.

Burr A. Kennedy, an official of the International Harvester company, was the purchaser in one which covered the comparatively new twenty-seven court apartment building at the southwest corner of Buena and Clarendon avenues.

Price About $200,000.

It was purchased from Randolph W. Matteson and while a nominal consideration is given in the transfer, it is said the actual price was about $200,000. In part payment he conveyed vacant property in Hamilton, Ont., at a valuation of $75,000, and paid the difference in cash.

The building occupies a lot 120x191 feet and is divided into apartments of four, five, and six rooms with a gross annual rental of about $22,000. The building was completed about a year ago.

Mr. Kennedy sold the property before it was improved to Mr. Matteson, taking in exchange a nine apartment building at 1420 Leland avenue. Now after the property has been improved he has bought it back. He owns a high grade six apartment building adjoining. George W. Walker & Co. and James A. Savage were the brokers. D. L. Flannery and Otto G. Knecht attended to the legal details.

Buys Apartment Building.

Dr. W. E. Greath of Ottumwa, Ia., was the purchaser in the other transaction, acquiring from Fred Becklenberg, the builder, the new three story and English basement forty-two apartment building at the southwest corner of Kenmore and Catalpa avenues.

The building occupies a lot 100x150 feet, and the apartments contain two, three, and four rooms, having a reported gross annual rental of $20,000. A nominal consideration is given, but it is reported to have been $200,000.

The purchaser assumed a first mortgage of $85,000, gave back a purchase money mortgage of $20,000, and in addition conveyed two improved Iowa farms, together with an attractive residence and a subdivision. Regelin, Jenson & Co. represented both parties.

Deal in Evanston.

A noteworthy deal in Evanston apartment property was the sale by Blanche Zippert to Willis H. Hutson, an attorney, of the twenty-one apartment building of four and five rooms on 75x125 feet of ground at the southwest corner of Reba and Elmwood streets, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $58,000, but said to have been valued at about $85,000. The building, which is a new one, is said to have a gross annual rent of about $9,500.

An interesting transaction in northwest side apartment property was the sale by Nels B. Wold to Samuel B. Friedman of the twenty-four apartment building at 4836-42 Belle Plaine avenue, between Cicero and Milwaukee avenues. It occupies a lot 98x125 feet, and while a nominal consideration is given, subject to an incumbrance of $47,000, the actual price is reported to have been about $65,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the six apartment building at 4580-82 Calumet avenue, subject to an incumbrance of $14,200. E. C. Jacobs of Jacobs Bros. and George Burke were the brokers.

South Park Commissioner L. B. Patterson figured as the purchaser in a transaction in high grade Hyde Park apartment property. He purchased from Alfred E. Harper the attractive three apartment building in Hyde Park boulevard, seventy-five feet west of Blackstone avenue, lot 75x150 feet, south front, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000. The actual figure, however, is said to have been $80,000, and in part payment Mr. Patterson conveyed the vacant 100x174 feet at the northwest corner of Seventieth street and South Shore avenue. Each of the boulevard apartments contain ten rooms and three baths, and the building is said to have a gross annual rental of about $9,000. A. Carroll & Bro. were the brokers.

Justus Chancellor has acquired from Frederick H. Bartlett & Co. the large apartment property at the northeast corner of Jackson Park terrace and Harper avenue, lot 260x125 feet, improved with a building containing seventy-eight apartments of three, four, and seven and eight rooms. A nominal consideration is given, subject to $60,000, but the actual price is reported at $125,000.

Trades In Ohio Farm.

The high grade twelve apartment building at 600-612 Marquette boulevard, lot 90x163 feet, has been sold by Mary E. Willis to W. H. and W. L. Darlington, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000, but actual price understood to have been $40,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment a farm of 150 acres in Geauga county, O., at a valuation of $19,700. Kurt Rosenthal & Co. and Sidney L. Stein & Co. were the brokers.

Record was made of the transfer by James L. Cameron to Catherine Horan of the property at the southeast corner of Leland and Virginia avenues, lot 99x155 feet, with flat improvements, for an expressed consideration of $38,000, subject to an incumbrance of $32,200.

Benjamin G. Randall has sold to Mamie B. Corcoran the apartment property in Ellis avenue, 267 feet north of Forty-seventh street, west front, 50x190, price not disclosed.

Plans Concrete Building for Factory District

Charles R. Kappes and Louis B. Beardsley, managers of the Division street manufacturing district, have sold for Otis Hinckley and Frederick J. Kaspar, trustees, a plot, east front, 227 feet on North Kostner avenue, 267 feet north of Division street, 100x558 feet, and containing 40,153 square feet. The purchaser is Howard Baker, trustee for the Metal Block corporation, and the consideration is stated to have been $14,053. It will be improved with a one story concrete factory building to cost $35,000. The property will be served with a Chicago and Northwestern switch.

Leases and Loans

THERE was nothing doing of importance in the way of leases of business space in the downtown district last week, and this field, more almost than any other reflects the disturbing effect of the war conditions. The lessee class, both as regards store, loft and office space, seems to be sitting 'tight.' There is little moveing and little disposition to make expansions, the general belief seeming to be that it is the part of prudence to keep close to the shore waiting the effect of the government's war preparations on the general business situation. There is little or no feeling of alarm as to the future, but simply a disposition to go slow for the present.

In the mortgage loan market there is much speculation as to the probable effect of the prospective large bond issue on the supply of money available for loans and the probable trend of interest rates. There is much difference of opinion and the most experienced operators admit they are at sea as to the future. At present there is an abundance of money, with interest rates unchanged from what they have been for a long time past.

The largest loan reported during the week was a serial industrial bond issue of $600,000 underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co. in favor of Thomas Cusack & Co., one to ten years at 6 per cent, secured by all the property of the company in Chicago, Cleveland, Toledo, and Philadelphia.

An interesting feature of the loan is the agreement by the company to maintain at all times quick assets equal to all its liabilities, including this bond issue.

The Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company has made a loan of $55,000, ten years at 5 per cent, to Edward P. Hanisch on the property at the southwest corner of Randolph and Halsted streets, 23x152 feet, with business improvements.

O. H. Haugan is trustee in a loan of $72,0000, seven years, at 5½ per cent, to W. O. Evans on the Greenleaf apartments at the southwest corner of Greenview and Greenleaf avenues.

A loan of $60,000, ten years, 5 per cent, has been obtained by Herman Molner, through the Chicago Title and Trust company, on the property theast corner of Grand boulevard and Bowen avenue, 75x178 feet, payable to the State Mutual Life Insurance company.

The Adam Schillo Lumber company has given a trust deed to the Chicago Title and Trust company to secure a loan of $100,000, five years, at 5½ per cent, on the property in Hawthorne avenue, at the southwest corner of Weed street and the northwest corner of Blackhawk street, 624x220 feet to the north branch.

The same trust company is trustee to the Ridgemoor Country club in a loan of $40,000, due Oct. 21, 1921, at 5½ per cent, on the property of the club at North Sixty-fourth and Lawrence avenues.

The Central Realty and Investment company reports a number of leases in the downtown district, among which is that for Edwin B. Herts to the Commercial Truckmobile company of the three story and basement building at 1720 South Michigan avenue for a term at an annual rent of $5,000; for the Service Motor Truck company to the Schillo Motor Sales company of the one story building in course of construction at 2023-25 South Wabash for a term at an annual rent of $4,500; for the Commercial Truckmobile company to the Olympian Motors company the one story building at 1606 Michigan avenue for a term at an annual rent of $3,000; for Louis J. Friedman to William L. O'Connell the two story building at 1452 South Michigan avenue for a term at an annual rent of $6,845; for La Verne W. Noyes to the Schwartz Hungarian restaurant the north half of the bank floor of the Chemical Bank building for five years at an annual rent of $4,000; also a series of leases in the North American building at an aggregate rent of $18,400.

KENWOOD DEALS IN RESIDENCES FIGURE IN WEEK

F. Edson White Sells Property at 4920 Kimbark.

High grade Kenwood residence property figured in two interesting transactions closed during the week in both of which James J. Parker & Co. were the brokers. One was the sale by F. Edson White, vice president of Armour & Co., to Mrs. Thomas E. Wells of the property at 4920 Kimbark avenue. It is one of the most attractive residences in that part of the city, and the consideration is said to have been $50,000. It occupies a lot 56x179 feet and is a thirteen room brick colonial and was erected by Mr. White about five years ago.

The other was the purchase by Jacob M. Loeb, president of the board of education, from Eugene H. Pearson of the latter's attractive residence at the northwest corner of Kimbark avenue and Forty-ninth street. It is a fourteen room brick colonial structure on a lot 50x130 feet and the consideration is said to have been $30,000.

Peter Dicken has sold to Frank O'Malley the twelve room stone front dwelling at 438 St. James place, lot 34x146 feet, about 300 feet west of Lake View avenue, consideration nominal, but said to have been about $16,000. W. J. Boyd of W. K. Young & Bro. was the broker.

Dr. W. F. Dickson has purchased from Mrs. Sargeant and Mrs. Farnham the residence, 6200 Kimbark avenue, 50x165, reported price $17,000. T. C. Ernest of Alvin H. Reed's office negotiated the transaction.

Charles F. Goodwillie has purchased from Mrs. Ernestine Beauvais the three story fourteen room brick dwelling with 30x160 feet of ground at 416 Barry avenue, consideration nominal, but property said to have been valued at $25,000. Baird & Warner represented both parties.

High Class Apartments Now Have a Directory

A. J. Pardridge and Harold Bradley have issued an exceedingly attractive "Directory to Apartments of the Better Class" along the north side of Chicago. The directory represents the most ambitious attempt made in any American city to present to the great body of tenants a compilation in this manner of high class apartment buildings. The cover design, which is tooled in gold, is the reproduction of a historic binding in the British museum.

CASES TO TEST COMPULSION IN TORRENS LAW

Brought Before Probate Judge Horner Yesterday.

Two cases intended to test the compulsory section of the Torrens law were submitted yesterday to the Probate court for adjudication, and should the Supreme court uphold the clause governing compulsory registration of estates, it is estimated that an average of more than $40,000,000 worth of land will be registered under the system annually, providing it does not work hardship. It would result in an enormous demand upon the capacity of the registrar's office.

Judge David F. Matchett of the Circuit court, to which probate cases are appealed, sat with Judge Horner so that the cases may be sent to the Supreme court as soon as possible.

Criticism has been directed at the Probate judge because of the alleged nonenforcement of the law. It was voiced particularly at the annual dinner of the Torrens land registration league last fall, and in order to settle the matter conclusively Judge Horner caused to be prepared the two cases submitted to him and Judge Matchett yesterday.

One involving the petition of Charles D. Gastfield, trustee under the will of William D. Gastfield, states that no hardship will be worked in the registration of three lots valued at $10,000, but denies the constitutionality of the compulsory feature of the law. Answer is made by Martha Hacker, one of the Gastfield heirs maintaining the validity of the law and asking that the trustee be compelled to register. Former Judge Cutting, N. G. Moore, and Charles Bartlett were appointed friends of the court and the argument will be heard April 29. Henry Berger will represent the state's attorney.

CALUMET GOLF CLUB TO MOVE FARTHER SOUTH

There was filed for record the purchase by the Calumet Country club from August J. Steiner of a tract of 158½ acres in the township of Thornton, which is to become the new home of the club, which for many years has been located at Burnside on the Illinois Central on ground leased from the Pullman company.

The consideration in the deed is $68,400, the club giving back a purchase money mortgage of $53,400, 7 years, at 5 per cent.

The property just acquired is on the Illinois Central at Western avenue and One Hundred and Seventy-fifth street, and is a half mile north of Homewood, the station of Hillcrest being just to the north. There are to be three nine hole courses, while the building improvements are to be made in units, the first to cost $30,000. It also is expected to expend about $30,000 on the golf links.

30 Apartment Building Planned in Roscoe Street

L. C. Lewis has purchased from Frank Schroeder 120x120 feet, south front, in Roscoe street, about 500 feet west of Broadway, the consideration being nominal, but said to have been about $15,000. It is announced the purchaser will improve with a high grade thirty apartment building to cost about $100,000. J. M. Galavan & Co. were the brokers.

Harrison Riley to Speak on "The Yellow Peril"

Harrison B. Riley, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, will talk on "The Yellow Peril" at the weekly luncheon of the Chicago real estate board at the Hotel La Salle on Thursday. Mr. Riley has just returned from an extended visit on the Pacific coast.

FACTORY DEALS COVER A LARGE FIELD IN WEEK

Much Money Changes Hands in Operations in Realty.

There was much doing of an important character in factory property again last week, the showing under the circumstances being a remarkably good one.

One of the most important transactions reported covers the property at the northeast corner of Superior and Franklin streets, which has been sold by Alexander Bauer through Hodge & Chandler for $108,000, the Chicago Title & Trust company taking title for a purchaser whose name is withheld. The lot fronts 42 feet on Superior and 130 feet on Franklin street and is improved with a 7 story reinforced concrete building, recently completed. It is occupied by the Lawson Manufacturing company under a lease for 15 years from Dec. 1, 1916, at an annual rental of $7,300 net. The company is thought to have exercised an option of purchase contained in the lease.

Purchase by Goodman Company.

Record has been made of the acquirement by the Goodman Manufacturing company from the Gillette Lumber & Wrecking company of the south half of the block bounded by 48th street and 48th place, Halsted street and the Union Stockyard and Transit company's right of way. It is the fourth purchase in the block by the Goodman company and gives them control of the entire block. The company is now building in the rear of the lot on the railroad right of way a new plant to cost about $250,000. Their present plant is in the adjoining block. C. F. Durland & Co. were the brokers.

Another Factory Buy.

Another noteworthy transaction was the purchase by the Pyott company, manufacturers of cast iron pulleys, from the W. A. Jones Foundry and Machinery company of the plant of the latter at the southwest corner of North avenue and Noble street, 240x582x530 feet, with 582½ feet on the right of way of the Chicago and Northwestern railway. The improvements comprise a machine shop, power house, foundry, and some smaller buildings. A nominal consideration is given, but the purchasing company has given a trust deed to the Central Trust company to secure a purchase money mortgage of $50,000, five years, at 6 per cent. There are about 65,000 square feet of ground, valued at about $1.25 a square foot, while the improvements are valued at about $40,000.

Vault Company Buys.

The Ideal Steel Burial Vault company has purchased the plant of the Emerson-Brantingham company at Chicago Heights, comprising about four and one-half acres of land, improved with two large buildings, which are being remodeled to some extent to meet the requirements of the purchasing company. The property has direct switching connection with the C. & E. I. and the Belt railways, and while the consideration is withheld the property is said to be valued at about $55,000.

Nicholas Sievers Buys Adam Weckler Residence

The Adam J. Weckler residence in Broadway, 221 feet northwest of Roscoe street, 100x226 feet, east front, an eleven room brick structure, built in 1900, has been purchased by Nicholas A. W. Sievers for a reported consideration of $22,500. It is understood the purchaser plans to improve with a large apartment building. Madden Bros. were the brokers.

The wheat advance is still unchecked. May delivery climbed to new high figure of $2.25⅝ and closed with a net gain of 3½@3⅝c. New crop months were not relatively as strong as the May, but nevertheless showed an advance of 1¼@ 2⅝c at the finish. Trading was again in small lots and in view of the disinclination to sell the market became easily oversold, and the shorts forced to come in.

Better crop reports from the southwest and the fact that rain fell in Kansas over night, with more promised for western sections of the winter wheat belt today, restricted buying of the deferred deliveries. They advanced largely in sympathy with the May. Cash wheat continued strong and No. 2 red sold at $2.46, or better than 20c over May price. No export business was reported, but it is realized that much secrecy surrounds trading of this character now.

The mills report an abnormal flour business, and in turn the milling demand for cash wheat is brisk. Fear that there will be a big scarcity of flour has led consumers all over the country to lay in a stock. The strength in the Kansas City wheat market was a feature and influenced some buying here. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 563,000 bu, against 941,000 bu a year ago. Local receipts were 40 cars. Primary receipts totaled 737,000 bu, against 951,000 bu a year ago.

Corn Offerings Limited.

Corn advanced to new high levels largely because of the lack of selling pressure. There was some fair buying, but the scarcity of pit offerings was a conspicuous feature. The further advance in wheat was also a factor. Demand for cash corn was again good, but sales were not made at as strong premiums as recently. It is reported that the country offered corn to arrive more freely, and the trade expects the movement to increase as soon as oats seeding is finished.

A fair decrease in the visible supply of corn is looked for on Monday. Cash corn was quoted steady to a shade higher with sales as high as $1.40¾, a new top. No corn cleared from the seaboard yesterday. Primary receipts were 601,000 bu, against 684,000 bu a year ago. Local receipts for the week totaled 1,672,000 bu, while 934,000 bu were shipped.

Oats at Higher Level.

Oats also ruled firmer, closing ½@¾c higher. There was further buying of May oats by Mincer, while the local trade in general was inclined to fight the advance. Northwest and St. Louis houses sold oats. Cash oats were steady to a shade higher. No shipping sales were reported. Clearances from the seaboard for the day were 39,000 bu. Primary receipts were 897,000 bu, against 644,000 bu a year ago. Local receipts for the week were 2,236,000 bu with shipments 2,167,000 bu.

Provision trading was irregular. Lard was under considerable pressure from large longs, while the ribs met with some support from packing interests. Hog prices ruled steady. Receipts at western markets this week totaled 441,400 head, against 446,000 last week and 471,000 a year ago. Local meat shipments for the week were 16,226,000 lbs, against 18,350,000 lbs a year ago, while lard shipments were 7,738,000 lbs, against 6,077,000 lbs last year. Liverpool spot lard was is 6d lower, hams 1s 6d higher, and bacon 1s@1s 6d higher.

Firm Market for Rye.

Rye was firm. No. 3 sold at $1.85 and No. 2 closed $1.86 bid. Receipts were 9 cars.

Barley rules quiet, due to limited offerings, but sales are made at strong prices. Malting quoted $1.25@1.45 and sold $1.28@1.42; feed and mixing quotable $1.15@1.27, and screenings 50c@$1.15, with rules of latter at 94c; skimmings were quoted 85@95c. Receipts, 17 cars.

Timothy seed was strong. September sold $7.60 and cash lots $2.50@6.25. Clover seed was sharply higher. Cash lots quoted $12.00@17.00 and spot prime $17.60 nominal.

Flaxseed closed 8c higher. Cash quoted $3.19@3.20 nominal. Minneapolis was 5c; Duluth, 7¼@8c, and Winnipeg 7½@ 7¾c higher, respectively.

AMERICAN GRAIN MARKETS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 14.—WHEAT—Cash: No. 1 hard, $2.30½@2.43¼; No. 1 northern, $2.34¼@2.37¼; to arrive, $2.33½; No. 2 northern, $2.27¼@2.36¼; No. 3 wheat, $2.15¼@2.27¼. Futures: May opened $2.16@2.17; high, $2.30; low, $2.16; closed $2.16¼@2.19. July opened $2.10; high, $2.13; low, $2.09¾; closed $2.12½@2.13¼. NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

That there has been a good deal of needless hysteria in regard to the growing wheat conditions I sindicated by the report of C. E. Baker, who for the last week has been investigating crop conditions for Simons-Day in Kansas. "The rains of the last week show there has been little winter killing of wheat in the big Kansas wheat territory," said Mr. Baker, who returned yesterday. "The rains also have made the drought damage light. Fields that were supposed to be dead have greened up nicely and the general outlook is normal, with prospects for a moderate plow up, while the original acreage sown last fall in the state was 8,800,000 acres. After the rains I went back over territory previously covered and practically all the fields were good. It is fortunate that the weather has been cool. If it had been hot there would have been serious damage, but if weather conditions from now on are favorable the prospects for a big Kansas crop are good."

There was big buying of May oats, led by Mincer, and some of the local professionals who have been successful on the bull side of corn were credited with buying oats. The big bull factor in oats is the relatively low price at which this cereal is selling. With the opening of navigation a liberal decrease in stocks is expected. Cash prices are well above the futures, which should decrease the chance of big deliveries. On the other hand, there is no material decrease in receipts, which are larger in the west than a year ago. Some damage to early sown oats is reported in parts of Illinois. Commission houses supplied the offerings of oats on the bulge.

Cash wheat premiums were strong again yesterday and both No. 2 hard and No. 2 red sold at 20c premium over May. In other markets prices for cash grain were firm and there was a fair inquiry. Local business was quiet and no sales were reported. Cash corn and oats were strong relatively, but receivers said there was some increase in offerings. Peoria reported more corn offered for thirty and sixty day shipment, farmers being satisfied with present prices. No sales of either corn or oats were reported.

Reports on winter wheat from both Kansas and Nebraska were more favorable. Since the rains there has been material improvement in sections where the wheat was supposed to have been nearly a total loss. In the Republican river valley of Nebraska the outlook is improving. Kansas advices were much more favorable. Several board of trade men who have returned from California within the last day or so said the Kansas outlook was surprisingly good, the rains evidently having produced a great change. Some reports indicate the plow up will be much less in Kansas and Nebraska than was indicated early.

Liverpool reported the oats demand less active, due to liberal purchases of Canadian oats. Arrivals were said to be increasing. Continental and United Kingdom demand for flour was good with offers light. Light export offers of corn were reported.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 40 cars; corn, 45 cars; oats, 133 cars; rye, 9 cars; barley, 17 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 31,000 head, and for all next week, 125,000 head.

A message from Oklahoma sent by F. W. Langenberg of St. Louis said wheat was looking fine, with cool rainy weather over most of Oklahoma reported yesterday.

Some export business in oats was reported from the seaboard with some foreign government buying of futures. There was also some evidence of business in corn.

Kansas City wired Hulburd-Warren-Chandler: "The action of cash corn here would indicate the feeding demand has been supplied at least temporarily."

Minneapolis stocks decreased 60,000 bu for one day. Minneapolis mills were fair buyers of cash wheat. Flour shipments for the day were 63,000 brls.

The official forecast was for more rains in Kansas, and yesterday's map showed further precipitation in the southwestern part of the state.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The cotton market was comparatively quiet today and fluctuations were irregular, but rallies followed an early decline, with the close steady, net unchanged to 5 points higher. July contracts sold up from 19.89c to 20.12c and closed at 20.05c. Better weather was reported east of the river, which contributed to the early selling movement, but no rain was reported in the southwest, and the forecast for cloudy or unsettled conditions in that section tomorrow carried little promise of relief from drought. Reviews from the dry goods trade indicated continued activity. Fall River sales for the week amounting to 350,000 pieces, against 150,000 last year. One of the weekend crop reviews said that cotton planting had been stimulated by the advance in prices, but that the plant had received a poor start, especially in the southeast. Another noted the droughty condition in southwest Texas, and said that some of the bottom lands in Alabama were still flooded with preparations on the whole backward. The report of the census bureau showed domestic mill consumption 602,230 bales for March, compared with 618,754 last year, excluding linters. Domestic mill stocks on March 31 were 2,045,585 bales, against 1,979,764 last year. Port receipts today were 14,156 bales; 6,373,514 bales for the season; exports today, none; for the season, 4,460,935 bales; stock, 1,125,059 bales. Futures:

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 14.—Week-end liquidation weighed against the prices of cotton today, but the market maintained a steady undertone and a disposition to recover. In the early trading there was a rise of 2 to 9 points, then the market fell off to a level 6 to 14 points below yesterday's. Later in the session there was an advance and last prices were at a net decline of 2 to 4 points. Futures:

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The market for coffee futures opened at an advance of 6 to 9 points on covering and overnight buying, which probably was inspired by the peace talk and the firmer tone of the cost and freight market late yesterday. PUBLIC OUT OF TRADE.

New York, April 14.—Covering of short contracts by professionals and the activities of pools were the sustaining features of today's brief session, public interest being almost wholly lacking. Trading centered around those specialties comprising the various semi-war division, sugars, oils, and shippings recording variable and in some instances noteworthy gains.

Cuban-American Sugar was foremost in point of advance, gaining eleven points at 201 on reports of an early "melon cutting." Other sugar issues rose 1@2 points, with 1@2½ for prominent Petroleums and shippings and 1@ 1½ for equipments.

United States Steel held its usual place as the most active stock at a gross gain of 1¼ points, with 1@2 for Lackawanpa, Crucible, and Gulf States Steel, and 1 each for Republic and Virginia Irons.

Motor Accessories Up.

Motors were inclined to ease, but accessories of that group, especially United States Rubber and Goodrich, were better by a point or more. Wilson packing led its especial class at an advance of 3 points, with 1 to almost 2 points for General Electric, American Woolen, Industrial Alcohol, Sears-Roebuck, International Paper, and Continental Can.

Pronounced weakness was shown by Peoples Gas of Chicago, which made a sheer decline of 9½ points to 81, the reduction in the dividend seeming to come as a surprise although foreshadowed in the annual report. Kindred utilities were affected, Consolidated Gas losing 4¼ points and Brooklyn Union Gas 1¼. Ohio Gas forfeited a 2 point advance the first hour.

Today's dealings in bonds were irregular, foreign issues, however, holding strong. United States bonds were from ½ to 1 point lower on call during the week, the coupon 4s losing 2 points on actual sales.

NEW YORK BANK RESERVES SHOW BIG DECREASE

Deposit Shrinkage Partly Offsets Loss—Market Is Not Influenced.

The weekly statement of the New York associated banks shows a loss of $38,729,820 in the excess reserve, being about as forecasted. The decrease in cash was over $42,000,000, but there was a shrinkage of $39,500,000 in deposits, which reduced the reserve requirements. Most of the loss in cash was to the federal reserve bank, which throughout the week showed large credit balances at the clearing house. Although the probable character of the figures was known in the market, there was no reflection of the unfavorable exhibit in the market. Following is the statement:

Chicago Securities.

The packing house stocks showed further gains on the local exchange and Swift & Co. made a new high record at 103½. Wilson & Co. was up 3¼ points from the previous day. Cudahy made a gain of 3½ points.

Peoples Gas stock opened 10½ points below the previous close, the initial quotation being at 80. The fall was due to the cut in the dividend rate. The shares were active in New York. The final quotation locally was at 82. It is assumed there will be no further reduction in the dividend. At 80 the shares net 5 per cent, with every prospect of a further increase, rather than a decrease.

Trading Restricted on Curb.

Trading in local unlisted securities was rather restricted in volume, with some evidence of liquidation in a number of issues. Butler Brothers declined from 273 to 267, closing 266 bid, offered at 278. Avery common was about a point lower at 89 bid, offered at 90½. The preferred was steady at 98½ bid. Little interest was shown in Consumers, the preferred being offered at 76½, with buyers at 75. Deere preferred changed hands at 98. Emerson Brantingham preferred was unchanged at 38@40. Moline Plow preferred, after selling at 97½, reacted to offerings at 96, with buyers at 95. United States Gypsum common and preferred were quiet, 35½ being bid for the former and 97 for the latter.

Motor securities were weak, Reo Motor Car declining some 5 points to sales at 30, closing at 30½ bid, offered at 31½. Paige-Detroit was also off about 4 points, being quoted at 33@35. Continental was unchanged at 7¼@7¾.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

At the annual meeting of the Mexican Petroleum company the manager of production and transportation informed the stockholders that by the end of the present year the company will be in possession of 250,000 tons of shipping service, as compared with a total today of approximately 46,000 tons. The new ships will be secured by charter from the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, which is the largest stockholder in Mexican Petroleum. With the added tonnage it is expected that earnings of the company will develop a large increase unless unforeseen circumstances should upset present plans.

It is the opinion held in Wall street that most of the enemy securities in this country are of recently reorganized railroads which have been sent here for the purpose of exchange for new securities issued after the reorganizations.

A governor of the stock exchange says that the board will probably take action in the near future to prohibit dealings in stocks and other securities bearing stamps of enemy countries.

According to information from Independence, Kas., decrease in production in the Mid-Continent field is expected to cause an advance in the market price of crude oil within a few days. Fancy premiums are already being paid for high grade crude. The scarcity of water for drilling purposes and inability to get drilling material have brought the bringing in of new wells far below normal. No new field of consequence has been brought in since the Augusta, Kas., field, which now is on the decline.

American Locomotive company's net profits in the March quarter felt the stimulus of large shell production. The company earned about 12 per cent on its $25,000,000 common stock. For the fiscal year to end June 30 the company is expected to show a balance of over 30 per cent on the common stock.

The United Cigar Stores for the month of March showed an increase of $600,000 in sales over one year ago. For the first three months of the calendar year the increase was $1,600,000.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company for the three months ended March 31 shows an increase of a little over $236,000 in the surplus account.

Hogs opened steady at Friday's average and closed weak, with about 2,000 head left over unsold. Receipts were posted at only 7,500 head, but shippers were indifferent bidders and local packers continued to exert bearish pressure. Top sales were made at $16.35 and the bulk at $15.90@16.25.

Final prices made hogs 20@35c higher than a week ago, while pigs were up mostly 50c a hundred pounds. The average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $16.16, a new record mark, and compared with $15.45 last week. Receipts for six days were 116,709, a decrease of 4,000 for the week and 31,000 short of arrivals for the corresponding week last year.

CATTLE.

A generous increase in receipts enabled buyers to control beef cattle values at Chicago this week and the market closed at a net decline of 40@50c from last week's final figures. Trade was of good volume and fancy fat beeves reached a new record price at $12.85, but there was an overabundance of the plain to choice steers and packers were given an opportunity to cheapen many purchases made at high costs previously. Receipts for the week exceeded the preceding week's supply by 15,000 head and were more than 10,000 head in excess of arrivals for the same week a year ago. The market closed in good condition, with sellers looking forward to a recovery of all price losses in the near future, in spite of the fact that prices generally are highest ever known for the season of the year.

Cattle at seven markets for the week, 181,500, against 137,800 the preceding week, 126,000 a year ago, and 118,100 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 2,430,000, against 2,118,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

Sheep and yearlings finished the week at an advance of 25@50c, compared with a week ago. Wool lambs were 50c higher and shorn lots 25c up for the week. The market closed in a strong position at the best prices for the period. Receipts for the week showed a slight increase, but the trade was broad and demand urgent. All offerings were closely taken, with best lambs topping the market at a new record price of $16.00, while sheep sold up to $12.75.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY SEES BIG PROFIT IN ONION CROP

Ashleigh W. Brittain Is Planning to Farm Five Acres This Summer.

Mr. Elderly Man Too Old for Office Work—

Mr. Office Clerk Who Didn't Get the Raise You Expected—

Mr. Boy Who Never Had a Chance—

Read about how Ashleigh W. Brittain, a Chicago high school boy, proposes to spend his vacation this summer. Ashleigh is too young to enlist, so he decided to do the next best thing—farm. He decided on onions. In order to start right he interviewed dozens of onion authorities in the city.

Didn't know there were onion authorities? Ash knew.

Being more or less of an amateur, Ash was told he could raise about a pound of onions to a foot of row. There are sixty-six rows 660 feet long in one acre. That made over 43,000 feet of row. Figuring only four out of the five acres as productive, Ash concluded he could put in about 264 rows. This would amount to about 174,240 feet of row. Cutting the estimate of a pound of onions per foot of row in half, to allow for rosy dreams and poor crops, Ash figured on a minimum of 87,120 pounds of onions. Onions could not possibly sell for less than $40 per ton. Therefore, forty-five tons plus would sell for about $1,720.

Ton of Fertilizer.

Not satisfied with the estimates furnished by the farmer, Ash went to a manager of the Armour fertilizing works and received not only a verification of the figures but an agreement to sell him a ton of fertilizer containing 1 per cent nitrogen, 2 per cent potash, and 12 per cent phosphate for $29.50, that, it is said, being just cost price, the profit deducted for good will. The fertilizer man also referred the boy who had the onion vision to an expert on the subject. Ash called on the expert, who gave him two hours of his time and backed up all the farmer had told him.

So Ash got samples of his soil and sent it to Champaign to be analyzed. It came back with the memorandum that it was a little bit too acid, so the expert advised that Ash use a couple of tons of lime.

Seed and Cultivator.

The latter part of March Ash called on a seed firm and bought twenty pounds of Yellow Globe Danver, for which he paid $30. He looked at cultivators and decided on one that cost $8. He arranged for the plowing and dragging to be done at a cost of $25. Then he made him up a little table:

COST.
Plowing and dragging	$ 25
One and a half tons fertilizer	40
Twenty pounds of seed	30
Cultivator, hoes, etc.	10
Lime	5
Nitrate of soda to feed crop after it first comes up	20
Lime for soil	5
Total	$130

Actual cost, not including cost of land, which was supplied by Ash's father, $130.

Estimated sales income, prognosticated by Illinois farmer, verified by fertilizer expert who sold to Ash at cost, and backed by onion expert who gave Ash free advice, $1,720.

Total profit for the season, $1,600. Think it over.

How to Pay for the War

Immense war appropriations are being considered by Congress. We support these appropriations because a large sum of money must be immediately available.

Probably it will be necessary to follow these appropriations with others.

The important thing is to be clear in our own minds as to how to deal with the indebtedness which the issue of bonds and certificates will represent.

The debt must be paid by taxation of all incomes, except very small ones, on the lines suggested below. Our Committee recommends that incomes below $2,000 a year be exempt from taxation, for the reason that people of such moderate means will be taxed enough by the increased cost of living due to the war.

This is the Committee's policy. We believe that it is a just one. It is also in substantial accord with the policy of the President outlined in his speech of April 2nd, when he asked Congress to declare war. Speaking of the war, Mr. Wilson said:

> "It will involve also, of course, the granting of adequate credits to the Government, sustained, I hope, so far as they can equitably be sustained by the present generation, by well conceived taxation."

If these "adequate credits" (the war bonds and certificates) are not paid for by an income tax, how will they be paid? They will be paid chiefly by the wage earning classes and the people of moderate means in taxes and revenues, and in the increased cost of food, fuel, rent and other necessaries of life, caused by high taxes and revenues. For, in the long run, it is the consumer who shoulders the burden of taxation.

The country must have large and prompt appropriations. But let us guard against hastily adopting, during this first emergency of war, unwise and unjust methods of finance.

We ask the earnest attention of every patriotic citizen to the declaration and pledge printed below.

DECLARATION!

Will You Stand by Your Country?

In WAR, the country needs two things: MEN and MONEY.

Rich and poor must be ready to make patriotic sacrifices. But the poor man will make the greatest sacrifice. He will do the bulk of the fighting, because he forms the bulk of the population. He will offer to his country more than life itself—for, if killed, or disabled, he leaves his wife and children helpless, dependent on charity or the State.

But war does not only demand its toll of human life. It requires a limitless expenditure of money. Never in the history of wars has money been so necessary to military success. (Great Britain alone is spending THIRTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS a day as her share to the war's expense.)

What, then, is the duty of all citizens of means, those who have a comfortable surplus, and especially all who will remain at home protected by the sacrifice of the nation's young manhood? The least that can be done by the men and women with bank accounts, the men too old to fight, and all other people of means who do not go to the front, is to bear their share of the nation's burden by the free and prompt offering of their wealth to the nation's cause. America needs more than spoken loyalty from its citizens who stay at home. It needs real support.

In war, the burden of fighting must be carried by those who are physically strong and fit to fight. The burden of finance must be borne by those who are financially strong and able to give. Above all, the war must be paid for as it proceeds, in dollars as well as in lives. There must be no crushing legacy of bonded debt to be paid in taxes by the men who have done the fighting and their children. Let us make this a cash war, a pay-as-you-enter war. Let all loyal citizens who have incomes above their immediate necessities volunteer their wealth.

The people of the United States have never failed to respond to their country's need. They never will. In our Civil War a million men (a quarter of the whole population of military age) volunteered at Lincoln's call during the first year. But the nation's private fortunes did not volunteer. They declared for patriotism, while they profited on the country's necessity. Congressional committees disclosed gigantic graft and thefts from the government in war contracts. The public need not be reminded of the experiences during the Spanish-American war. Let us not forget these bitter lessons of history.

In the name of honor, justice and the country you love, sign the pledge below.

PLEDGE

I hereby request that the Congress of the United States shall immediately enact legislation providing substantially for the following measures:

1—That there shall be levied on all net incomes in excess of $2,000 (for unmarried persons) and in excess of $3,000 (for married persons) an annual war tax, beginning at 2 per cent. and increasing on a sliding scale to a point which will permit of no individual retaining an annual net income in excess of $100,000, such war tax to continue until all bonds and other obligations issued for war purposes are paid.

2—That all war supplies or war service, including transportation, shall be furnished to the Government at a reasonable profit, to be fixed by Congress.

3—That Congress shall enact legislation preventing the sale of necessaries of life during the war at excessive profits.

4—That intentional failure to supply the Government with correct figures as to income or as to profits on such sales and service, and that furnishing the Government with defective war supplies, shall be a felony, punishable by imprisonment.

I pledge myself to support and use my influence, in so far as I am able, to further the prompt enactment into law of such measures.

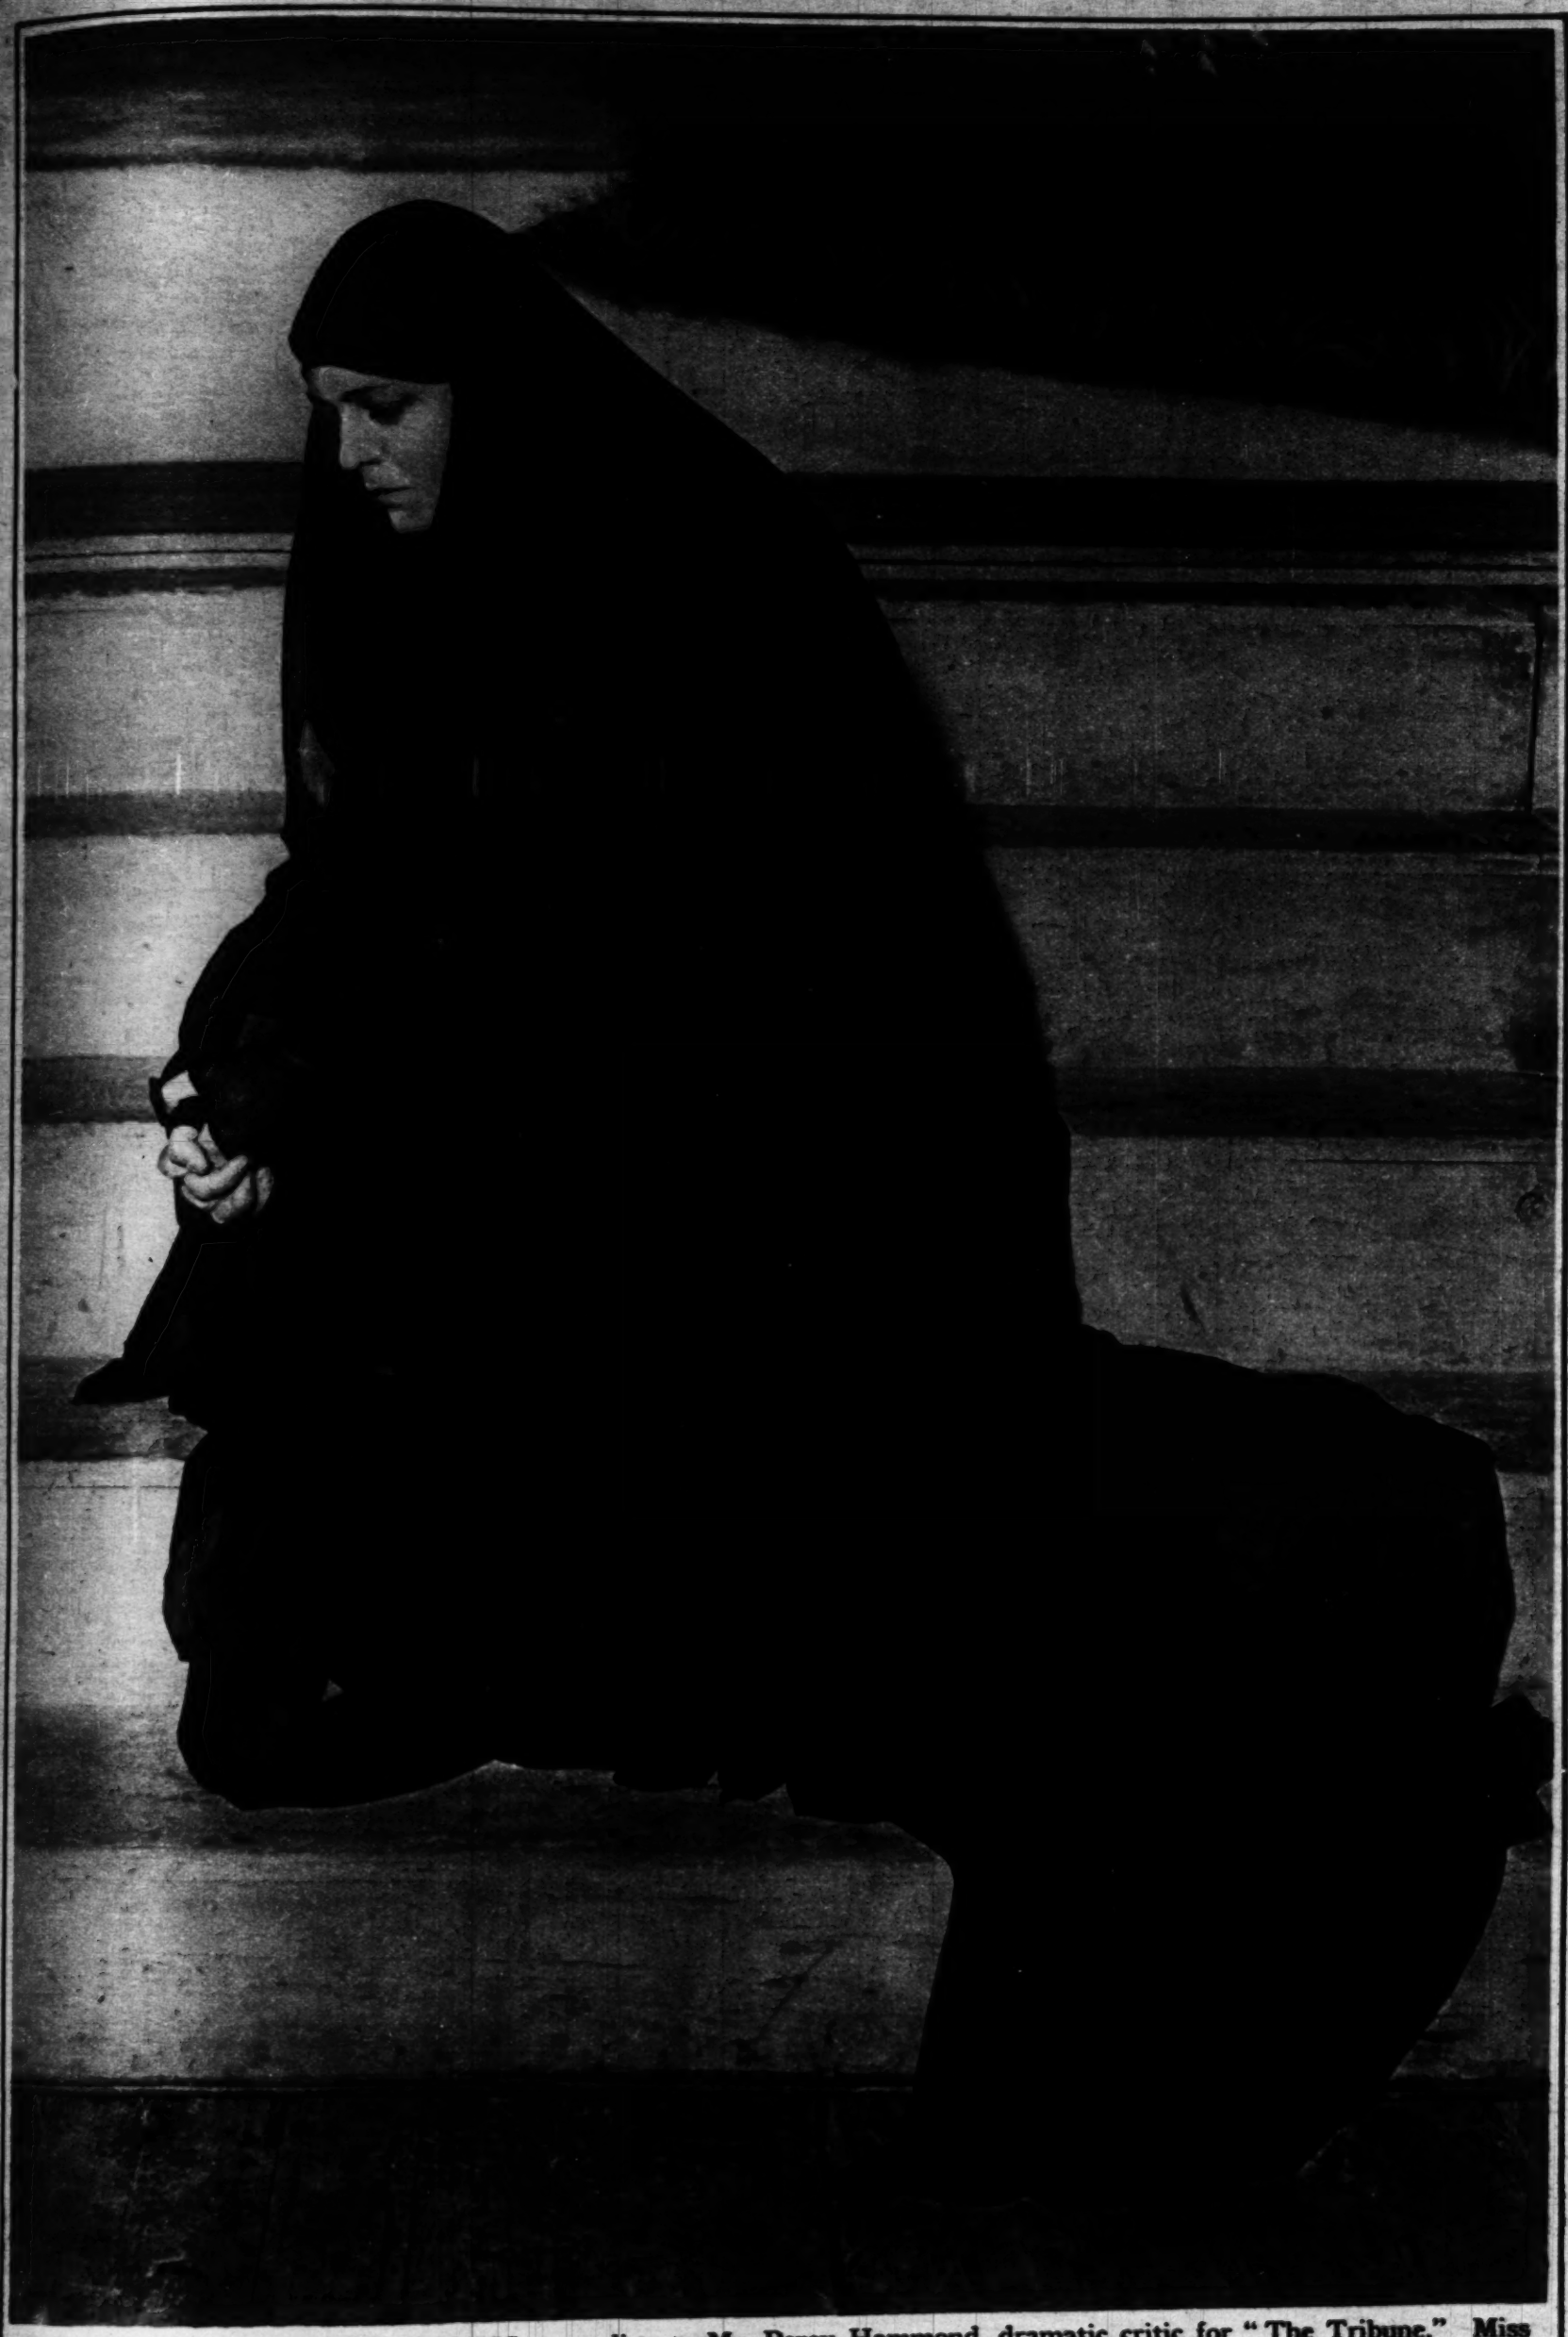
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

APRIL 15, 1917



AMERICA'S FIRST ACTRESS, according to Mr. Percy Hammond, dramatic critic for "The Tribune." Miss Ethel Barrymore, coming from a family whose activities have been identified with what is best on the American stage, and possessing extraordinary histrionic talents, combined with a keen intelligence, has gone into the movies. In private life she is Mrs. Russell Colt. She is pictured here as the "Widowed European Mother" in a charity tableau held in New York.

The Story of YUBAN

The Private Coffee of the Greatest Coffee Merchants

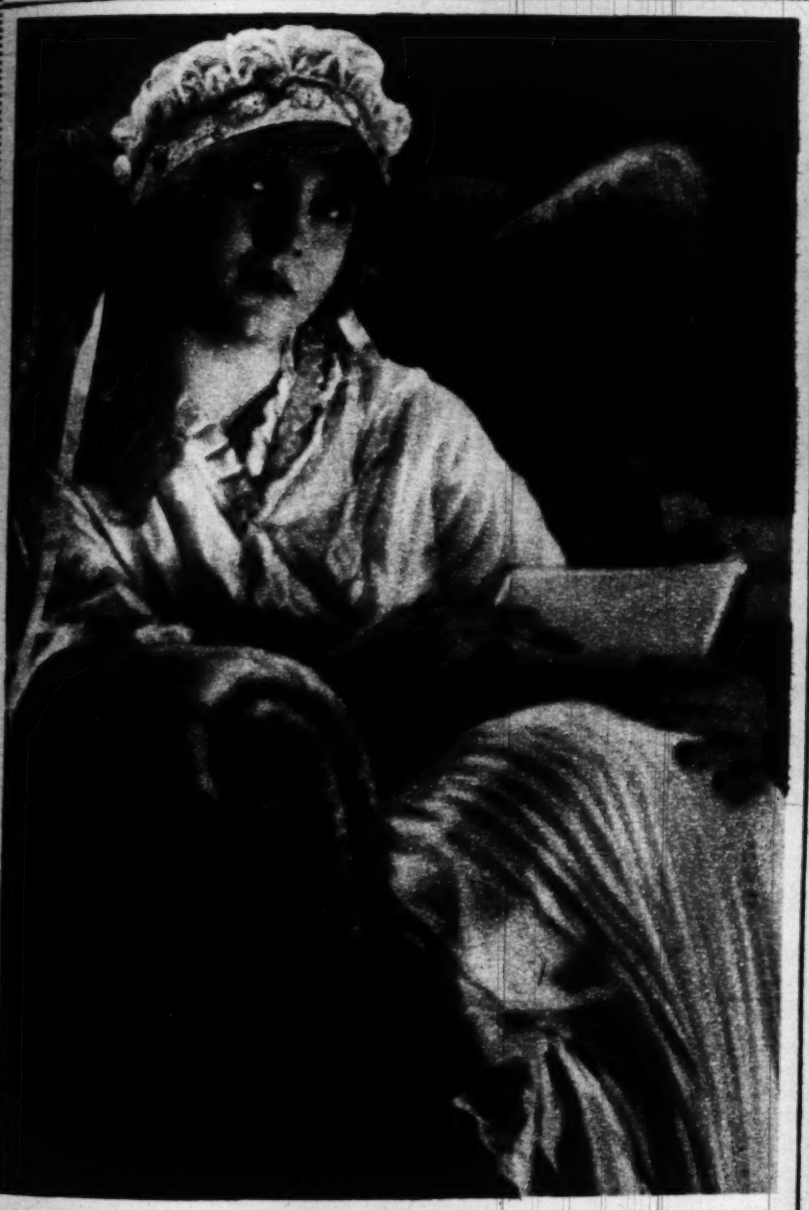
HAVE you tasted it? Read the story on the back of the package. From all the coffees of the world, Yuban was selected for the private use of the greatest coffee merchants.

Order a package from your grocer today—the price is the same as that of ordinary coffees.

(Next week pictures of Margery Wilson, William S. Hart, Margarita Fischer and Florence Reed will be found on this page.)

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, next to Charlie Chaplin, is the highest salaried actor in the world.

VIVIAN REED, known as the "girl with the $10,000 smile." She is with the Selig company.



MARY MILES MINTER, whom George Jean Nathan, a New York dramatic critic described as "a lovely bit of sapphire shot with sunlight." She is the young actress the Mutual corporation has picked to inherit the mantle of Mary Pickford.

GAIL KANE, American-Mutual star, is a designer of costumes as well as a screen actress.

Risking "The Handsomest Feet"

At Piping Rock, Newport, Palm Beach—wherever American women are—you will find "the handsomest feet in the world." But this title will be lost if women do not give up hard leather and wooden heels. O'Sullivan's Heels will save "the handsomest feet."

"The handsomest feet in the world

"American women have the handsomest feet in the world," says an eminent physician.

Also, the physician adds, "They abuse them more than any other race, except the Chinese."

Indeed, he believes that unless American women begin to be as careful of their feet as they are of their complexions, we will have a nation of flat-footed women.

"Shoes," he says, "have much to do with the common but dangerous condition known as 'flat foot'." He blames improper shoes and hard leather and wooden heels for this condition.

A warning against hard heels

This is his warning:

"If you feel inclined to walk less and ride more, if you prefer to sit when you used to prefer to stand, if your feet have lost their springiness—you may be sure that your arches are breaking down, or that they have already done so. Your gait is likely to become slouchy, until the once light, springy step becomes more like a dragging or pushing of the feet one past the other."

It is bad enough for a woman to deform her feet by wearing tight shoes and hard leather heels. But the other consequences of the abuse are even worse.

Tired feet mean lack of proper exercise. Lack of exercise means run-down health. Run-down health makes a woman ill-natured and generally unattractive.

Wasting a woman's greatest charm

A tired-out woman is seldom interesting, attractive or charming.

She lacks woman's greatest charm—Energy. Energy underlies all other charms. Energy is sometimes called magnetism, health, vitality, life!

If shopping tires you out—

Do you know your heels are to blame? If you wear hard leather or wooden heels you jolt much energy from your system as you walk. O'Sullivan's Heels will let you shop in comfort.

If you wear leather heels you are wasting this precious energy. Every time you bring your hard leather heels down on hard sidewalks or floors you are jolting a little energy out of your system. The average woman takes 8,000 steps a day! That means 8,000 shocks—8,000 daily energy wastes.

The total energy waste tires you out. The shocks distort your feet—and "flat foot" results.

How to preserve the "handsomest feet"

If American women are to continue to boast of the "handsomest feet in the world," they must abandon leather heels—for leather heels are not suited to modern city streets.

The best heels for city wear are O'Sullivan's Heels. They were made for city streets. They prevent "flat foot" because they absorb all shocks and strains. They take the strain off your spine.

Wear O'Sullivan's Heels and you do not waste vitality. Whether you are in your home, at your club, at business, or shopping you'll appreciate these little individual shock absorbers.

The best heels for city wear

The heels best suited to modern city streets and floors are O'Sullivan's Heels. They are guaranteed to outlast any other heels.

Because of our special process, O'Sullivan's Heels combine the greatest durability with the greatest resiliency. They are made of the perfect heel material.

Buy your new shoes O'Sullivanized. Good dealers sell the latest style shoes with these heels already attached. Have O'Sullivan's put on all your shoes at once. Every day you delay putting them on you are wasting your most valuable asset—Energy.

In black, white or tan; for men, women and children. Insist on O'Sullivan's. Avoid the disappointment of substitutes.

Woman's greatest charm

Woman's greatest charm is her Energy—Her life, vitality, magnetism depend on it. You see it in her graceful, buoyant walk. O'Sullivan's Heels save this vital energy and put buoyancy in your walk.

A Set Worthy of Its Contents

RECALL THAT GOLDEN DAY WHEN YOU FIRST READ "HUCKLEBERRY FINN." How your mother said, "For goodness sake, stop laughing aloud over that book. You sound so silly." But you couldn't stop laughing.

Today when you read "Huckleberry Finn" you will not laugh so much. You will chuckle often, but you will also want to weep. The deep humanity of it—the pathos, that you never saw, as a boy, will appeal to you now. You were too busy laughing to notice the limpid purity of the master's style.

Mark Twain

When Mark Twain first wrote "Huckleberry Finn" this land was swept with a gale of laughter. When he wrote "Innocents Abroad" even Europe laughed at itself.

In the history of the world nobody has made so many people laugh as Mark Twain. Wherever there is a written language, grown folks and children are laughing with Mark Twain. And it is no surface humor, but a humor that runs as deep as life itself—a whimsical fancy that defies trouble.

But one day there appeared a new book from his pen, so spiritual, so true, so lofty, that those who did not know him well were amazed. "Joan of Arc" was the work of a poet—a historian—a seer. Mark Twain was all of these. His was not the light laughter of a moment's fun, but the whimsical humor that made the tragedy of human life more bearable.

Besides all this, he was a peerless story teller. Never has there been anybody who could tell a story with such a swing as Mark Twain. Fascinating plots, real people, real situations, make his stories forever true.

And Mark Twain was the greatest writer of travel and history of the world, for he saw deep into the heart of things, with a freshness of vision.

Mark Twain was a fiery essayist. His love of freedom was so much a part of him that he could not see injustice without fighting it.

The whole world laughs with Mark Twain. The whole world admires and loves him, because it finds in his Americanism rejuvenation, youth, and a sane and true philosophy of life—greatness of soul.

If the Chinese, the Russians, the French, the Germans must have him, can you, an American, do without him? You can't.

The American spirit of democracy and simplicity seems to be fading away. Get it back for yourself through Mark Twain.

Why This Half-Price Sale Must Stop

Mark Twain wanted everyone in America to own a set of his books. So one of the last things he asked us was that we make a set at so low a price that everyone might own it. He said: "Don't make editions to sell for $200 or $300 and $1,000. Make good books, books good to look at and easy to read, and make their price low." So we have made this set. And until now we were able to sell it at this low price. But a thing has happened that Mark Twain could not foresee. Before the war we had a contract price for paper, so we could sell the set of Mark Twain at this present price. But now the price of paper has gone up. It has almost doubled in price. Even the price of ink has gone up. So it is impossible to make any more sets and sell them at this low price.

SEND COUPON—NO MONEY

The last of the edition is in sight. There will never again be a set of Mark Twain at the present price. This is the first announcement of the close of this sale. Take advantage of it while you can. Remember that it is because Mark Twain sacrificed some of his royalties that you can have a set at this price at all. Take advantage of that kindness that is so characteristic of him.

Get your set before these go. Remember never again will a set of Mark Twain be offered at such a price as this. When the edition is gone there will be no more. Send the coupon at once. Send it today.

A Real American

Mark Twain was a steamboat pilot. He was a searcher for gold in the far west. He was a printer. He worked bitterly hard. All this without a glimmer of the great destiny that lay before him. Then with the opening of the great wild west, Mark Twain's genius bloomed. He had found his great place.

His fame spread through the nation. It flew to the ends of the earth, till his work was translated into strange tongues. From then on, the path of fame lay straight to the high place. But his troubles were not over. At the height of his fame he lost all his money. He was heavily in debt, but though 60 years old he started afresh and paid every cent. It was the last heroic touch that drew him close to the hearts of his countrymen.

The world has asked is there an American literature? Mark Twain is the answer. He is the heart, the spirit of America. From his poor and struggling boyhood to his glorious, splendid old age, he remained as simple, as democratic as the plainest of our forefathers.

The things that will get dusty!

Even before they begin to look the least bit dingy, the silk curtains at the windows, the lace or net ones under them, the snowy lace pillow tops, the finely embroidered table linen—all are sent quickly to the Lux suds—to come back fresh and new.

Rubbing soap directly on the fabric, and then rubbing to get the dirt out is what ruins delicate materials.

The thin Lux flakes dissolve instantly in hot water—there are no pieces to stick to the fabric.

The dirt dissolves in the fluffy Lux lather, and comes out absolutely without rubbing. Use Lux for anything that can be washed in water.

Whisk the Lux flakes into a foamy lather in very hot water. Let the water become lukewarm—put in your silks or laces, let them soak a few minutes. Then dip them up and down again and again. Any spots press gently between the hands—do not rub. Rinse in three waters the same temperature as the water in which you washed them.

Where the doctor put the blame

Diphtheria broke out among several children in a family. The parents could not account for it; there had been no other cases in the neighborhood.

The mystery was only solved when the family physician, who insisted on examining the whole house, found bits of decayed vegetable matter clinging to the sides of the garbage can.

It was the mother's fault. Her children were in the sick-bed because she did not know the importance of keeping her whole home sanitary. She had never realized the necessity of having the garbage can thoroughly disinfected inside and out.

Protect your family from disease

Profit by the experience of others. Keep your garbage pail free from contagion with Sylpho-Nathol, the sure disinfectant for waste-pipes, garbage can and scrubbing.

It is a germ-killer three and a half times stronger than the U. S. Public Health Service standard. It is entirely safe. For thirty years New England women have used Sylpho-Nathol. The leading hospitals of New York and New England use this disinfectant. Let your home profit by their choice.

Keep your home sanitary

Use germ-killing solutions of Sylpho-Nathol in the course of your regular housework. In the waste-pipes, in the dark corners of the house, in the cracks of floors and woodwork, in the closet bowl; in all these places lurking disease is destroyed by Sylpho-Nathol.

Ask your dealer today for Sylpho-Nathol. Four sizes—10c, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sent prepaid on receipt of price if your dealer hasn't it. Booklet telling uses and directions with each bottle. The Sulpho-Nathol Co., 31 Medford Street, Boston, Mass.

YOUR FLAG AND MY FLAG

by Wilbur D. Nesbit.

Your flag and my flag,
And how it flies today
In your land and my land
And half a world away!
Rose-red and blood-red
The stripes forever gleam;
Snow-white and soul-white—
The good forefathers' dream;
Sky-blue and true-blue, with stars to gleam aright—
The gloried guidon of the day;
a shelter through the night.

Your flag and my flag!
To every star and stripe
The drums beat as hearts beat
And fifers shrilly pipe:
Your flag and my flag—
A blessing in the sky.
Your hope and my hope—
It never hid a lie!
Home land and far land and half the world around,
Old Glory hears our glad salute and ripples to the sound.

Your flag and my flag—
And, O, how much it holds—
Your land and my land—
Secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart
Beat quicker at the sight,
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed—
Red and blue and white.
The one flag—the great flag—
the flag for me and you—
Glorified all else beside—the red and white and blue!

ROMANCE, REGULAR LODGER: No. 2

by Berton Braley

"Just as they were going to put the bracelets on me the lights went out—and I ducked and got away."

The Story of the Meek and Timid Young Man with the Pink Neckties.

"ANYHOW," said the writer, "you had to go to Alaska for your plot of Mrs. Musser's story. You said there was romance right around me, but that romance was four thousand miles away and twenty years ago. So I don't think you've quite made good on the proposition you made me."

"I didn't say I'd give you a New York story," the landlady protested. "I said I'd show you that the people right here in this commonplace boarding house were all living or had lived romance and that you'd find it if you looked for it. But, no matter what I said, I'll tell you a New York story, too, if you want it. And the hero—if you've got to have a hero—is Nelson, the little guy with the pink neckties and the ladylike manners."

"And the title is, 'Nelson the Perfect Lady, or Life Among the Fudge Fiends,'" suggested O'Neill. "Come on, now, you can't make me believe that little whiffet has any story in him worth the telling."

The landlady smiled rather pityingly. "Son," she said, "you're young—that's why there are so many things people can't make you believe. When you're my age you'll learn that there isn't anything you can't believe. You'll get wise to the fact that most of the really true stories are the ones people can't believe. But I'm going to do something for you. If you won't believe me, may be you'll believe Nelson.

"He's in his room now. I'll call him down and have him tell you his story. And you can make your choice of accepting it as truth or putting it down as a lie. It isn't such a wonderful story, at that, only I'm trying to prove to you that you don't know local color and good stuff when it's right around you."

"Will he talk to me, though?" doubted O'Neill.

"He will if I ask him to," said the landlady. "He owes me a good deal—though not in money." She went to the foot of the stairs and called up:

"Mr. Nelson! Mr. Nelson!"

A door on the third floor opened and a voice answered: "Yes, Mrs. Harrison?"

"Can you come down to the dining room a moment? I'd like to talk to you."

"Certainly." His door closed quietly and the young man came swiftly down the stairs. As he entered the dining room and saw that O'Neill was there he started back involuntarily and his face went almost blue white. Then his eyes sought Mrs. Harrison's questioningly—and fearfully.

Mrs. Harrison smiled pleasantly.

"No, Mr. Nelson," she said, "don't be afraid. Mr. O'Neill is all right."

Quick relief succeeded the fright in Nelson's eyes.

"I—I beg your pardon," he said, "it was very rude of me. I—I'm very nervous and I'm afraid I get scared at nothing now and then."

"Mr. O'Neill," said the landlady, "is just exactly what he has told us he is, Mr. Nelson, a writer. And he was kicking today because he couldn't find romance around him anywhere. So I told him that there was a real story in everybody in this house—even you. He thought you looked and acted so polite and ordinary and everyday that there wasn't any story to you—and I told him you'd change his mind."

"O, I couldn't, Mrs. Harrison," said the young man, nervously. "I haven't anything worth telling to him. There's thousands like me, you know."

"Mr. O'Neill's quite safe to talk to," the landlady urged, "he may use your story, but he won't do it so you'd be known."

"Mrs. Harrison has dragged you all the way down these stairs to tell me a story," said O'Neill, "and, now you're here, you really ought to tell it. Honestly, I won't use it if you'd rather not."

"Well, it isn't much," said Nelson, "but you can have it so long as Mrs. Harrison says you're all right.

"I was born on the east side and brought up with a very bad lot of boys, Mr. O'Neill, boys that gambled and played in the streets and had a wicked little gang before they were 12 years old. And I was as bad as any of them, I guess. I used to lead the raids on the fruit peddlers' carts, and later, when we got to stealing things off push cart stands on Grand street—you know they sell almost everything—furs and kitchen stuff and jewelry and clothes off push cart stands in Grand street—why I used to lift the stuff while the other boys got the push cart men's attention."

There was a subtle change in the manner and bearing of Nelson as he began to talk of his beginnings. The embarrassed and rather precise manner vanished and in its place came something of the genial insolence and pride of the skilled worker in his work. Also he began to drop into the argot of the streets, forgetting, largely, his more careful and correct diction.

"I was a fairly smooth article, take it from me, and though the bulls—the police, I mean—tried to hang something on me now and then, they couldn't quite put it over. The whole thing was a good deal of a game to me and I didn't think much of the right and wrong of it. O, yes, I went to school, but the stuff they taught me there about right and wrong didn't seem to fit very well with the life I was living outside, so I didn't let it worry me. For one thing, they told me in school that honesty was the best policy—and all the time the guys that were cleaning up the most money and having the most fun—as far as I could see—were the biggest crooks and grafters around.

"Well, I went to reform school once—the only time they got me—and learned a lot more tricks and deviltry, and by the time I was 20 I was about the neatest dip on the east side. I could nick a block—lift a watch, I mean—while the man was looking at me and he wouldn't know he'd lost it—and when it came to getting a gink's roll—safety pin and all—out of his inside vest pocket I was a wiz. And nobody, police or anybody else, ever landed me again for a job. I was dressing swell and living high and the straight and narrow looked about as attractive to me as a hair shirt would to somebody that had been wearing silk.

"And then I met a little girl. She was just a salesgirl in a Grand street store—kind of flip and fresh, you'd say, and not very educated—but a wise little dame and square. I'd played around a lot with the other kind and I tried to pull the same stuff with her—but she wouldn't stand for it a minute.

"Being sort of a tough and cynical cuss—the life I'd lived doesn't make you very innocent—I thought I wouldn't have anything more to do with her if she wasn't like the rest—but I found that I'd fallen so hard for her I couldn't keep away. And I came back again and said I was sorry and—well, I was in love for fair. I gave her jewelry and stuff like that and took her around to shows and dances and everything was lovely until one day she asked me where I got all my money. And before I got through I told her.

"Zowie! but there was some excitement. She began telling me a few things about what she thought a guy ought to be—and then what I was—and the two didn't go together at all. And when the session was over I'd promised to quit the crook stuff and play the game on the square. Not because I could see much to the honesty game myself, but because she wouldn't stand for me unless I did. And I was crazy enough for that girl to be a preacher if she wanted me to.

"I stood fairly strong with the district leader where I lived because I was a good vote herder round election time, and when I asked him for a job he found one for me. The night before I was to go to work the girl and me went to a dance. While I was there my old gang boss came around and said he had a job he wanted me to do—some guy to be beat up. I'd never done much of that stuff and I hadn't played much with the gang for several months anyhow, so I said nix. Besides, I told him I was going to square it and get a job. He was sore about it and there was some words, but there wasn't any real trouble, though he went away cussing.

"Fifteen minutes after that he was shot in the back, and because I'd been having with him the cops hung it on me. It wasn't me, it was Slink McGrew, who'd been looking for him for two weeks, but Slink croaked him and got away and I was the guy they grabbed. They found a gun on me all right, why shouldn't they?—they planted it there—because there'd been a lot of gang jobs pulled off lately and the newspapers were making a kick. And I was the fall guy.

"Just as they were going to put the bracelets on me the lights went out—and I ducked and got away. And as I went down the corridor I saw a woman near the switch—it was Mame. She'd turned 'em off as I could have a chance to beat it.

"As I ran past her she whispered, 'I saw McGrew. Lay low and I'll get him.'

"Now the best place to hide from the New York cops is New York—so I came here—to Ma Harrison's. And I started to lie to her and finished up by telling her the truth. And Ma Harrison took a peroxide bottle and made me from a brunette into a blonde—and she cut my hair different and told me always to wear pink neckties, blue being what I used to wear, and she goes down to Grand street once or twice a week and talks to Mame—and brings me back the news. And the news is that Mame is going with Slink McGrew—to get the goods on him. So that's about all my story so far. Except that Ma Harrison carried me a month when I was broke, and then——"

He paused and grinned widely—"and then got me a job in the police department."

"In the police department!" exclaimed O'Neill.

"Sure," said Mrs. Harrison. "I couldn't have him hanging around here running up a board bill and doing nothing, so I heard of a special clerkship down at headquarters—and I went to my good friend Pete James, the inspector, and took this boy down and gave him the job. They would never think of finding the man they want among the police clerks, anyhow, and the pay is good. So there we are."

"And I'm sitting tight waiting until Mame can put the job he done on to McGrew and the central office stops looking for me," said Nelson. "When Ma Harrison called me down just now and I saw you with her I thought maybe headquarters had got wise and you'd been sticking around to land me and I had pretty little pictures of the chair in my head. I don't like that kind of movies."

"And in spite of the fact that you made easy money out of being a dip and were one of the best in the business, you still think honesty is the best policy?" queried O'Neill.

"Sure," said the ex-dip, "otherwise I'd keep these." And out of his pockets came O'Neill's watch, his pocketbook, his silver handled knife, and his cigarette case, and handed them back to their owner.

"I'll be damned," said the writer.

IN A "BLIND PIG"

by Oney Fred Sweet

Hank Had Been Around A Lot And He Didn't Intend To Be A Camel

"Sh-hh, not so loud," the proprietor was complaining.

HANK was a worldly wise person. He had been around a lot. We were loafing together in the drug store of the little town and the pink light from one of the big glass globes in the window reflected against his blase features. He buttoned the collar of his overcoat and gave a nod of his head to indicate that we should step outside. It was a mysterious nod.

"Let's go and get a little drink," he suggested in a low voice—the sort of voice that a burglar might use to a pal in planning a second story job.

I looked up and down the street. Saloons had been voted out of the place years back. There were few of the natives abroad—the town marshal, a huddled group shivering along to prayer meeting in the chill of the spring night.

"You will have your joke," I laughed. "Invite a man to a drink when you know the town's 'bone dry.' Where you going to get it?"

"I don't know yet,' Hank answered seriously. "That's what I'm looking for now—some one to put me wise."

Half a dozen persons passed before Hank approached any one. Finally a youth emerged from the pool hall. How Hank recognized him as belonging to the fraternity of booze fighters I don't know, but he made the approach with the utmost confidence and in a moment he called me over to where the two were consulting in low tones. There were no introductions. The three of us started off down the street.

We felt our way down alleys, we picked our way through vacant lots, we stumbled across plowed fields. It was a most legitimate looking, old fashioned livery barn we finally came to. We crashed over tin cans and tripped against parts of discarded wagons and farm implements until we reached the rear. All was darkness, but our new found friend seemed to know where he was going. When we entered the barn he stepped to a certain point in the blackness and knocked. At first there was no response. Then the door opened but slightly and the crack that was made let through a flood of yellow light. Then the door opened wide enough for the three of us to enter.

There must have been a dozen men in the room, aside from the one who had first scrutinized and then greeted us at the door. They seemed to be seated aimlessly about, but before we had blinkingly wormed our way among them to a table they were resuming what we had for the instant interrupted. Some of them were drinking from tall bottles filled with brown stuff that foamed at the top and some of them were toying with tiny glasses that contained a quiet amber liquid. Just what code passed between Hank and the man who admitted us I didn't catch, but whatever it was brought three of the tall bottles to our table.

The man who had admitted us and who waited on us and made change from Hank's dollar bill was a huge fellow. He wore a black flannel shirt and he smoked a corncob pipe. After he had set the three bottles before us, he leaned down and looked me over.

"They're all right," assured our new found friend.

"I know," laughed the man with the corncob pipe, "but at the same time I don't like to take any chances. How's all your folks, Eddy?"

I don't recall what commonplace our new friend answered. I was looking around the room. Its bare board walls were covered with calendar pictures of pretty women and rural scenes. The unblackened stove in the corner was being kept red hot; you could smell the blistering pine. The fraternity—the fraternity that, regardless of laws and teachings to the contrary, just would have its drink—was continuing with its briefly interrupted session.

"You know where we are, don't you?" Hank asked me. "We're in a 'blind pig.' It's got so it's fierce being on the road these days with the prohibition wave spreading everywhere. The last year or two I've had to learn enough sign languages to qualify me for a war spy. I know places where I've got to wink in order to get a highball out of the soda fountain and restaurants where I have to ask for 'tea' and then drink it out of a china cup. I don't know what we're coming to, the way things are getting. Right now we don't know but what we'll be pinched before we finish these bottles."

"If you don't mind," suggested our friend, "I'll take a little 'shot' on you. I've had a bad cold the last few days."

He waited until the man in the black flannel shirt had turned his back before he poured from the big bottle into the tiny glass, then filled it to the brim. Up until the time he had gulped down the drink from the tiny glass he had been rather a drab personality. Now, as he finished making a face over the taste of the stuff, he seemed transformed. The drink had brought him up to normal.

He was about 30 years of age, I should say, but an old man in his pessimism and gloomy dejection. Ten years back I could picture him as the town cutup. He still wore a coat that had been dashing in that period of his fleeting early youth—a long cut coat decorated with fancy flaps at the pockets. No doubt, ten years back, the hint of liquor on his breath had added to his glamour. But all the counteracting charm of youth was missing now; he no longer drank in a spirit of deviltry.

There were no plate glass mirrors in the place; there was no music. Simon Slade brought forth his wares from the darkness of a side room and he promptly removed emptied bottles back to the cavelike darkness. Of course his name wasn't Simon Slade; I was taking that name from "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." Yet he reminded me of Simon Slade and he was at that stage where he himself was resorting to the thing that he sold to cheer others. No doubt every night had its worries. But I knew that even Joe Morgan might be present—as he undoubtedly was—no little Mary would come in to sing "Father, Dear Father, Come Home with Me Now," because Little Mary wouldn't be enough of a detective to be able to locate him.

Along with his second bottle of beer Hank started in to tell the story of his life. He told about the big sales he made on the road where his competitors failed. He told of tilts in the keen world of business from which he had always come forth victorious. He told us of the flattering offers that had been made him by rival firms. He began to tell us stories.

"You've probably heard this one," he prefaced, as he rolled a cigaret. "There was an American traveling in France. You've heard it? You haven't? Well, this fellow met a girl in Paris—a swell girl—and she gave him a card with something written on it in French. Now if you've heard this one, say so. Maybe it's old; I don't know. Well, he couldn't make out what was on the card. One day he went into a cigar store over there and after he'd bought a cigar he asked the clerk to translate the card for him. The clerk glanced at it and right away ordered him out of the store. He kept the card in his pocket a long while and finally showed it to the clerk at the hotel where he was stopping and asked him what it meant. The clerk read it and then made him take his baggage and get right out of the hotel. Well, he tried it place after place and always with the same results; he was treated the same way. When he got back to America he decided to go with the card to a college professor. 'I'll translate it for you,' said the professor. And what do you suppose was on that card?'

"What was on it?" we asked in chorus.

"I don't know," smiled Hank, lighting his cigaret. "The fellow found, when he looked in his vest pocket, that he had lost the card."

Funny? It was one of the funniest jokes we had ever heard. Our laughter was cut short, though. There was a noisy argument going on over by the stove that gave promise of ending in a fight. One of the patrons of the place had been too good a patron. He still wanted to be a patron real badly, but he no longer had anything to be a patron with. Besides he had begun to slip from his chair by the stove.

"Sh-hh, not so loud," the proprietor was complaining. "The people'll hear you across the street."

"Old Tom is one of the best plumbers in town," explained our new found friend. "He's been here for years. No one knows where he came from. He'll plug along about so long and then he has to go and get stewed. When he sobers up he won't take a drink for weeks; you couldn t force him to. Good workman, good fellow, but when he falls off the wagon he falls hard."

"I hate to see a man make a hog of himself," Hank commented, turning back from the scene of the argument. "Any one ought to know when they got enough. Did I tell you about the time when I was on the road last summer and had to depend on patent medicine? Finally I struck a hotel where the cook was having the real stuff shipped in. Say, I never had a glass of beer taste so good in my life. He couldn't keep it on ice and it was sickly warm, but I'd been a camel so long it certainly touched the spot. The next time I made the town the cook was gone. They'd finally caught him at it. I tell you it's getting worse all the time. You take out in Iowa——"

But we never learned the details of how the "terrible thirst" was quenched in Iowa.

Somebody was vigorously trying the door!

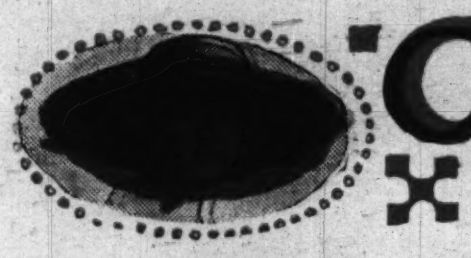
It became silent in the room.

Then came a heavy banging on the door and a demand for immediate admittance.

"Out through this way," generaled the proprietor in a whisper. "Take your stuff along with you. I'll stay here and be working at my books."

Fifteen minutes later I came across Hank at the drug store. My clothes were in pretty bad shape and my hands were bruised because I had stumbled over tin cans and come in contact with a barbed wire fence, but Hank was worse off; he had burst his way through one of the barn windows. He was again standing in such a way that the pink glass globe in the drug store window reflected against his world wise features, but he was still too much out of breath to be thoroughly composed.

"Ain't it hell?" he commented when I joined him. "Ain't it hell the way things are getting?"



CAPTIVATING MARY CA

SYNOPSIS.

Elbert Carstairs, estranged from his wife in his old age, longs for the companionship of his daughter Mary, who lives with Mrs. Carstairs at Hunston-on-the-Hudson. The child refuses to come and visit him. Mrs. Carstairs refuses to force her to do so, and hence old Carstairs engages Larry Varney to take the Carstairs yacht up the Hudson and kidnap Mary, who Varney believes is but 12. Varney gets the help of Peter Maginnis in the venture. Arriving at Hunston, the two ally themselves with Hare, a campaigner for reform against the dictatorship of Boss Ryan. Varney is accused by Coligny Smith, owner of the Gazette, which is under Ryan's thumb, of being Ferris Stanhope, author of pink tea literature, and is advised to leave town unless he wants trouble. The same evening Varney, fleeing from a heavy rainstorm, takes shelter in a cottage—and finds a strange young woman there. She proves to be Mary Carstairs. Further, she accuses him of being Stanhope. Varney learns through a magazine article the reason why he is accused of being Stanhope. It seems from the article that Stanhope is about to return to Hunston, from which he had fled months before after escapades with several girls. Maginnis has also found adventure plotting to "steal" Boss Ryan's big political meeting and turn it to one for Hare and reform. Varney and Maginnis become aware of a mysterious stranger who followed them when they came to town, and who is continually on their trail. They suspect him of being a secret spy of Boss Ryan. Varney is accused again of being Stanhope and is advised to leave town. Maginnis, true to his promise, steals Boss Ryan's meeting after first kidnaping Ryan. Varney gets Mary Carstairs' promise that she will dine on the Cypriani the following Thursday. Still believing him Stanhope, Mary snubs Varney at the meeting, threatening to break her engagement for Thursday on the yacht. The next day the Gazette has a scurrilous article about Stanhope—and his picture. Of course this settles Varney forever in the townspeople's mind as Stanhope. It is Boss Ryan's blow to discredit the reform move. Still further, it raises a barrier between Varney and Mary. The Gazette keeps harping on the Stanhope-Varney identity story, and finally Hammerton, one of its reporters, wires a story to the New York Daily, which, realizing the prominence of Carstairs, Varney, and Maginnis in New York, makes a "hot" mystery story of it—the very thing Carstairs warned against. Praying that Mary won't see the Daily story, Varney moves the Cypriani down stream to elude the metropolitan reporters that are sure to appear. Hammerton follows, gets on board by a ruse, and learns from Varney's lips that his real object in coming to Hunston was to kidnap Mary. He tries to escape with the news and Varney grapples with him.

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT.

Ryan Plots Again.

HE came up dazed, game, but very wild, and Varney got another chance promptly, which was just as well. Hammerton went down again, head-on once more, and this time he did not come up at all.

The crew, unable to repress themselves, let out a cheer, and came crowding on the deck. But Varney, standing over Hammerton's limp body, waved them back impatiently.

"Hold your noise!" he ordered. "And stand back! I'm attending to this job!"

He picked Hammerton up in his arms, staggered with him to his own stateroom, and laid him down on the bunk. The boy did not stir, gave no visible sign of life. But when Varney put his hand over the other's heart, he found it beating away quite firmly. His breathing and pulse were regular—everything was quite as it should be. He would come round in half an hour and be as good a man as ever. And he would have a long, idle time to rest and look after his bruises and get back his strength again.

Varney took the key from the door, put it in outside, turned it, and came on deck again. The crew had vanished to their several haunts. Two deck hands in blouses and red caps had just completed the rehabilitation of the deck, and at sight of him discreetly vanished forward.

"Ferguson," called Varney, "a word with you, please."

The grizzled sailing master came quickly, obviously curious for an explanation of these strange matters.

Rapidly Varney explained to him that the incarcerated man was a reporter who thought that he had got hold of a scandalous story about Mr. Carstairs, and was most anxious to get ashore so that he could publish this scandal all over the country.

"I am obliged to go to town immediately," he continued. "Rumors of this ugly story have already been started, and I must do everything I can to nail them. I am going to trust the responsibility here to you. As soon as I leave the yacht I want you to start it down the river. That is, to get the gentleman and the yacht out of the way. Go straight ahead for two or three hours and then come back. Make your calculations so that you'll get back here at—say 10 o'clock tonight—here, mind you, not the old anchorage. I'll be ready to come aboard by that time. Have two men guard that stateroom constantly every minute. Give the gentleman every possible attention, but don't let him make any noise, and don't let him get out. No matter what he says or does, don't let him get out. Do you follow me?"

"I do, sir. To the menootest detail."

"If you carry the matter through, you may rely upon Mr. Carstairs' gratitude. If, on the other hand, you fail——"

"O, I'll not fail, sir. Have no fear of that."

"I am speaking to you man to man, Ferguson, when I say, for God's sake don't."

He walked away to arrange himself a little for the town, seeing clearly that there was but one possible way out of all this for him now. The sailing master stared after him with a curious expression upon his weather beaten face.

At about the same moment, in a tiny room four miles away, an elderly, melancholy man sat bowed over a telegraph board and drowsily plied his keys. He was the Gazette's special operator, and, having his orders from Mr. Parker, who looked after the news bureau when Hammerton was away, he was methodically going through his list like this:

"Tribune, Pittsburgh: Ferris Stanhope or Laurence Varney? Baffling mystery surrounding prominent men, one of whom now hiding here. Probable scandal, 1,000 words."

"Press, Cincinnati: Ferris Stanhope or Laurence Varney? Baffling mystery——"

. . . . . .

Varney crossed the square in the gathering dusk and went slowly up Main street, looking about him as he walked. He had wrenched his ankle slightly in one of his falls upon the Cypriani's deck, and the four mile walk over the ruts of the river road to the town had done it no good. Worse yet, it had made the trip down from the yacht laboriously slow, and he was harried with the fear that the irreparable damage might already have been done.

If it had not, if no reporter had yet gone to the Carstairs house, his one possible hope of escape stood before him like a palm tree in a plain. Stiffened and strengthened by all his difficulties, his resolve to win throbbed and mounted within him; but he faced the knowledge that the odds now were heavily against him. On the long chance, he had played a desperate game, had come within an ace of winning, and had lost. His great secret which, beyond any other purpose, he had meant to guard to the end, was glaringly out. Now it was the iron heart of his will that it should go no further. Talkative young Hammerton had given him the hint how it might be accomplished; and if the method was extreme, it would be sure. Whatever the cost, it would be a small price to pay for keeping his name, and Uncle Elbert's, out of ruinous headlines in tomorrow's papers.

Two blocks further on he came opposite a neat, three story brick building, across the width of which was a black and gold signboard, lettered "The Gazette." Below it was the large plate glass window of a counting room, now dark. On the left was a lighted doorway, leading upstairs.

Varney crossed, climbed the stairs, found himself in a narrow upstairs hall, rapped upon a closed ground glass door bearing the legend "Editorial." From within, a voice of unenthusiasm bade him enter, and he went in, closing the door behind him.

In a swivel chair by an open roller top desk, a young man sat, idly smoking a cigarette, his back to the door, his languorous feet hung out of the window. There were electric lights in the room, but they were not lit. All the illumination that there was came from a single dingy gas fixture stuck in the wall near the desk, but that was enough.

Varney came closer. "Smith," said he.

"Well," said Smith.

"I have come to see you."

"Well—look away," said Smith.

There was not a trace of the "Hast thou found me?" in the editor's voice or his manner. If he expected assassination, he did not appear to mind. He sat on without turning, staring apathetically out of the window, just as he had done when he watched Varney cross and come in at his door.

"I have come," said Varney, "because I understand that you are the sole owner, as well as the editor, of this paper. Am I right?"

Smith lit a fresh cigarette, flipped the old one out of the window and paused to watch the boys outside fight for it. Half smoked stubs came frequently out of that window when Mr. Smith sat there and many boys in Hunston knew it.

"Assuming that I am?" queried he.

"Assuming that," said Varney, "I'll say that I have come to buy this paper. And to discharge you from the editorship."

Smith drew in his feet, and swung slowly around. The two men measured each other in an interval of intelligent silence. On the whole, upon this close view, Varney found it harder to think of Smith as a contemptible cur who circulated lying slanders for profit than as the young man who wrote the famous editorials.

"And still they come," said Smith, enigmatically. "Three of them in one day—well, well!" And he added musingly: "So I have stung you as hard as that, have I?"

"Let us say rather," said Varney, whose present tack was diplomacy, "that I have some loose money which I want to stow away in a paying little enterprise."

"I am the last man in the world to boast of a kindness," continued Smith, in his faintly mocking manner, "but I gave you fair warning to leave town."

"Instead I stayed. And an exceedingly interesting town I have found it. Something doing every minute. But, as I just remarked, I have looked in to buy your paper."

"If I were like some I know," meditated Smith, "I'd be thinking: 'The Lord has delivered him into my hand, aye, delivered dear old Beany.' I'd embarrass you with questions, make you blush with catechisms. But I am a merciful man, and observe that I ask you nothing. You want to buy the Gazette for an investment. Let it stand at that. So you're the money grubbing sort that supposes everything on God's hassock has its price?"

"I believe it's street knowledge that the Gazette has its. But I called really not so much to discuss ethics as to ascertain your figure."

Smith gave a sigh which was not without its trace of mockery. "Fortunately, I am hardened to insults. Editors are expected to stand anything. Times are dull—nothing much to do—drop around and kick the editor. You've no idea what we have to put up with from spring poets alone. Rejoice, B——, that is, Mr.—er—Blank, that the Gazette is never to be yours."

"You can't mean that you decline to sell?"

"When I implied to you just now that I was sole owner of the Gazette, I was, of course, speaking rather reminiscently than in the strict light of present facts."

"What do you mean by that?"

"That I sold the Gazette at 4 o'clock this afternoon."

For an instant the room whirled and Varney saw nothing in it but the odd eyes of Coligny Smith steadily fixing him. By the shock of that blow he realized that, after all, he had wholly counted upon succeeding in this. From the moment when he had turned his stateroom keys on unconscious Charlie Hammerton, he had recognized it as his one chance. And now he was too late. Clever Ryan, who missed nothing, doubtless suspecting that the faithless editor who had sold out once to him might now be planning to do it again to a higher bidder, had outstripped him. And the Gazette tomorrow would damn him utterly.

But Varney's face, as these thoughts came to him, wore a faint, noncommittal smile. "That is final, I suppose?"

"As death, so far as I am concerned. I leave Hunston permanently tomorrow morning."

"Who was the buyer?"

"There is really no reason why I should divulge his confidence that I know of; but, curses on me, I'll do it if you'll tell me this: Where is Charles Hammerton?"

Varney laid his hat and stick on the table, to rid his hands of them, and faced Mr. Smith, leaning lightly against it.

"I came here, Smith, to ask questions, not to answer them. On second thoughts, I withdraw my last one, for I can guess the answer. But before we proceed further, I want you to tell me this—what made you sell?"

The editor pitched another cigarette end out of the window. Again a shout from the street indicated that it had become a bone of bitter contest among the town's smokers of the sub-rosa class.

"Suppose I were to tell you," said Smith slowly, "that I anticipate a shakeup here which will cut the backbone out of my profits? What would you say to that?"

"I suppose I should say that it was ever the custom of rats to desert a sinking ship. So that was your mainspring, was it?"

"On the contrary," said Smith. "I am taking what is technically known as a small rise out of you. You ask why I sold. It was a man with the price. Money," began Mr. Smith, "screams. The cash on my desk was this man's way of doing business, and a good deal it was. However, it'll net him 6 per cent year in and out, at that—a rate in these lean times. I, of course, do better. I got—shall we say? —pickings. The past tense already, heigho! Well, it's been a most instructive life. My father taught me to write. He was esteemed a good editor, and he was, but at 18 I war correcting his leaders for him. Hand Greeley a soft pencil and a pass at the encyclopedia, so he could, to say, and he could prove anything under the sun. I am like that, except that—well, I don't believe I need the encyclopedia. It wasn't Greeley who made the remark, of course. It's a rule on the press to pin all journalistic anecdotes on Greeley. You sign the pledge when you go in.

"To be accounted strictly moral," continued Smith, "an editor must be blind in one eye and astigmatic in the other. Then he rings the bull's-eye of Virtue ten times out of ten, and the clergy bleats with delight. You can't find spiritual candor anywhere with a telescope, except in the criminal classes. There are no Pharisees there, God be praised! For my part, I see both sides of every question that was ever asked, as usually—don't you think?—both of them right. I first adopt my point of view and subsequently prove it. Obviously, this is where the pickings come in. My grandfather started this paper on $250, $50 of which, I have heard, was his own. I could have set off for life as an idle member of the press gallery classes, I suppose, but after all, I was made for an editor. In years past I have had, of course, had my offers from New York. Two of them were left open forever, and a little while ago I telegraphed down and took the best. A grateful wire came in five minutes ahead of you. And that," he concluded wearily, in the flattest tone of curiously flat voice, "is the life story of Smith, editor, up to the hour of going to press."

Varney, who had never once been tempted to interrupt this strange apologia, struggled with an impulse to feel desperately sorry for Mr. Smith, and almost overcame it.

"Smith," he said, in a moment, "why did you tell me why you sold?"

The editor got up and stared out of the window. Presently he turned, an odd, faint flush tingeing his ordinarily colorless cheek. His air of smooth cynicism was gone for once; and Varney saw then, as he had somehow suspected before, that the editor of the Gazette wore polished bravado as a cloak and that underneath it he carried a mute, troubled soul.

"You are right," said Smith, "I—was twigging you again. Let us say," he added, looking at Varney with a kind of stern, set-faced defiance, "that a man gets tired of living on pickings after a while."

If he had been ten times a liar, ten times a slanderer and assassin of character, a man would have known that the young editor spoke the truth then. That knowledge disarmed Varney. To have sold the Gazette to one who would prostitute it still further was hardly a noble act, but for Smith it meant unmistakably that he wanted to cut loose from the old evil walks where he had been ill by his honor and battened exceedingly.

"All along," said Varney, slowly, "I had had a kind of sneaking feeling that there was a spark left in you yet."

He picked up his hat and stick again and faced the pale young editor.

"Smith, you have done me a devilish wrong. You have knowingly printed a foul slander about me, aware that the natural result of your falsehood was that some poor drunken fool would shoot me down from behind. When I walked in here five minutes ago I had two purposes in mind. One was to buy your paper. The other was to thrash you down the front stairs. I am leaving now without doing either. I abandoned the first because I had to; I abandon the second voluntarily, because—I don't quite know why—but I think it is because it seems inappropriate to hit a man when he is down and something is just driving him to try to scramble up."

He put on his hat and started to go, but Smith stopped him with a gesture. His eye, from which all sign of emotion had faded, run slowly over Varney's slender figure.

"I wasn't such a slouch in my college days," he said. "Football at my prep school, football and crew at my college. Boxed some at odd moments; was counted fair to middling. Some offhand practice since with people I've roasted—agents, actors, and

But about the moment when his foot hit

. . . . . .

At 6:30 o'clock, or thereabouts, James ackley dragged slowly up Main street.
e was garbed in his working suit of denim ue, trimmed with monkey wrench and ilet, and he wore, further, an air of exag-rated fatigue. A rounded protuberance on his cheek indicated that the exhilara-n of the quid was not wanting to his ner man, but the solace he drew from it peared pitifully trifling. Now and then would pause, rest his person against a mp post, or the front of some emporium, d shake his head despondently, like one t fearful of the consequences of certain tters.

Since 4 o'clock that afternoon, in fact, Mr.
ackley had been out upon a reluctant stint lawn mowing, reluctant because he hated work with a Titanic hatred and sedu-ously cultivated the conviction that his was delicate health. In view of the magnifint windfall in connection with the killing his dog, it had not been his design to ept any more retainers for a long time come. That occurrence had lifted him, by the ears, from the proletariat into the pitalistic class; and the map of the world d become but the portrait of his oyster.

But at noon as he lolled upon his rear rands, chatting kindly with his wife as e hung the linen of quality upon her dry-
g lines, a lady had knocked upon his door, utiful and insistent, to wheedle his will n him. It was only a tiny bit of a lawn, e had reiterated imploringly, hardly a stitutional to cut, and there was not one fellow in all Hunston whom she would rmit to touch it but Hackley. Dead to all ttery as he was, his backbone ran to ter at the clinging beauty of her smile, d so incredibly betrayed him into yielding.
d now, at hard upon 6:30 o'clock, post eridian, the dangerous dews of night al-dy beginning to fall, he leaned against a lamp post, a physical wreck, with a long block and a half still separating him from the comforts of home.

At the next corner but one above rose the red brick Ottoman, its inviting side stretching for many yards down the street towards him. Windows cut it here and there along its length, and over their green silk half curtains poured forth a golden light which was hospitality made visible. Yet, so strange are the ways of life, the proprietor of all these luxuries, who stood at the furthest window, beyond Hackley's range, did not look happy in their possession. His eyes gleamed fiercely; his heavy chin protruded savagely, as though deliberately insulting Main street and the northward universe. Even his small derby, which he seldom doffed save at the hour for taps, contrived to bespeak a certain ferocity.

The Ottoman bar was bare of customers, all Hunston now verging towards its evening meal. Ryan rested his elbow upon its polished surface, and glared into the twilight. He was, as luck had it, in a terrible ill humor. For he knew himself today for a man who had been physically flouted, a boss whose supremacy had been violently assailed, a king who felt his throne careen sickeningly beneath him.

Last night, when four men whom he had never seen before, three of them masked, had borne him off on a long wild drive, and dropped him at 10 o'clock in a lonely bit of country eight miles from the Academy theater, there had at least been action to give point to his choler. All but out of his mind with passion, he had besought them all, singly or quadruply, to descend from their carriage and meet him in combat, thirsting sorely to kill or be killed. But they had only laughed at him, silently, and galloped away, leaving him screaming out futile curses on the empty night air.

Two hours later, when he had got back to Hunston, after an interminable nightmare of running over rough ground with unaccustomed limbs, and stumbling heavily to earth, and rising up to struggle again, he had learned to what uses his enemies had put that absence. Smith had related the story in the fastness of his office, and in wholly different guise from that which it wore next morning in the columns of his newspaper. And Ryan, listening, had slowly calmed, calmed to the still fury of implacable hate.

But he and Smith had quarreled violently. He was for publishing the story of his taking off in type as black as the dastardly act. Smith had a difficult time in holding him down, however much he pointed out that Ryan had no shadow of proof against his new adversary on the yacht, and that public sympathy in an affair of this sort was always with the successful. In the end Smith had carried his point, because he was, of those two men, both the more wise and the more resolute. But this morning they had conferred again and quarreled even more bitterly.

Yet Ryan, plotting in the window of his splendid gin palace, his eye always sweeping the evening street as though a-search was not thinking of the young editor now. Two other policies for the days to come monopolized his attention. One of these was crushing victory at the polls. The other was revenge. Probably in thinking of these he put them at the moment in reverse order.

"Damn him!" he suddenly exploded; and it was not little Hare that he cursed. "Damn his soul!"

In the next breath the boss suddenly ducked, and disappeared from the half curtained window altogether. A moment later he appeared outside his swinging door, yawning and stretching himself as one who, wearied with the tedium of life indoors, would see what beguilement might await him abroad.

The boss looked first up the street and permitted his beady eye to range casually over the view. Then his gaze came slowly down and rested in fime upon the person of James Hackley, now almost directly opposite. The boss' countenance lit up with a smile of pleased surprise.

"Why, hello, Jim!" he called out. "Where you been hidin' yourself lately? Ain't seen you for a week o' Sundays. Come across and pass the time of day!"

Mr. Hackley, who had been debating whether or not he should pause for inspiration at the Ottoman, and had just virtuously declared for the negative, shambled over.

"He came up dazed, but very wild."

Ryan eyed him sympathetically. "You look kind o' played out, Jim. What you been doin' with yourself? Come in and take a drop of somethin' to hearten you up some. On the house."

"Well," said Mr. Hackley, unable to resist the novel fascination of liquoring gratis, "just a weeny mite for to cut the dust out o' my windpipe."

Ryan went behind the bar and served them himself, selecting with care a bottle which he described as the primest stuff in the house. From this he poured Hackley a remarkably stiff potion, slightly wetting the bottom of his own glass the while. The bottle he left standing ready on the bar.

"Here's how, friend Jim!"

Whatever Mr. Hackley's foibles, he was a man at his cups. His platform was the straight article uncontaminated by ice or flabby sparkling water; and chasers and the like of those he left to schoolboys.

"Ain't took a drink for days," he said, holding up his glass to the electric light and squinting through it. "Cut it out religious, I have. Been settin' around the house, an' settin', under physic'an's orders, tryin' fer to get my health back so's I could go to moldin' agin. But Lordamussy, what's the use of torkin'! I ain't no more fitten fer work than a noo born baby. Well, here's luck, Ryan!"

He set his glass down and involutarily smacked his lips. The fiery liquid percolated through him down to his very toes. He felt better at once, more ambitious, less conscious of his constitution. And simultaneously, he lost something of that indolent good nature which was the badge of all his sober hours.

Ryan regarded him with friendly anxiety. "You gotter be more careful with yourself, honest! Here—strengthen your holt a little. One little swallow ain't no help to a man as beat out as you are."

"As yer like, Dennis," said Mr. Hackley, listlessly. "What I reely need is a good long rest, like in a 'orspittle."

Kindly Mr. Ryan filled the small glass almost to the brim; and Hackley, though he had modestly stipulated for "on'y a drap" tossed it all off thirstily at a single practiced toss.

"That'll fix you up nice. But ain't I glad," said his host with a sly chuckle, "that nobody sees you taking these drinks on the quiet, which we know you need bad for your health."

Mr. Hackley set down his glass again, this time with something of a bang. "How's that?" he demanded suspiciously.

Ryan laughed deprecatingly. While doing so, he manipulated the tall dark bottle again.

"Shuh!" said he. "It's only the boys' fun, of course. Don't you mind them, Jim."

"What 're you drivin' at?" asked Hackley, bristling a bit. "If you got anything worth sayin' to me, spit it out plain, I say."

"Well," laughed Ryan, "if some of the boys was to see you in here putting away a harmless drink or so, o' course they'd say that you was gettin' up your Dutch courage. He, he!"

"Dutch courage!" cried Mr. Hackley, indignantly. "An' wot the hell fer?"

"Sh! Not so loud, Jim. Why, it's only their little joke, o' course. They'd say you was gettin' up your nerve to meet them two friends of yours from New York! Hey? He, he!"

"Wot friends?" asked Hackley again, hotly.

Ryan observed the mounting color on the ether's cheek and brow, and his eye, which was like a small, glossy shoe button, gleamed.

"Why, that 'un that killed that dog o' yours, and put you to sleep before the crowd, and that 'un that sent Mamie Orrick to Gawd knows where. But shucks! Drop it, Jim. I wouldn't have allooded to it, on'y I thought you'd see the fun of the thing."

It takes a philosopher to perceive humor in taunts at his own personal courage, and Mr. Hackley, with three drinks of the Ottoman's choicest beneath his tattered waistcoat, was not that kind of man at all.

He leaned forward against the bar with a belligerence suggesting that he wished to push it over, pinning his pleasant spoken host to the wall, and pounded the top of it till the glasses tingled.

"Fill her up with the same!" he ordered loudly, looking suddenly, and for the first time, very much like the rough looking customer who had tackled Peter Maginnis in defense of his dog. "An' I'll have you know, Mister Ryan—I'll have you know, my fine, big, bouncin' buck, that Jim Hackley ain't afeared of anything that walks."

Ryan filled her up again, though this time more conservatively. He was a keen man and an excellent judge of what was enough.

"Shuh! Don't I know that, Jim! Why, after that big bloke licked the stuffin' out of you the other night, the boys said: 'Well, that's the last o' that little difficulty! Jim Hackley 'll never foller that up none,' they says. And what'd I say?"

"Well, what'd you say?"

"I says, 'Hell!' I says. 'You boys don't know Jim Hackley!'"

"I'll interdooce myself to 'em!" said Hackley savagely. "And whoever says that Maginnis licked me 's a liar. You hear me? Tripped my toe on a rock, I did, and banged all the sense outen my head——"

"I understand, Jim," interrupted Ryan suavely. "Just what I told the boys. O' course, just between you an' me, I have been kinder took by surprise that you've waited so long to get your evens. Why, this morning when the piece came out in the Gazette, tellin' the whole town that the feller's side partner was that yellow cur dog Stanhope, I says to the boys, first thing: 'Boys, we gotter watch Jim Hackley mighty careful today,' says I. 'I'm afeard there'll be gun play before sunset.' 'Gun play!' says they. 'F'om Hackley! Hell,' says they. 'You boys,' says I, 'don't know old Jim like I do!' And then o' course—he, he—as the whole day slipped by an nothin' doin' at all—why, o' course, I won't deny that they ain't been joliyin' me some."

Hackley leaned far over the bar and shook his fist in the boss' face. "I ain't a man," he shouted, "to be pushed an' a-nagged at in a deal like this. I takes my time, I makes my plans, I decides on the ways I'll do it. Do yer pipe to that? An' now I've got ever'think fixed and I'm ready. Do yer see!"

IN A FAR COUNTRY

"The Northland is the Northland, and Men Work Out Their Souls by Strange Rules Which Other Men, Who Have Not Journeyed Into Far Countries, Cannot Come to Understand."

WHEN a man journeys into a far country he must be prepared to forget many of the things he has learned and to acquire such customs as are inherent with existence in the new land; he must abandon the old ideals and the old gods, and oftentimes he must reverse the very codes by which his conduct has hitherto been shaped. To those who have the protean faculty of adaptability the novelty of such change may even be a source of pleasure; but to those who happen to be hardened to the ruts in which they were created the pressure of the altered environment is unbearable, and they chafe in body and in spirit under the new restrictions which they do not understand. This chafing is bound to act and react, producing divers evils and leading to various misfortunes. It were better for the man who cannot fit himself to the new groove to return to his own country; if he delay too long he will surely die.

The man who turns his back upon the comforts of an elder civilization to face the savage youth, the primordial simplicity of the north may estimate success at an inverse ratio to the quantity and quality of his hopelessly fixed habits. He will soon discover, if he be a fit candidate, that the material habits are the less important. The exchange of such things as a dainty menu for rough fare, of the stiff leather shoe for the soft, shapeless moccasin, of the feather bed for a couch in the snow, is after all a very easy matter. But his pinch will come in learning properly to shape his mind's attitude toward all things, and especially toward his fellow man. For the courtesies of ordinary life he must substitute unselfishness, forbearance, and tolerance. Thus, and thus only, can he gain that pearl of great price—true comradeship. He must not say "Thank you"; he must mean it without opening his mouth, and prove it by responding in kind. In short, he must substitute the deed for the word, the spirit for the letter.

When the world rang with the tale of Arctic gold and the lure of the north gripped the heart strings of men, Carter Weatherbee threw up his snug clerkship, turned the half of his savings over to his wife, and with the remainder bought an outfit. There was no romance in his nature—the bondage of commerce had crushed all that; he was simply tired of the ceaseless grind and wished to risk great hazards in view of corresponding returns. Like many another fool, disdaining the old trails used by the northland pioneers for a score of years, he hurried to Edmonton in the spring of the year; and there, unluckily for his soul's welfare, he allied himself with a party of men.

There was nothing unusual about this party except its plans. Even its goal, like that of all other parties, was the Klondike. But the route it had mapped out to attain that goal took away the breath of the hardiest native, born and bred to the vicissitudes of the northwest. Even Jacques Baptiste, born of a Chippewa woman and a renegade voyageur (having raised his first whimpers in a deer skin lodge north of the sixty-fifth parallel and had the same hushed by blissful sucks of raw tallow), was surprised. Though he sold his services to them and agreed to travel even to the never opening ice, he shook his head ominously whenever his advice was asked.

Percy Cuthfert's evil star must have been in the ascendant, for he, too, joined this company of argonauts. He was an ordinary man, with a bank account as deep as his culture, which is saying a good deal. He had no reason to embark on such a venture, no reason in the world, save that he suffered from an abnormal development of sentimentality. He mistook this for the true spirit of romance and adventure. Many another man has done the like and made as fatal a mistake.

The two shirks and chronic grumblers were Carter Weatherbee and Percy Cuthfert. The whole party complained less of its aches and pains than did either of them. Not once did they volunteer for the thousand and one petty duties of the camp. A bucket of water to be brought, an extra armful of wood to be chopped, the dishes to be washed and wiped, a search to be made through the outfit for some suddenly indispensable article—and these two effete scions of civilization discovered sprains or blisters requiring instant attention.

At the Great Slave, Hudson Bay dogs were purchased, and the fleet sank to the guards with its added burden of dried fish and pemmican. Then canoe and bateau answered to the swift current of the Mackenzie, and they plunged into the Great Barren Ground. Every likely looking "feeder" was prospected, but the elusive "pay dirt" danced ever to the north. At the Great Bear, overcome by the common dread of the unknown lands, their voyageurs began to desert, and Fort of Good Hope saw the last and bravest bending to the tow lines as they bucked the current down which they had so treacherously glided. Jacques Baptiste alone remained. Had he not sworn to travel even to the never opening ice?

The lying charts, compiled in main from hearsay, were now constantly consulted. And they felt the need of hurry, for the sun had already passed its northern solstice and was leading the winter south again. Skirting the shores of the bay, where the Mackenzie disembogues into the Arctic ocean, they entered the mouth of the Little Peel river. Then began the arduous upstream toil, and the two incapables fared worse than ever. Tow line and pole, paddle and tump line, rapids and portages—such tortures served to give the one a deep disgust for great hazards, and printed for the other a fiery text on the true romance of adventure. One day they waxed mutinous, and, being vilely cursed by Jacques Baptiste, turned, as worms sometimes will. But the half breed thrashed the twain and sent them, bruised and bleeding, about their work. It was the first time either had been man handled.

Abandoning their river craft at the headwaters of the Little Peel, they consumed the rest of the summer in the great portage over the Mackenzie watershed to the West Rat. This little stream fed the Porcupine, which in turn joined the Yukon where that mighty highway of the north countermarches on the arctic circle. But they had lost in the race with winter, and one day they tied their rafts to the thick eddy ice and hurried their goods ashore. That night the river jammed and broke several times; the following morning it had fallen asleep for good.

. . . . . .

"We can't be more'n four hundred miles from the Yukon," concluded Sloper, multiplying his thumb nails by the scale of the map. The council, in which the two incapables had whined to excellent disadvantage, was drawing to a close.

"How long'll that take, Baptiste?"

The half breed figured for a moment. "Workum like hell, no man play out, ten—twenty—forty—fifty days. Um babies come" (designating the incapables), "no can tell. Mebbe when hell freeze over; mebbe not then."

Sloper rose to his feet. His body was a ludicrous contrast to the healthy physiques of the incapables. Yellow and weak, fleeing from a South American fever hole, he had not broken in his flight across the zones, and was still able to toil with men. His weight was probably ninety pounds, with the heavy hunting knife thrown in, and his grizzled hair told of a prime which had ceased to be. The fresh young muscles of either Weatherbee or Cuthfert were equal to ten times the endeavor of his; yet he could walk them into the earth in a day's journey. And all this day he had whipped his stronger comrades into venturing a thousand miles of the stiffest hardship man can conceive.

"All those in favor of going on with the dogs as soon as the ice sets, say aye."

"Aye!" rang out eight voices—voices destined to string a trail of oats along many a hundred miles of pain.

"Contrary minded?"

"No!" For the first time the incapables were united without some compromise of personal interests.

"And what are you going to do about it?" Weatherbee added belligerently.

"Majority rule! Majority rule!" clamored the rest of the party.

"I know the expedition is liable to fall through if you don't come," Sloper replied sweetly; "but I guess, if we try real hard, we can manage to do without you. What do you say, boys?"

The sentiment was cheered to the echo.

"But I say, you know," Cuthfert ventured apprehensively; "what's a chap like me to do?"

"Ain't you coming with us?"

"No-o."

"Then do as you damn well please. We won't have nothing to say."

. . . . . .

The sleds groaned by on their steel shod runners, and the dogs strained low in the harnesses in which they were born to die. Jacques Baptiste paused by the side of Sloper to get a last glimpse of the cabin. The smoke curled up pathetically from the Yukon stove pipe. The two incapables were watching them from the doorway.

Sloper laid his hand on the other's shoulder.

"Jacques Baptiste, did you ever hear of the Kilkenny cats?"

The half breed shook his head.

"Well, my friend and good comrade, the Kilkenny cats fought till neither hide, nor hair, nor yowl was left. You understand?—till nothing was left. Very good. Now, these two men don't like work. They won't work. We know that. They'll be all alone in that cabin all winter—a mighty long, dark winter. Kilkenny cats—well?"

The Frenchman in Baptiste shrugged his shoulders, but the Indian in him was silent. Nevertheless, it was an eloquent shrug, pregnant with prophecy.

"But the clerk had his own troubles. The dead men came out of their graves more frequently now, and rarely left him, waking or sleeping."

Things prospered in the little cabin at first. The rough badinage of their comrades had made Weatherbee and Cuthfert conscious of the mutual responsibility which had devolved upon them; besides, there was not so much work after all for two healthy men. And the removal of the cruel whip hand, or, in other words, the bulldozing half breed, had brought with it a joyous reaction. At first each strove to outdo the other, and they performed petty tasks with an unction which would have opened the eyes of their comrades who were now wearing out bodies and souls on the long trail.

All care was banished. The forest which shouldered in upon them from three sides was an inexhaustible wood yard. A few yards from their door slept the Porcupine, and a hole through its winter robe formed a bubbling spring of water, crystal clear and painfully cold. But they soon grew to find fault with even that. The hole would persist in freezing up, and thus gave them many a miserable hour of ice chopping. The unknown builders of the cabin had extended the side logs so as to support a cache at the rear. In this was stored the bulk of the party's provisions. Food there was, without stint, for three times the men who were fated to live upon it. But the most of it was of the kind which built up brawn and sinew but did not tickle the palate. True, there was sugar in plenty for two ordinary men; but these two were little else than children. They early discovered the virtues of hot water judiciously saturated with sugar, and they prodigally swam their flapjacks and soaked their crusts in the rich, white sirup. Then coffee and tea, and especially the dried fruits, made disastrous inroads upon it. The first words they had were over the sugar question. And it is a really serious thing when two men wholly dependent upon each other for company begin to quarrel.

Weatherbee loved to discourse blatantly on politics, while Cuthfert, who had been prone to clip his coupons and let the commonwealth jog on as best it might, either ignored the subject or delivered himself of startling epigrams. But the clerk was too obtuse to appreciate the clever shaping of thought, and this waste of ammunition irritated Cuthfert. He had been used to blinding people by his brilliancy, and it worked him quite a hardship, this loss of an audience. He felt personally aggrieved and unconsciously held his mutton head companion responsible for it.

Save existence, they had nothing in common, came in touch on no single point. Weatherbee was a clerk who had known naught but clerking all his life; Cuthfert was a master of arts, a dabbler in oils, and had written not a little. The one was a lower class man who considered himself a gentleman, and the other was a gentleman who knew himself to be such. From this it may be remarked that a man can be a gentleman without possessing the first instinct of true comradeship.

The clerk was as sensuous as the other was æsthetic, and his love adventures, told at great length and chiefly coined from his imagination, affected the supersensitive master of arts in the same way as so many whiffs of sewer gas. He deemed the clerk a filthy, uncultured brute whose place was in the muck with the swine, and told him so; and he was reciprocally informed that he was a milk and water sissy and a cad. Weatherbee could not have defined "cad" for his life; but it satisfied its purpose, which, after all, seems the main point in life.

Weatherbee flatted every third note and sang such songs as "The Boston Burglar" and "The Handsome Cabin Boy" for hours at a time, while Cuthfert wept with rage, till he could stand it no longer and fled into the outer cold. But there was no escape. The intense frost could not be endured for long at a time, and the little cabin crowded them—beds, stove, table, and all—into a space of ten by twelve.

The very presence of either became a personal affront to the other, and they lapsed into sullen silences which increased in length and strength as the days went by. Occasionally the flash of an eye or the curl of a lip got the better of them, although they strove to wholly ignore each other during these mute periods. And a great wonder sprang up in the breast of each as to how God had ever come to create the other.

With little to do, time became an intolerable burden to them. This naturally made them still lazier. They sank into a physical lethargy which there was no escaping and which made them rebel at the performance of the smallest chore.

One morning when it was his turn to cook the common breakfast Weatherbee rolled out of his blankets and to the snoring of his companion lighted first the slush lamp and then the fire. The kettles were frozen hard, and there was no water in the cabin with which to wash. But he did not mind that. Waiting for it to thaw, he sliced the bacon and plunged into the hateful task of bread making. Cuthfert had been slyly watching through his half closed lids. Consequently there was a scene in which they fervently blessed each other and agreed thenceforth that each do his own cooking. A week later Cuthfert neglected his morning ablutions, but none the less complacently ate the meal which he had cooked. Weatherbee grinned. After that the foolish custom of washing passed out of their lives.

As the sugar pile and other little luxuries dwindled, they began to be afraid they were not getting their proper shares, and in order that they might not be robbed, they fell to gorging themselves. The luxuries suffered in this gluttonous contest, as did also the men. In the absence of fresh vegetables and exercise, their blood became impoverished, and a loathsome, purplish rash crept over their bodies. Yet they refused to heed the warning. Next, their muscles and joints began to swell, the flesh turning black, while their mouths, gums, and lips took on the color of rich cream. Instead of being drawn together by their misery, each gloated over the other's symptoms as the scurvy took its course.

They lost all regard for personal appearance, and for that matter, common decency. The cabin became a pigpen, and never once were the beds made or fresh pine boughs laid underneath. Yet they could not keep to their blankets, as they would have wished; for the frost was inexorable, and the fire-box consumed much fuel. The hair of their heads and faces grew long and shaggy, while their garments would have disgusted a ragpicker. But they did not care. They were sick, and there was no one to see. Besides, it was very painful to move about.

To all this was added a new trouble—the fear of the north. This fear was the joint child of the great cold and the great silence, and was born in the darkness of December, when the sun dipped below the southern horizon for good.

It affected them according to their natures. Weatherbee fell prey to the grosser superstitions, and did his best to resurrect the spirits which slept in the forgotten graves. It was a fascinating thing, and in his dreams they came to him from out of the cold, and snuggled into his blankets, and told him of their toils and troubles ere they died. He shank away from the clammy contact as they drew closer and twined their frozen limbs about him, and when they whispered in his ear of things to come, the cabin rang with his frightened shrieks.

Cuthfert did not understand—for they no longer spoke—and when thus awakened he invariably grabbed for his revolver. Then he would sit up in bed, shivering nervously, with the weapon trained on the unconscious dreamer. Cuthfert deemed the man going mad, and so came to fear for his life.

His own malady assumed a less concrete form. The mysterious artisan who had laid the cabin, log by log, had pegged a wind-vane to the ridge pole. Cuthfert noticed it always pointed south, and one day, irritated by its steadfastness of purpose, he turned it toward the east. He watched eagerly, but never a breath came by to disturb it. Then he turned the vane to the north, swearing never again to touch it till the wind did blow. But the air frightened him with its unearthly calm, and he often rose in the middle of the night to see if the vane had veered—ten degrees would have satisfied him. But no, it poised above him as unchangeable as fate.

His imagination ran riot, till it became to him a fetich. Sometimes he followed the path it pointed across the dismal dominions, and allowed his soul to became saturated with the fear. He dwelt upon the unseen and the unknown till the burden of eternity appeared to be crushing him. Everything in the northland had that crushing effect—the absence of life and motion; the darkness; the infinite peace of the brooding land; the ghastly silence, which made the echo of each heart beat a sacrilege; the solemn forest which seemed to guard an awful, inexpressible something, which neither word nor thought could compass.

This phantasm was the reality. Standing beneath the wind vane, his eyes fixed on the polar skies, he could not bring himself to realize that the southland really existed, that at that very moment it was a-roar with life and action. There was no southland, no men being born of women, no giving and taking in marriage. Beyond his bleak skyline there stretched vast solitudes, and beyond these still vaster solitudes. There were no lands of sunshine, heavy with the perfume of flowers. Such things were only old dreams of paradise. The sunlands of the west and the spicelands of the east, the smiling Arcadies and blissful islands of the blest—ha! ha! His laughter split the void and shocked him with its unwonted sound. There was no sun. This was the universe, dead and cold and dark, and he its only citizen. Weatherbee? At such moments Weatherbee did not count. He was a Caliban, a monstrous phantom, fettered to him for untold ages, the penalty of some forgotten crime.

Once, like another Crusoe, by the edge of the river he came upon a track—the faint tracery of a snowshoe rabbit on the delicate snow crust. It was a revelation. There was life in the northland. He would follow it, look upon it, gloat over it. He forgot his swollen muscles, plunging through the deep snow in an ecstasy of anticipation. The forest swallowed him up, and the brief midday twilight vanished; but he pursued his quest till exhausted nature asserted itself and laid him helpless in the snow. There he groaned and cursed his folly, and he knew the track to be the fancy of his brain; and late that night he dragged himself into the cabin on hands and knees, his cheeks frozen and a strange numbness about his feet. Weatherbee grinned malevolently, but made no offer to help him. He thrust needles into his toes and thawed them out by the stove. A week later mortification set in.

But the clerk had his own troubles. The dead men came out of their graves more frequently now, and rarely left him, waking or sleeping. He grew to wait and dread their coming, never passing the twin cairns without a shudder. One night they came to him in his sleep and led him forth to an appointed task. Frightened into inarticulate horror, he awoke between the heaps of stones and fled wildly to the cabin. But he had lain there for some time, for his feet and cheeks were also frozen.

Sometimes he became frantic at their insistent presence, and danced about the cabin, cutting the empty air with an ax, and smashing everything within reach. During these ghostly encounters, Cuthfert huddled into his blankets and followed the madman about with a cocked revolver, ready to shoot him if he came too near. But, recovering from one of these spells, the clerk noticed the weapon trained upon him. His suspicions were aroused, and thenceforth he, too, lived in fear of his life.

They watched each other closely after that and faced about in startled fright whenever either passed behind the other's back. This apprehensiveness became a mania which controlled them even in their sleep. Through mutual fear they tacitly let the slush lamp burn all night and saw to a plentiful supply of bacon grease before retiring. The slightest movement on the part of one was sufficient to arouse the other, and many a still watch their gazes countered as they shook beneath their blankets with fingers on the trigger guards.

What with the fear of the north, the mental strain, and the ravages of disease, they lost all semblance of humanity, taking on the appearance of wild beasts, hunted and desperate. Their cheeks and noses, as an aftermath of the freezing, had turned black. Their frozen toes had begun to drop away at the first and second joints. Every movement brought pain, but the fire box was insatiable, wringing a ransom of torture from their miserable bodies. Day in, day out, it demanded its food—a veritable pound of flesh—and they dragged themselves into the forest to chop wood on their knees. Once, crawling thus in search of dry sticks, unknown to eath other they entered a thicket from opposite sides. Suddenly, without warning, two peering death's heads confronted each other. Suffering had so transformed them that recognition was impossible. They sprang to their feet, shrieking with terror, and dashed away on their mangled stumps, and, falling at the cabin door, they clawed and scratched like demons till they discovered their mistake.

Occasionally they lapsed normal, and during one of these same intervals the chief bone of contention, the sugar, had been divided equally between them. They guarded their separate sacks, stored up in the cache, with jealous eyes; for there were but a few cupfuls left, and they were totally devoid of faith in each other. But one day Cuthfert made a mistake. Hardly able to move, sick with pain, with his head swimming and eyes blinded, he crept into the cache, sugar canister in hand, and mistook Weatherbee's sack for his own.

January had been born but a few days when this occurred. The sun had some time since passed its lowest southern declination, and at meridian now threw flaunting streaks of yellow light upon the northern sky. On the day following his mistake with the sugar bag Cuthfert found himself feeling better both in body and in spirit. As noontime drew near and the day brightened he dragged himself out to feast on the evanescent glow, which was to him an earnest of the sun's future intentions. Weatherbee was also feeling somewhat better and crawled out beside him. They propped themselves in the snow beneath the moveless windvane and waited.

The stillness of death was about them. In other climes, when nature falls into such moods, there is a subdued air of expectancy, a waiting for some small voice to take up the broken strain. Not so in the north. The two men had lived seeming eons in this ghostly peace. They could remember no song of the past; they could conjure no song of the future. This unearthly calm had always been—the tranquil silence of eternity.

Their eyes were fixed upon the north. Unseen, behind their backs, behind the towering mountains to the south, the sun swept toward the zenith of another sky than theirs. Sole spectators of the mighty canvas, they watched the false dawn slowly grow. A faint flame began to glow and smoulder. It deepened in intensity, ringing the changes of reddish yellow, purple, and saffron. So bright did it become that Cuthfert thought the sun must surely be behind it—a miracle, the sun rising in the north! Suddenly, without warning and without fading, the canvas was swept clean. There was no color in the sky. The light had gone out of the day. They caught their breaths in half sobs. But lo! the air was a-glint with particles of scintillating frost, and there, to the north, the wind vane lay in vague outline on the snow. A shadow! A shadow! It was exactly midday. They jerked their heads hurriedly to the south. A golden rim peeped over the mountain's snowy shoulder, smiled upon them an instant, then dipped from sight again.

There were tears in their eyes as they sought each other. A strange softening came over them. They felt irresistibly drawn toward each other. The sun was coming back again. It would be with them tomorrow, and the next day, and the next. And it would stay longer every visit, and a time would come when it would ride their heaven day and night, never once dropping below the sky line. There would be no night. The ice locked winter would be broken; the winds would blow and the forests answer; the land would bathe in the blessed sunshine, and life renew. Hand in hand, they would quit this horrid dream and journey back to the southland. They lurched blindly forward and their hands met—their poor, maimed hands, swollen and distorted beneath their mittens.

But the promise was destined to remain unfulfilled. The northland is the northland, and men work out their souls by strange rules which other men, who have not journeyed in to far countries, cannot come to understand.

An hour later Cuthfert put a pan of bread into the oven and fell to speculating on what the surgeons could do with his feet when he got back. Home did not seem so very far away now. Weatherbee was rummaging in the cache. Of a sudden he raised a whirlwind of blasphemy, which in turn ceased with startling abruptness. The other man had robbed his sugar sack. Still, things might have happened differently had not the two dead men come out from under the stone and hushed the hot words in his throat. They led him quite gently from the cache, which he forgot to close. That consummation was reached; that something they had whispered to him in his dreams was about to happen. They guided him gently, very gently, to the woodpile, where they put the ax in his hands. Then they helped him above open the cabin door, and he felt sure they shut it after him—at least he heard it slam and the latch fall sharply into place. And he knew they were waiting just without, waiting for him to do his task.

"Carter! I say, Carter!"

Percy Cuthfert was frightened at the look on the clerk's face, and he made haste to put the table between them.

Carter Weatherbee followed, without haste and without enthusiasm. There was neither pity nor passion in his face, but rather the patient, stolid look of one who has certain work to do and goes about it methodically.

"I say, what's the matter?"

The clerk dodged back, cutting off his retreat to the door, but never opening his mouth.

"I say, Carter, I say; let's talk. There's a good chap."

The master of arts was thinking rapidly now, shaping a skilful flank movement on the bed where his Smith & Wesson lay. Keeping his eyes on the madman, he rolled backward on the bunk at the same time clutching the pistol.

"Carter!"

The powder flashed full in Weatherbee's face, but he swung his weapon and leaped forward. The axe bit deeply at the base of the spine and Percy Cuthfert felt all consciousness of his lower limbs leave him. Then the clerk fell heavily upon him, clutching him by the throat with feeble fingers. The sharp bite of the axe had caused Cuthfert to drop the pistol, and as his lungs panted for release he fumbled aimlessly for it among the blankets. Then he remembered. He slid a hand up the clerk's belt to the sheathknife, and they drew very close to each other in that last clinch.

Percy Cuthfert felt his strength leave him. The lower portion of his body was useless. The inert weight of Weatherbee crushed him—crushed him and pinned him there like a bear under a trap. The cabin became filled with a familiar odor, and he knew the bread to be burning. Yet what did it matter? He would never need it. And there were all of six cupfuls of sugar in the cache—if he had foreseen this he would not have been so saving the last several days. Would the wind vane ever move? It might even be veering now. Why not? Had he not seen the sun today? He would go and see. No; it was impossible to move. He had not thought the clerk so heavy a man.

How quickly the cabin cooled! The fire must be out. The cold was forcing in. It must be below zero already, and the ice creeping up the inside of the door. He could not see it, but his past experience enabled him to gauge its progress by the cabin's temperature. The lower hinge must be white ere now.

Would the tale of this ever reach the world? How would his friends take it? They would read it? They would read it over their coffee, most likely, and talk it over at the clubs. He could see them very clearly. "Poor old Cuthfert," they murmured, "not such a bad sort of a chap, after all." He smiled at their eulogies and passed on in search of a Turkish bath. It was the same old crowd upon the streets. Strange, they did not notice his moosehide moccasins and tattered German socks! He would take a cab. And after the bath a shave would not be bad. No; he would eat first. Steak and potatoes and green things—how fresh it all was! And what was that? Squares of honey, streaming liquid amber! But why did they bring so much? Ha! ha! he could never eat it all. Shine? Why, certainly. He put his foot on the box. The bootblack looked curiously up at him and he remembered his moosehide moccasins and went away hastily.

Hark! The wind vane must be surely spinning. No; a mere singing in his ears. That was all—a mere singing. The ice must have passed the latch by now. More likely the upper hinge was covered. Between the moss chinked roof poles little points of frost began to appear. How slowly they grew! No; not so slowly. There was a new one, and there another. Two—three—four; they were coming too fast to count. There were two growing together. And there, a third had joined them. Why, there were no more spots. They had run together and formed a sheet.

Well, he would have company. If Gabriel ever broke the silence of the north they would stand together, hand in hand, before the great white throne. And God would judge them, God would judge them.

Then Percy Cuthfert closed his eyes and dropped off to sleep.

THE TEENIE WEENIES

DUNCE GETS SICK. By Wm. DONAHEY.

"KER-KER-KER-CHOO," sneezed the Dunce with such force he nearly blew over an acorn filled with buckwheat dough which the Cook had placed beside the fireplace to rise.

"Are you catching cold?" asked the General, as he glanced at the Dunce who sat drying his feet at the tiny fireplace.

"No-no, sir," answered the Dunce, "I think the cold is trying to catch me. I fell—that is, I slipped on the edge of a dish over at the big house in the next yard, and—and fell into a plate of soup and got my feet a little wet."

"Well, sir, you get your shoes and stockings off right away, dry your feet and get to bed, or the first thing you know you'll have a bad cold."

The next morning the poor Dunce had a very bad cold and the Doctor ordered hot lemonade for the sick little fellow.

"We haven't a bit of lemon in the house," said the Cook when he learned the doctor's orders. "The only place we could get lemon juice would be in one of the big houses near here, and the General said we should never take things out of houses."

"Well, in a case of sickness," said the General, "it makes a great deal of difference. I'm sure people would not care if we took just a drop or two of juice for medicine."

With the General's permission, the Indian and the Cowboy scouted around and soon learned from a friendly mouse that they could find a lemon in the cupboard of a house not far from the Teenie Weenies' home. The scouts reported their find to the General, and in a short time several of the Teenie Weenies slipped into the house and crawled up to the shelf of the cupboard where they found a huge lemon. The little fellows rolled it out onto the shelf, where the Old Soldier cut a piece out of the rind big enough to put in a small straw, while the rest bound the lemon with strings and fastened a lead pencil to them.

"Allie same whatie do with plencil?" asked the Chinaman.

"You see we put the pencil through the strings and then when we pull the pencil around that twists up the strings real tight and squeezes the juice out through the straw," answered the Cowboy.

When the Teenie Weenies had squeezed out several drops of juice they put the piece of rind back in the hole from which it had been cut, pulled the strings from the lemon and rolled it back into the cupboard just where they had found it.

The sick Dunce had plenty of hot lemonade, and with the care of the Doctor and the tender nursing of the Lady of Fashion the little chap was soon well and strong again.

Summer Frocks For Any Miss

By Corinne Lowe

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

Even though plaid ginghams be the food of childhood, don't give me excess of them, cries the little girl to the left, and adds to her skirt of brown and white plaid a short waist of green linen. The next child is somewhat constrained in her gardening by the knowledge that she wears an imported frock of basket weave voile in rose fanee which is embroidered in brown squares and finished with dark brown grosgrain ribbon. The next girl is 14 and she may never have developed a "line," but her frock of white voile with its loose cassock embroidered in Chinese blue and black silk graciously conceals the fact. Last of all comes a light blue voile, accordion plaited and trimmed with white dotted swiss.

NEW YORK.—(Special correspondence.)—In Paris the only way you can tell a young woman of 4 from a middle aged woman of 40 is by the size. As far as style goes, they are on exactly the same footing. La petite mademoiselle playing in the Parc Monceau observes much the same fashion formula as "maman" playing at the Ritz.

When for instance the barrel skirt first made its appearance the designers for children put their heads together. "How are we going to do it for the poor little one?" they asked themselves. It was indeed a difficult proposition, inasmuch as the barrel commences just at the place where the little girl's frock leaves off. However, by much thinking they managed to stunt the growth of the barrel and in a short while you could go into almost any of the Paris shops and outfit the young miss of from 4 to 14 in staves.

At some of the specialty shops in New York it is possible to get barrel frocks in primer style. We have even seen several children confined in them. At the flower show last month, for instance, what should happen but a young woman of 5 wearing a frock of gray silk jersey, from the high short waist of which fell a skirt which, although it reached only to the knees, said plain as day, "Barreled, that's what I am." The effect was accomplished in this way. Front and back there were straight panels, but in between these the material was fulled to meet a tight narrow hem. With this frock were worn sleeves and round flat collar of the most heavenly shade of light blue crepe. Altogether it was quite an adorable little frock—much more charming than the skirts where the whole skirt rounds to a hobble band about the knees.

Altogether, however, the one syllable barrel will not be generally taken up. Here in America we prefer straighter and less sophisticated lines for children. And so, whether mademoiselle be in her teens or younger, she will wear simple, straight lines with only such touches of grown-up modes as may be incorporated without spoiling the effect of youthful simplicity.

The child at the left of the drawing today appears in a play frock shown by one of the New York specialty houses. Here a box plaited skirt of brown and white plaid gingham is attached to a waist of green linen relieved by collar and cuffs of white pique. The combination of colors is extremely attractive and, by the introduction of a bodice of solid color, we get away from the all too plaided look of most play frocks.

The next young person is operating under an inhibition. She has been told to be careful of that dress of hers and not get it soiled, for it came all the way from Paris. So it did, too. Lina Mouton, who sets so many of the styles for children, made it in her own Paris workshop and it is designed for the belle of from 2 to 4. It is of basket weave voile in that soft, lovely shade of faded pink rose—rose fanee, as the French more poetically say it. It falls from the shoulder with only the proposal of a waist line from two wide grosgrain ribbons of brown. This note of brown is repeated in the hand embroidered squares which deck the three hems of graduated width. Underneath a slip of net in the same color as the dress ends in a frolicsome little frill.

With this is worn a bonnet of pink straw with underbrim of black straw. The ties which go under the chin are of pink cotton crepe, and, as they pass over the crown they show a design outlined in black silk thread. Like the dress, this bit of coquetry also came from Paris.

As a rule, American parents do not care for colors in a frock of this sort. The design, however, is one which can be taken over in snowy materials and lose little of its effectiveness. In all clothes for children of this age net and soutache are the outstanding features. Hand embroidery is, of course, still used on these dainty little white frocks, but in some of the newest of imported batiste models there are tiny yokes of white net embellished with white braid.

The girl at the flapper age, the girl between 12 and 18, has become an axiom. Nothing ever quite suits her. She wants this and she doesn't like that. There is, in fact, poignant universal truth in the cry of one disheartened mother of a 14 year old girl, "Give me mosquitoes and give me a mouth organ," wailed she, "but don't leave me alone with Phyllis and a dressmaker!"

Even aside from the prickly temperamnt of Miss Flapper there is the fact that it is really hard to make her look well. The frock of the third girl from the left is one, however, which does its best by every type. If Phylis be "chunky," if no one has yet been able to find her a waist line, this loose cassock conceals the fact. If she is so thin and angular that she glints the frock is equally kind.

This particular model is made of white voile, and it owes much of its charm to the hand embroidered design of Chinese blue and black. At the sides are two silk tassels of the same blue. With this Miss Fourteen wears a hat that might have stepped from Hyde Park. It is of leghorn with wider band of black velvet about the crown and pink roses.

The last frock is also of voile—this time in a light shade of blue. The skirt is divided into sections, one of which represents the material accordion plaited and the other with rows of dotted swiss insertion, accompanied by dotted swiss ruffles. The narrow girdle ends are punctuated by tassels of white silk. A particularly charming feature of this frock is the manner in which the play of plaits and dotted swiss ruffles is continued on the sleeves.

Voile is particularly good in all summer frocks for children and young girls. Some of the prettiest of these models are of candy striped material, and not a few of them are made up with a bodice from which falls the short peplum of grown-up modes.

We are wearing a great many topcoats and beautiful cape wraps over entire gowns, and, as a result, the prettiest possible costumes are worn beneath. The tea hour at the fashionable hotels is always interesting. Within the last few days it has had many revelations.

A charming costume seen today is of a smoky blue chiffon in a new crepe weave over a foundation of coral faille, and the trimming consisted of double silk ruffles of silk, frayed as a finish. At the waist line was a ribbon of self-color run through a casing and tied in a soft bow and ends. It was a lovely and becoming costume and it had just that sense of distinction that is always a pleasure to meet.

Combinations of color are much in vogue. A novel and interesting one was found in a costume of dark blue French serge combined with silk in a shade of magenta that was really exquisite in contrast with the blue. The serge made the lower part of the skirt which was extended at the sides, while the upper part of the skirt and the entire bodice were of the magenta silk, but belted, let it be added, with a band of the blue.

All the lovely tans and beige and sand shades are conspicuous and it is wonderful how they are touched up and relieved with color to be really brilliant in effect. A notable one is all of Georgette crepe in that lovely shade of sand and is richly embroidered with beads to give a most wonderful color effect. There is a five inch band at about knee depth on the skirt, similar trimming on the blouse, and soft creamy lace used to finish the sleeves and neck; but it is the color found in the bead embroidery that gives the distinctive touch—it is really wonderful against the quiet background of the sand tone.

A beautiful crepe de chine in a soft gray is richly embroidered with silver. The skirt is cleverly handled and draped, straight and narrow it would seem, with over-portions at the sides that are shaped to be longer at the front and back. The embroidery is massed upon these over portions. The bodice is a perfectly simple little one with round neck and front opening, the neck and front edges of which are finished with narrower embroidery, and the long sleeves are sewed to it at the dropped armholes. They are drawn in to fit below the elbows and the rich embroidery appears again on these cufflike portions.

WHAT DRINK HAS COST ME

By Antoinette Donnelly

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Mamie Phillips, 35, and a Down and Out.

WHILE I sat in a locked and barred room at the bridewell waiting for the appearance of Mamie Phillips, who was to tell me the story of how drink had, in less than eight years, reduced her from a respected position in society to the depths of social degradation, there was brought in for "booking" a new load of women. Even out of the nine of them owed their present predicament to drink.

"Have you ever been here before?" is one of the queries put to the offender in the process of booking.

"Thirteen times," answered one. "Twenty-five times," said another. "Five times;" "Eight times;" and so on.

One poor old soul who described her occupation as housekeeper and her age as 65 staggered up to the matron's desk, shaking as if delirium tremens had not quite given up its pursuit of her, with a lower lip protruding and of a blood-red color so revolting that I shudder at thought of it.

"Have you ever been here before?" the matron asked her.

Her palsied head kept shaking as she said: "No. This is my first, and with the help of God, my last. My husband died two months ago and I'm lonely. I have nobody left now. I have to drink to forget."

Next was a young woman of 23, married and mother of one small child. She could scarcely answer the questions put her between her hysterical sobbing. She cried as I've never heard anyone cry, from the depths of her heart, agonizing, broken hearted wails.

Her story was: She had worked in a store before she married. Married life on a small income had little opportunity for the excitement and fun she craved. A neighbor wanted some young person to gad around with. She had the money (no matter how she got it). The young wife never drank in her life before she started going to a certain cabaret-cafe, which she used to hurry home from in time to get her husband's dinner. Then one evening he waited. She didn't come home. That was the night before I heard her bitter weeping behind the barred doors of the house of correction.

And so on down the whole row of offenders. Drink, drink, always drink, was the catch that sprung the lock of the jail door for them!

I wish I could have taken a photograph of that row! From the wretched old woman with the blood-red lip at one end to the belligerent thirteenth timer, bearing the cross of the black eyed and disreputable, a reel was presented convincing, truthful, uncensored, with a title "What Drink Does to Woman's Pride, Beauty, and Self-respect."

Then along came Mamie Phillips, whose name is not that at all, but a name that would be disgraced eternally were Mamie to have used it in these last years of her intimacy with police bookings and the house of correction. She's 35. For five years she has been a "repeater," a "repeater" meaning one who repeats offenses against the law and is made to pay the penalty. Until next June Mamie will have time to reflect on the "what might have beens" in her life had she never learned the taste of drink. She will have hours of turnings and tossings on her cell cot, for her mind hasn't yet lost all of the fine edge that marked its earlier activity. There are innumerable times when she wishes it had.

A prominent authority has said that there are three critical periods or dangerous crises in a woman's life, when she is especially liable to fall prey to alcohol—the time of adolescence, the period of early married life, and that time of life for women which lies at the threshold of old age.

Everyone knows the part the insidious drug plays in leading girls from 14 to 18 out of the path of beauty and virtue.

Mamie Phillips came under the second class. Her early married life marked her surrender to the great destroyer.

Mamie Phillips was a victim of her heart before her lips ever touched drink. Against the advice of everyone, she married the ne'er-do-well son of a rich southerner. He drank. But Mamie, out of the wisdom of her youth, unhampered by any world experience, knew she could reform him. The first year of their married life confirmed her faith in the power of love. He never touched a drop. Not so with the second year, nor the third, nor for the rest of his life!

Hers was the old story of a desperate fight to save him when he began to show signs of a return to his old habit. A bit of strategy Mamie resorted to in the hope of gradually breaking him off his alcoholic relations. She stocked her cellar with wines and whiskies and she served it in the home and joined him in the drinking to save him from the low companionship of the barrooms. At first she barely touched it. But the frequency with which she had to thus entertain her husband soon made the taste not so repugnant. And soon again she found herself liking it. In another while she found herself craving it.

"I never knew what it was to be nervous until about a year after I began drinking," she said to me. "And then I began to get on edge at every little thing and the only thing that would make me forget my troubles was a bracer of some kind.

"My husband died of drink and I was left a widow when I was a little over 25. There was left from his estate enough money to start me up in a fashionable tea room in the city in which he died. For a year it prospered and I kept myself together pretty well. But the least little disturbance would send me to pieces and I would have to take my "bracers" more frequently. I had absolutely no "come-back." I became irritated and couldn't get along with my help. The result was the second year things went from bad to worse. My power for work was gone. I had spells of ambition and things would sail along for a few days and then as suddenly I would become possessed of a feeling of absolute irresponsibility as to what became of me.

"I lost the restaurant and with it the encouragement of the friends who had been helpful to me. I was on the verge of nervous prostration, brought on I know by nothing else than the steady drinking, and the future began to look pretty bad.

"I was good looking and had good taste in dress and pretty soon I began thinking of an easier way of making a living and of getting the drink I craved incessantly now. A racehorse man moved my opportunity and I went to New Orleans with him and there I got mixed up with others and I've gone on and on down the road, following the line of least resistance and the easiest cut to "booze fountains" ever since.

"Was drunkenness the charge against you for this last fine?" I asked her.

Her eyes pleaded mercy. She rolled them heavenward with an earnest appeal in her outstretched hands:

"Don't ask me, please, what brought me here. I'm sober now and I can't bear to think it, much less name it," she answered. "But it was shameful, low, beyond what I ever thought I'd sink."

"For eight years I've been drinking almost steadily," she added. "And I'll keep on for eight more and eight more after that unless we have prohibition, when I can't get it, and then I guess I'd have to be sent to Dunning if I didn't get it."

Mamie Phillips must have been a beauty in her twenties. Even yet there is an appeal about her. Her teeth are good and strong and white and her skin not blotched as badly as you would expect. Those fine red lines and veins that mark the nose of the chronic drinker are beginning to appear, however, as closer inspection showed me. There is refinement in her well brushed hair and her well kept nails and a cleanliness about her person.

But the tragedy of drink was in her eyes. And in her mind, which one minute was awake, alive, and the next was dull and hard to reach.

And what is beauty without these essential traits of a good eye, an animated expression, an abiding presence of an alert personality, and a good mind? There was an obvious coarsening of moral fiber about Mamie Phillips, too. There was about her that look you may have seen in an asylum for the insane. Her physical vigor was not obviously so impaired, but the impairment of the brain cells that find inevitable expression in the eye was marked and tragically so.

Answers to Inquiries.

SARA: IF YOU HAVE NEVER taken a Turkish bath I should advise you to consult your family physician before taking one, in your precarious state of health. A Turkish bath now and then is excellent for opening and cleansing the pores and the salt rub is stimulating. It should not be taken oftener than twice a week, as the frequent and long exposure to the sedative influence of heat is debilitating.

JEMIMA: THERE ARE TWO causes for ingrowing toenails. Improper footgear is one and cutting the nails wrong is another. When cutting the nails cut them either square across or slightly concave. If there is a tendency for the flesh to grow over the nail push it back and fasten in this position with a stripe of oxide of zinc plaster and a gauze packing should be inserted under the nail edge.

MISS G. E. B.: IF YOU WILL SEND me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be glad to give you the information you wish about the lotion for excessive perspiration. You will have to both diet and exercise in order to reduce. Dieting alone will not do it as successfully. You surely have courage enough to keep on with the treatment. Make another brave trial. The third is usually the successful time.

* *

VERNON L.: A LARGE, SORE bunion is enough to make any one feel irritable, especially if you have to stand on your feet all day. Bunions are the result of great pressure and friction on the joint, due to too short a shoe. The joint should be relieved of all pressure. If possible, a loose slipper should be worn, to allow the toes to spread; then take a piece of adhesive plaster and bandage the great toe, bringing it into its natural position. This will relieve the inflammation, and the bunion will gradually disappear. You can also paint the bunion with a lotion of two drams each of carbolic acid, tincture of iodine, and glycerin.

MRS. JULIA H.: WHITE PIMPLES are small collections of sebaceous matter which have been caught under the horny epidermis and have dried into hard, cheesy masses. They are easily removed by pricking the cover with a sterile needle and pressing out the contents. Free water drinking increases the activity of the kidneys. Three pints of water should be taken daily; two glasses may be taken on rising with an interval of twenty minutes between. In the afternoon the other two glasses may be taken with the same interval between. I suggest your consulting your physician about the pains across your back.

BETTY W.: EXERCISES LIKE swimming, punching a bag, swinging Indian clubs, and lifting weights are all excellent for reducing fat arms.

* *

MISS VANITY: Do you know that your walk betrays your disposition? Just make up your mind that you are not going to slouch along. A slouching walk with dragging steps denotes mental weakness and indecision. It shows lack of effort as well as laziness. Spruce up and strive to have a free and graceful walk, which indicates a well balanced mind, strength of purpose, and good judgment.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

Childhood Ambition Contest.

Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

Experiments on Sister.

When I was a child my greatest ambition was to be a dentist. One day when mother was away I persuaded my sister to play with me. Of course, I was the dentist and she the patient.

The only available thing that could be used for forceps was a monkey wrench, which I used lavishly; When my mother returned, to her horror she found my sister minus four teeth.

I am now in the teaching profession. The nearest I came to living up to my childhood ambition is making a few children's teeth chatter. M. H.

She Had Two.

I must have been a very aspiring youngster, as I had two fallfledged childhood ambitions. The first was to be a widow; the other, an authoress. True, I didn't know just what "widow" meant, but I thought it was a fortunate being who, with plenty of money, had no one to say her yea or nay, and yet escaped the odium of "old maid."

Now I can imagine nothing worse than to have that ambition realized, and it is my daily prayer that the recording angel will erase that wish from the book of life.

My other ambition has stayed with me, but has never materialized. I began writing "poems" before I was 7, and have kept it up intermittently ever since. I must confess, though, that the interludes have outnumbered the poems.

On my twelfth birthday I began writing a novel which was intended to emblazon my name, "Valentine Adair," on the hearts of the multitude long after my frail body had released my gentle spirit. (I was big for my age and painfully healthy.) However, after laboring over this masterpiece for a year, on my thirteenth birthday I brought it to a close and read it through.

I then destroyed it, thereby proving I was of sound mind and possessed of all my faculties. Then and there I decided that before I could write a successful love story I'd have to live one; and since living one I know I couldn't write one and do it justice. S. M. B.

Still Demands Bermudas.

There's been nothing much stirring.

Before my eye teeth had deserted me, the greatest and most important ambition of my fantastic, childish brain was to become a composite of Thomas A. Edison and Mark Twain.

The ideas and discoveries that occurred to me were certainly immense in their marvelousness and complexity. They included: The shifting of the earth on its axis, the production of a cold light, the storing of the sun's light and heat during the day time for use throughout the night, the hardening and tempering of copper, the sending of the surplus heat of the tropics to the frigid zones.

The smaller mechanical contrivances were, in the parlance of the auction sale poster, too numerous to mention.

Up to date T. A. Edison knows me not as a rival and need have no apprehension.

Do inventions and patents pay? Ask me! [With apologies to Mae Tinee.]

I do not desire to discourage aspirants with rosy hued hopes of great, sudden wealth.

As far as becoming an equal of Mark Twain is concerned, my present prospects are tiny enough to rattle around in a mustard seed, quite as freely as a peanut in a tank car.

Fortunately my back has continued strong and my palate is unsophisticated enough not to demand ptarmigan à la sauve qui peut instead of Hamburger and Bermuda. H. A. S.

Real Love Stories

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

Her Sister's Beau.

I AM the oldest of six girls in our family, and about seven years ago my younger sister, Mary, had a great many gentleman friends. She was a pretty and attractive girl of 18. Between us six girls we rarely spent one evening among ourselves, as there was always one or more young men calling on one of us.

Mary had one particular friend who I thought was unbearable, so I was forever preaching to her about him, and told her if she could not find any better friend than he she had better make up her mind to remain an old maid; but she protested and said Jim was all she could ask or want. He called three times a week and soon became her only suitor. We thought things were sailing nicely, when they had a quarrel, which did not bring them to an understanding, and their friendship ceased.

Jim came to the house once a week, finally one night the tables turned. Jim called me up and asked me if I cared about joining a theater party on the following night, and, not wishing to go, I simply told him my evening was taken up. The following week he asked me again, and, thinking I was going to be bored until I accepted, I went, while Mary and the family had the ha! ha! on me. I had a wonderful time and was not bored with his company as much as I expected to be. Also I found out he was not as black as I had painted him.

We went out often and he came to see me instead of Mary, and a year elapsed and I was Mrs. instead of Miss. Now I have a wonderful little daughter and Jim is a grand husband. Jim says he came to see Mary in hopes of getting me, but of course I laugh when he tells me that. Jim faithfully believes the old saying, "A faint heart never won a fair lady." That is why he kept up the fight. Mary has found the right man and is happy, and thinks Jim makes a mighty fine brother-in-law. M. C.

Genuine "Freezone" is only sold in these bottles packed in a sealed wooden case, bearing a yellow label and the name The Edward Pinaud Co., Cincinnati, O.

Corns Stop Hurting, Then They Lift Out With Fingers

No pain or soreness! Corns and calluses just shrivel up and lift off.

A noted Cincinnati chemist discovered a new ether compound and called it freezone and it now can be had in tiny bottles for a few cents from any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can just lift it off with the fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it!

Doris Blake Says

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

If you were born this week you are Psychic.

Leo [July 22 to Aug. 22]. The astrologists say a marriage between Aries and Cancer [June 21 to July 21] would be unfortunate, for both being signs of antagonistic elements, unless there was wonderful self-control and forbearance there would be too much sputter and fis for domestic happiness.

Your colors are blue, pink, and white. The weeks beginning April 12 and Nov. 29 contain your luckiest days. By you in sign of Aries born, amethysts and diamonds should be worn.

This Is a Hard One.

"Dear Miss Blake: Do you think action speaks louder than words? What is the meaning of George? E. M. S."

With some men actions do speak louder than words and with others it's just the opposite. I'm for words, personally speaking. George should be "a landholder," if he lives up to the meaning of his name.

Beautiful? She Admits It.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a beautiful young girl, 17 years old. I am keeping company with a young man who is very distinguished looking and 20 years old. He says that he is absolutely infatuated with me and cannot live without me. I do not know whether I am in love with him or not, am I? L. L."

If you were in love with him, Lillian, you would know it. At 17, there are absolutely definite signs even if they don't last long. But then why worry over such a serious problem at your age. My private opinion is that you are a silly girl and that you might better turn your attentions to something that would prove your intellect instead of racking your brain about who is infatuated with you and who is not.

Kissed Against Will.

"Dear Miss Blake: A boy took me home from a school party one night and asked to kiss me good night. I refused, but as I turned to go into the house he caught me in his arms and kissed me. I was very angry, as I was unwilling to have him kiss me Do you think that he cares less for me, seeing that he kissed me against my will? I am 16. E. S."

If you were really as angry as you seem to be in your letter, I don't think the young man had any doubt about your opposition to his actions, so I would not worry about the matter if I were you, only don't let it happen again. Instead of getting angry, make fun of him; you'll find that far more effective.

She's In Love.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 16 and am deeply in love with a young man two years my senior. He seems to care a great deal for me, especially when with a bunch of the young folks, or at any other time when we meet, but he has never offered to see me at my home. My parents think a lot of this young man. How will I let him know that I would like to have him call?

"MYRA."

I should think the simplest thing for you to do would be to ask him to call. He's probably been waiting this long time for such an invitation. It's entirely proper for you to do this, but after you have made this one suggestion it will be up to him to ask to come the next time. I hope this works, Myra, but remember, no "steadies" at 16.

Her Mad Husband.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young married lady and have a little boy 2 years old. My husband is awful at times; he says I put poison in his food and makes other worse charges. At other times he is the most kind and loving husband you would ever want to see; he does anything in the world for me.

"Now, Miss Blake, I am crying my eyes out over all this—to think he would say such a thing about me. At times I feel like leaving him, but the only thing that holds me with him is my dear baby. He calls me terrible names; you can't imagine how bad life is at times. But at times he is just lovely.

"What have you to say, Miss Blake?

"BROKEN HEARTED."

Your husband's mental condition ought to be looked into because he seems to be almost insane at times. When he is having one of his lucid intervals, why don't you persuade him to go to a doctor for an examination? Surely, for the sake of the baby, he ought to be willing to do whatever he could to overcome these unfortunate spells. If you take them in the light of a disease, as it seems they must be, then you won't feel so bad about what he does and says at these times. Tell me with what success you meet.

Demand an Apology.

"Dear Miss Blake: I was introduced to a nice young man last fall. We became good friends immediately. He called twice a week for two and a half months. There was to be a musical concert given on a certain Sunday evening to which he said he could not go, but would call for me after it was over. However, he did not come for me. He offered no apology whatever for not keeping his promise. He is now going with a girl who is below his standard. Please advise me as to how I could regain his friendship, for I like him very much. H. K."

It does not seem to me that his friendship would be extremely desirable. You should have enough pride and self-respect to expect an apology from him for not keeping his promise. Certainly if you don't demand that much from him you cannot expect to have him ever learn to respect you. I think perhaps he is interested in the other girl, and that just explains the whole matter, and the only hope at all you have is to be indifferent and not pursue him.

The Sale Maker.

"Dear Miss Blake: I started to work in an office a couple of weeks ago, and I would like to ask you if it is proper for me to accept a box of candy from one of the boys that works there. He made so many sales in one day that he said it was due me, and he gave me the candy for a reward for helping. Should I have taken the candy? B.

Why not, Berdie? The giver evidently felt in a thoroughly generous mood, and why should you hesitate to accept a sweet little bit like a box of candy? That is, if this man is not of the "fresh" type who is overinsistent in his attentions. Don't get worried over gifts as long as they are restricted to candy, books, and flowers.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

Itching Pimples Kept Mr. Simpson Awake for Hours. Suffered Badly. Healed By Cuticura.

"I suffered very badly with my head which came out in little white pimples. They would go away in a week and then come back again. They festered and came to little white heads and my scalp was sore. It itched and burned so badly I would just lie awake for hours with the pain and I used to have big eruptions on my head from scratching. My hair was also thin and dry.

"I was told to wash my head with salt and water, but it did no good and I tried ——— but with no relief. Then I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I afterward bought more and when I used two large boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two bars of Soap I was healed." (Signed) Charlie Simpson, Oak St., River Grove, Ill., June 7, '16.

When Cuticura has cleared your skin of pimples and redness keep it clear by using the Soap assisted by the Ointment for every-day toilet purposes. Absolutely nothing better.

For Free Sample Each by Return Mail, address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. H, Boston." Sold everywhere.

TRAINING FOR LIBRARIAN.

FROM time to time inquiries have come to me regarding the prerequisites to a librarianship. Many of the young girls of today who are finishing their school course and are looking for congenial and profitable employment are attracted to library work. Their ideas of the requirements for this work and the manner of preparing themselves for a position are, as a rule, vague, so a few words on the subject might not be amiss.

Nearly all libraries, whether they are government, municipal, or privately owned, require from applicants a special training in library work. The number of library training schools is not large, and the majority of them are situated in the east. However, the municipal libraries in the large cities throughout the country usually conduct a training class in connection with the library for those whose intention it is to enter the service of the particular library where the course is taken.

For instance, the Chicago Public library conducts a training class for the purpose of training candidates for the civil service examination, which examination is necessary to secure employment in the library. An entrance examination to this training class is also required. University and college graduates or students who have had partial or special courses in college work are especially fitted for entrance to the class, and will find their progress to positions of importance on the library staff greatly facilitated by this preparation.

Considerable weight is attached to the educational record of applicants for position to any library, and in most of them a completed high school course is necessary.

To give some idea of the type of questions asked, the following are taken from a list of twelve given in an entrance examination to the training class of a municipal library:

Write about 200 words on one of the following subjects: Epic poetry; American novelists of the twentieth century; Greek drama.

What do the following words and phrases mean? Answer five: Pacifist, feminist movement, employers' liability, ex-officio, nom de plume, Tommy Atkins, contraband, mothers' pensions, public utilities, neutrality.

The library schools in which regular courses of from one to two years are given are listed as follows:

New York State Library school, Albany, N. Y. Time required for graduation, two years of thirty-six weeks each.

Pratt Institute of Library Science, Brooklyn, N. Y. Time required, one year of thirty-eight weeks.

Drexel Institute Library school, Philadelphia, Pa. Time required, one year of thirty-four weeks.

University of Illinois Library school, Urbana, Ill. Time required, two years.

Syracuse University Library school, Syracuse, N. Y. Time required, two years.

Training School for Children's Librarians, Pittsburgh, Pa. Time required, two years of forty weeks each.

Simmons College School of Library Science, Boston, Mass. Time required, four years.

Western Reserve Library school, Cleveland, O. Time required, one year of thirty-six weeks.

Library Training school, Carnegie library of Atlanta, Ga. Time required, one year.

Wisconsin Library school, Madison, Wis. Connected with the Wisconsin free library commission and the University of Wisconsin. Time required for graduation, one year.

Library School of New York Public Library, New York City. Time required, two years of thirty-six weeks each.

Mary W. Plummer of the library school of the New York public library, in her "Manual of Library Economy" says: "The wisdom of the American Library association in establishing early [1890] a standing committee on training for librarianship has been amply justified. It has enabled the association to keep in touch and on friendly footing with all sincere efforts toward raising the standards of the profession through the varied grades of service."

ETIQUETTE
By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

A VIRTUE AND A VICE.

CANDOR is an admirable virtue, but, like other virtues, when carried to excess it becomes a vice. Don't, unsolicited, express an opinion. A wise precept is the one which reads: "It adds greatly to the peace of the world to let other people be mistaken." Almost as objectionable as excessive candor is the habit of fulsome praise, especially when it is addressed to the object of the admiration. Don't forget that "praise to the face is open disgrace." A few sincere and favorable comments are always acceptable, but flattery is as sweet sirup which soon becomes cloying and unpalatable.

P. B.: When being introduced it is correct to smile and say, "How do you do, Mr. Smith?" Although with young people of your age it looks more cordial to shake hands, it is not necessary with older people unless they take the initiative.

C. H.: It is incorrect for a woman to remove her gloves before shaking hands with her hostess when calling. Unless—as you say is the case—the call is in reality to be an afternoon visit, it is proper not to remove one's gloves at all.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

He Fell Asleep.

One night when I wanted to make a big impression upon a certain girl I took her to the best show in town. Coming home on the street car together,

I became sleepy and fell sound asleep. When her station was called she got up and left the car. Imagine my surprise to wake up a little later, my girl gone, and everybody in the car giggling at me.

He Stuck, but Not Long.

My most embarrassing moment came while I was escorting a very pretty 16 year old girl home one evening. We had been introduced at the home of a mutual friend and it seems she had stayed out later than her mother had given her permission to.

At any rate, when the street car we were riding on passed the transfer station a middle aged lady got on and sat down across the aisle from me. I recognized her as the mother of the girl I was with. She said nothing, but transfixed me with a stony stare which sent cold shivers down my back. I tipped my hat to her, I smiled, I picked up her glove when she dropped it and tried my best to make a good impression.

But it was no use; she continued to glare at me. I whispered to the girl and asked her if I had better get off the car and let her go home with her mother. She replied that I had better "stick." So I stuck. But when we reached the girl's home I said good-by forever. I wouldn't take chances on having that woman for a mother-in-law.

Ruth's Introduction.

One day while my aunt and I were out shopping we were overtaken by a heavy rainstorm and my feet became soaking wet. My cautious aunt, fearing that I would take cold, took me into a quiet little picture gallery and ordered me to remove my shoes and stockings. Then taking one of each to measure by she departed for the store to purchase a new pair and left me to await her return.

I sat down in a large arm chair before a wonderful picture, and sitting there intent upon its grandeur I soon forgot to keep my feet tucked out of sight under my long skirts.

Suddenly I realized that some one besides myself was in the room, and jumping to my feet I confronted a tall young man. He was staring right at my feet—and smiling! O, what he must think of me! I could stand it no longer, and, blushing furiously, I told him all about it.

By the time my aunt returned we were good friends and now the tall young man is a constant caller at our house.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE!

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," bad breath, dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c. All druggists.

Save Money in This Remarkable Sale of Beautiful Rugs

A large transaction in American made rugs brings these unusual values at the beginning of the Spring season.

JUST at a time when prices of wool and worsted are ascending; just when most of the mills are making up their product to meet advance orders; just when most stores have bought their season's stock, we close a fortunate transaction that brings us a quantity of high grade rugs at an enormous saving. BIG BUYING POWER DID IT. We turned over the entire lot and by so favoring the factory we were in turn favored with concessions not met with in the usual channels of trade. There was only one condition—that we do not mention the maker's name. However, the light of such making could not hide under a bushel, and you'll readily recognize them as rugs of the highest standard American type.

Every rug is new. Every rug is perfect. Three qualities in three lots. Fourth Floor.

Quality A. The Very Best Domestic Wilton Rug Quality

The rugs in this quality are constructed of the same grades of worsted yarns used in the weaving of the very best oriental rugs. They are the very best quality American made rugs produced. The designs and colorings are exquisite and must be seen to be appreciated, many being copies of Persian masterpieces.

Our 9x12 size, regularly $2.50, tomorrow at 64.50

Our 8.3x10.6 size, regularly 74.75, tomorrow, 61.50

Smaller sizes to match at proportionately low prices.

Quality B. Next to the Best Domestic Wilton Rug Quality

These rugs are constructed of the same quality of yarn as that used in quality "A," but are not quite as heavy, yet are a very high class floor covering, every rug being handsomely fringed, same as those in quality "A." The designs and colorings in this lot are extraordinary. Here may be found the most dainty as well as the bolder oriental effects; also many new conventional novelties. A rug for any room in the house. Our 9x12 size, regularly $75, tomorrow at 54.50

Quality C. Better Known as Standard Quality Royal Wilton Rugs.

THIS is an extraordinary offering of high grade rugs—every one new and fresh—every one guaranteed perfect—every one specially purchased for this sale. The colors are durable, the variety of designs extensive, including novelties, Persian and tapestry effects. Size 9x12, reg. 52.50, will go at 39.75

That the pri[illegible]ich the business was established has been [illegible]ered to, literally stuck to, from the begin[illegible]variableness or shadow of turning as the [illegible] proof policy to pursue, is something that [illegible] without saying, from the simple fact that [illegible] has proven from the beginning to be jus[illegible] community wanted.

If the public [illegible]ed the store they would not have kept on cr[illegible]otherwise the preposterous proposition that [illegible]support and cherish a store to the end of th[illegible]ause they occasionally get bit there or fleec[illegible]d preposterously hold good.

They have p[illegible]0 years in their united support and patron[illegible]mon sense ground that it was all that they [illegible]e in goods that could be depended upon, [illegible]at were never permitted, under any circu[illegible]otherwise than absolutely fair.

This building housed this institution from 1872 to 1874, from then on until 1880 it was practically the main entrance and office, as some 5 or 6 frame buildings were added to the east and west. This building was erected at 134 W. Madison St. (old number), the present site of Graham & Sons bank, 200 feet east of our present store; thus we have been in the same block for 45 of our 50 years' existence.

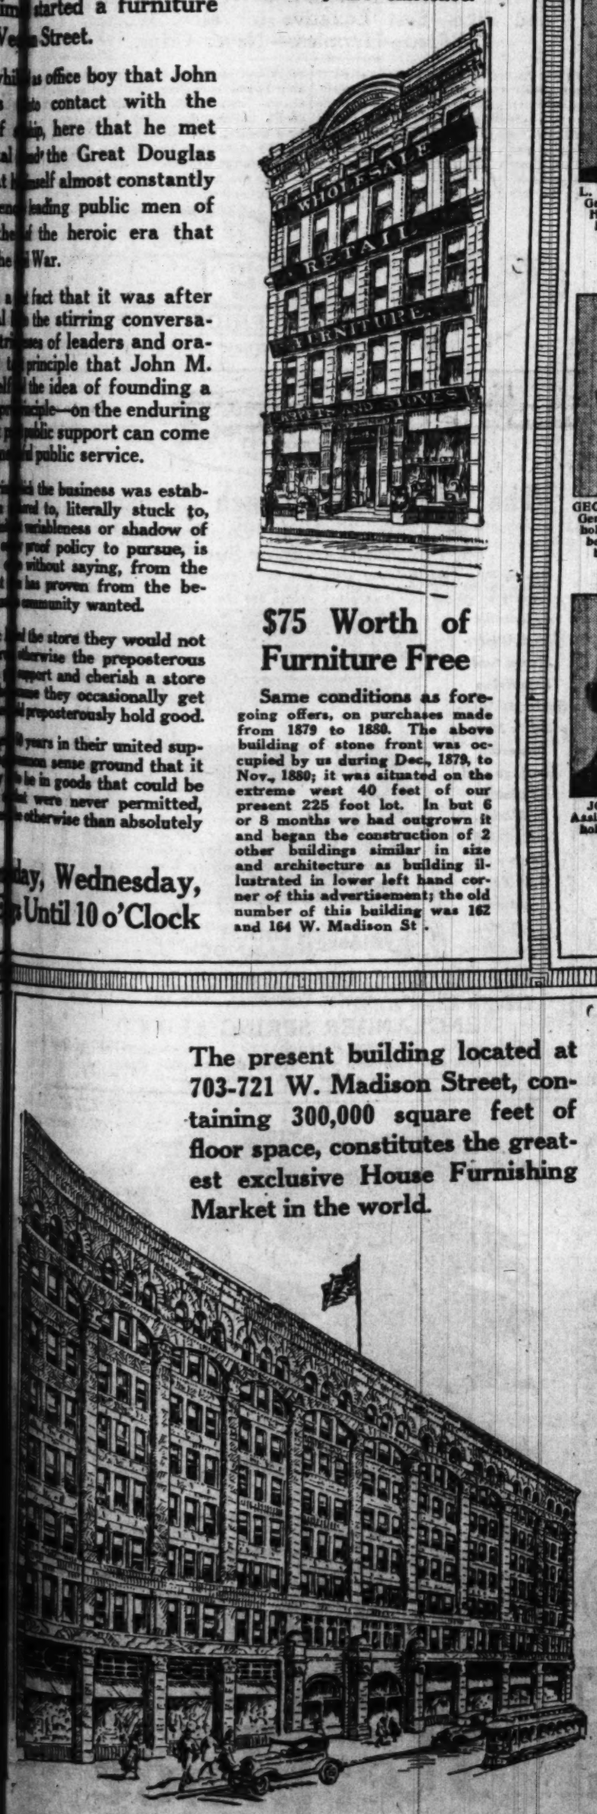
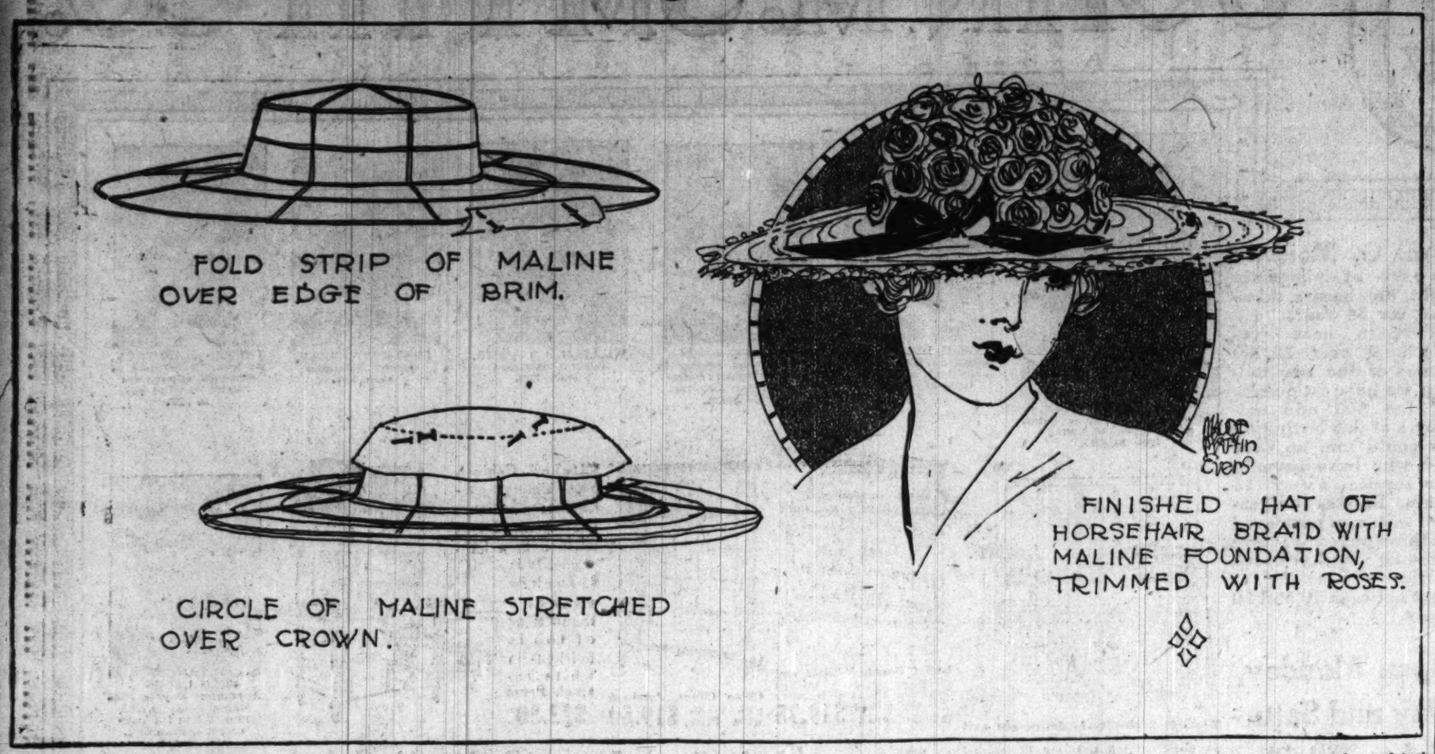
on same condition as foregoing offers on purchases made from 1884 to 1891. This building was ready for occupancy early in 1884, representing a space five times greater than we occupied but three years previous; it contained about 175,000 square feet, and at that time was considered the largest House Furnishing Mart in the world. We might also add that for the first three years the space was more than our actual needs required, but as previously stated, from 1880 on, our needs twice required the addition of new buildings. We concluded to build over every available inch of land space we possessed. At the time of its destruction by fire on April 12th, 1891, we had outgrown its capacity and had a great area of outside warehouse space.



The present building located at 703-721 W. Madison Street, containing 300,000 square feet of floor space, constitutes the greatest exclusive House Furnishing Market in the world.

Practical and Fancy Needle-Work

By CLOTILDE



THE hat pictured today is one of the most interesting models that a woman can include in her selection of hats. It is lacy and light enough for dress wear and at the same time simple enough to wear on the street with a tailored suit.

A black wire frame, three and one-half inches wide front and back and three and three-quarters inches on the sides, with a simple oval crown, is the foundation of this most attractive hat. Horsehair braid two and one-quarter inches wide over a malines foundation forms the brim, and softly shaded pink roses the crown. A yard of Copenhagen velvet ribbon fashioned in a simple bow at the right front finishes the hat.

Fold two thicknesses of malines on a true bias and cut a piece eight inches wide and forty-eight inches long. Fold this in the middle, making a strip four inches wide, and slip over the edge of the brim. Stretch slightly over the edge wire and pin in place. Lap the ends three-quarters inch in the middle of the back; do not turn in or seam. Draw the raw edges of the bias piece up to the head size wires, making a smooth covering for top and under brim with gathers evenly distributed around the head size. Sew these gathers in place securely over the lower head size wire.

This covering of malines forms a foundation for our horsehair braid and helps conceal the frame wires in the brim.

We are now ready for the braid.

Now that every woman is supremely interested in the question of hats, this department is to be devoted entirely to millinery for the next few weeks. Various hats will be shown with adequate and detailed instructions as to how to make them and in what manner to trim them. Later on, the embroidery designs and needlework articles of various sorts for spring and summer use will appear again.

Starting at the center back, lay in place and pin carefully the braid. Have the scalloped edge extend one-half inch beyond the edge wire of the brim and lay smoothly all the way around, drawing the inner edge by the cord to fit the brim. When the middle of the back is reached, turn under and lap three-quarters inch and sew down with small hemming stitches.

This braid is sewed down to the edge wire with heavy black silk with a kind of whipping stitch which goes under the wire and holds the braid firm. It is not necessary to sew the braid to the brim on the inner edge. Place a second row smoothly around the brim, lapping the inner edge on the first row about one-half or three-quarters inch, pinning in place and finishing in the back just as the first row.

This is sewed to the first row and through to the malines foundation with medium sized stitches, not too tight. All it really needs is tacking, to hold it—sewing too firmly will give it a stiff, undesirable appearance.

Next draw up the inner edge and tack to the lower head size wire.

Now we are ready for the crown. Cut a circle from four thicknesses of malines and stretch smoothly over the buckram crown, sewing down at the lower edge.

About two and one-half dozen small roses are used. Separate the bunches and cut off all but about one-half inch of the stem. Arrange a row at the base of the crown, having roses quite close to each other. Sew with heavy thread to the crown, not cutting the thread between roses but carrying it from one on to the next. Arrange the roses over the crown, entirely covering it.

The bow is of Copenhagen blue velvet ribbon one and one-quarter inches wide, tied simply with two loops and two ends which lay out flat on the brim.

Wants Flower Seeds.

"I SHOULD like to have some one send me flower slips or flower seeds of any kind. We never have had any place for flowers until this spring. If any Cornerite has more of such things than she wants I shall be glad to have them. I should be happy to send fancy work patterns in exchange, or maybe I have something else that would be wanted.

"M. M. M."

All flower lovers will know how much is meant by the lack of a garden and the final possession of one. The many garden devotees we have in the Corner will find some left overs to bestow on this correspondent, and I shall hope to receive a number of applications for her address.

Useful for an Invalid.

"I should like the address of a shut-in to whom I could write and send some useful, entertaining things I have. I am a recovered shut-in and so I know I could help, or at least cheer.

"Mrs. R. B."

I am sure there will be applications for the above adress from shut-ins who desire cheering.

One Who Loves Cats.

"As one who loves cats, I wish to concur with the letter by 'A Dumb Animal's Friend.' If those who abandon a helpless animal upon the street realized the almost certain death by slow torture, if they could know the terrible suffering, the unbelievable cruelty I have discovered they would not grudge the slight effort required to put the poor creature mercifully to sleep. One word of warning may be added. Make sure the chloroform has been thoroughly effective. To my knowledge a cat has revived after twenty-four hours in a closed box with chloroform. Many apparently dead cats have been buried alive. It has become my custom, after chloroforming, to place the bodies in water for a sufficient length of time to know without question that life is extinct. May I ask if the humane society will not put to sleep any strange animal brought to it? Let me add one word in behalf of the 'fireside sphinx.' The common, short haired cat possesses far more intelligence than it is usually credited with. Given a little care, it becomes interesting, affectionate, and the cleanest pet there is, more than repaying with its companionship the lonely human friend who provides it with a good home.

"Another Friend."

This letter, like the one upon which it comments, carries its message to all animal lovers.

Three Deserted Kittens.

"I cordially agree with the 'Friend to Dumb Animals.' It is a pitiful sight to see the scores of shivering, half starved kittens around the streets and alleys. Only last week I mercifully ended the existence of three when the family moved away, taking the old mother cat along and leaving the kittens. I just used a gas hose, running the tube through a hole in a cardboard box. The death was absolutely painless and was far more merciful than the slow death of cold and hunger. The unfortunate kittens were the toys of all the children in the neighborhood, none of whom thought they might crave for a little bite to eat or a few minutes' sleep. Success to your kindly words; may they bear good fruit!

"Mrs. A. H."

I am glad to receive this further indorsement of the kindly suggestion of the first writer, and, like Mrs. A. H., I hope it may bear good fruit.

Boy Scout Musical Outfit.

"We are starting a troop of Boy Scouts and write to ask if you will please help us to get a drum and bugle.

"R. O."

Who will help the boys with their musical outfit? I am sure some one will be enough interested in the movement they represent to do something for them and I shall look for an early application for R. O.'s address.

How to Kill Bees.

"I like the Corner so much and I would like to help a little. I notice that some one wishes to know how to kill bees. My father raised bees and when he had a case like that described he sprinkled salt with some sugar where the bees could get it as they came out of their hive. He used more salt than sugar. So if no one sends in a better remedy than this it may be worth while to try it, for it never failed my father.

"E. P."

I am glad to print this hint and I wish I could have given the other that was sent. Unfortunately the article mentioned is a commercial product and I cannot give the name of such in the Corner, although I am none the less appreciative of the correspondent's kindness in sending it.

Letters for Shut-Ins.

"I am happily blessed with a dear little home, a kind young husband and plenty of means to do with. If I could do anything, however small, to pass my blessings on, I should be glad to do so. If you have the names of other shut-ins, young or old, I would like to have such names, as I do enjoy writing letters. If there are any young country school teachers who would welcome suggestions or patterns for busy work I have a score of them, as I was a kindergarten teacher until my marriage a year ago. I also have patterns and ideas for any girl who is filling a linen chest or for a prospective young mother who is making things for a little stranger.

Mrs. I. L. A."

Not every one who is rich in blessings is so eager to share her happiness with others and to pass on help to those less fortunate. I shall be happy to give the address of the above Cornerite, whose generosity we must all appreciate.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

CHINESE FOODS.

FOR the Chinese menus, which are now in such demand, to go with Chinese costumes, Chinese china, and even Chinese wall paper, and particularly the beautiful Chinese rugs, we do not necessarily have to go to exceptional markets for bamboo sprouts, bean sprouts, etc.

To begin with, there is rice, which has been the mainstay of swarming millions in China. This food has been grown since time immemorial in Asia, and was early cultivated in India, but it is said that a ceremonial ordinance was established in China 2800 B. C., in accordance with which the emperor sowed the rice himself.

In some recent stories with a Chinese background a poor student is described as "the son of a man who dines on no richer dish than rice and soy gravy." This soy or shoyu or syou sauce is procurable at almost any grocery store. It is one of the ingredients of Worcestershire sauce, which is one of the proofs that it has been used in England for nearly a century. When the soy is not procurable a little Worcestershire may be used.

Tea a hundred years and more back in England was generally spoken of as China tea, although Bohea and other species were at times fashionable. Honey is one of the precious things used in China, where they have a dish called "the seven precious things," I have been told. I think it is of rice and various condimental meats. Candied ginger is a Chinese sweetmeat we perhaps think of as not foreign.

The use of meat in Chinese cookery has been for flavor mainly, a condition of scarcity prevailing there which a recent advocate of meat for this purpose believes we are coming to. If so we have but to go to the cookery of any oriental country, or even to the cookery of France and Italy, to learn of ways.

Chicken, pork, and ducks are the meats much used by the Chinese for flavoring rice and noodles, the latter dish being as great a specialty with them as with the Germans. They have also innumerable dried meats and fish, as well as fruits, which are thus used. At a Chinese store not long ago I saw dried chicken gizzards, dried duck legs, and no end of dried fish and strange, unknown things dried, that might have been fish, flesh, or fowl. I bought half a dozen strange kinds of dried fruits, one of which was labeled "sugar plums."

At this store I might have purchased fresh pig stomachs or soy bean cheese, both cooked and uncooked, and I did get fresh Chinese pumpkin and bean sprouts [15 cents a pound], and the tiny beans themselves from which these are grown. These beans are green of color and not half as large as the smallest peas I have seen. They will grow almost as rapidly as Jack's beanstalk on little rocks covered with water, such as we use for bulbs, but probably the Chinese grow them on damp cloths. The old Chinese grocer assured me that those he sold me were grown in California, which I doubted, for a good and sufficient reason, and required special care. By the way he used the abacus, or board with beads strung on wires, to do his reckoning.

In even suburban grocery stores this winter the lichi [or lichee or lyche] nut has been on sale along with the Chinese potato, which has been seen for several seasons past in one large store. This brown red fruit nut has even been put up in 5 cent packages or bags, though the price per pound has usually been 60 cents. This round, rough skinned nut has an easily broken shell, which is not even half filled with a meat which has sometimes been compared to a raisin with a hard pit.

Green ginger root is now to be found outside of Chinese and Japanese stores, and a little of it is often soaked in a wine which is to be used for flavoring a meat, or sliced thin it may be used with the flavoring vegetables. The loose skinned or mandarin orange is Chinese. The kumquat used often to be mentioned with the word Japanese in front of it, but the Chinese have for a long time made a simple preserve of it, which long ago was procurable through the Chinese laundry man, carrying a little store of teas, etc., as a side business. Canned bamboo sprouts are obtainable at general stores, which have a varied supply of things in cans.

A "gentle boy" in one of the stories mentioned above says that he likes iced seaweed jelly, referring probably to jelly of the agar, or what we call vegetable gelatin, when put up in a package. China long before the rest of the world probably had a vegetable oil which in old reports is spoken of as vegetable tallow. In one of those reports dates and water lilies are spoken of as the exports of one district, and the gentle boy, besides liking iced jelly liked "a ragout of water lilies, pork, and chicken dumplings, with bamboo shoots, birds' nest soup, and boiled almonds, ducks' eggs 100 years old, garnished with strips of suckling pig and heavenly fish fried in paradise oil, white balls of rice flour stuffed with sweetmeats, honey and rose leaves, candied frogs and salted crabs, sugared seaweed and pickled stars."

The range of Chinese foods, from simple rice to bizarre shark's fin, is wide. There will be one comfort in choosing rice, dates, honey, lichi nuts, etc., for a Chinese meal. Almost anybody can cook them. Dr. Yamei Kin, whose lectures have been reported in various places, says a favorite side dish is eggs cooked together with sliced shrimps. Another is boiled noodles with canned lichees. These, when canned, seem not at all like the lichee nut. Perhaps they were canned when the nut was green. She suggests for dessert ginger, bonbon, and small cakes, and of course she says something about tea, with a mention of strange little sweetmeats, such as are common to other eastern countries.

Filippini described a Chinese method of making tea which he had in the home of Mr. Pung Sung Sang. It was made in a pot set inside a padded bamboo box, where it would keep hot twelve hours, a sort of thermos bottle, as it were, long in use before we of the western world invented the idea.

Chinese Rice.

Although the recipe given here, and one that came from a Chinese woman in San Francisco, does not seem precise, we can make it so by using almost double the amount of water there is rice. Some water adheres to the washed rice and for this method we cannot use more than two cups of water to one of rice if we steam it dry without draining. We have wisely abandoned pudding bags and other such things, which may so easily degenerate into dirty rags, for cooking, but rice cooked as follows if carefully done needs the cloth to take up the steam. So cooked it will actually melt in the mouth and is perfection served with meat or even a vegetable stock, but the drier and nutty Japanese rice, which we must chew, is certainly more palatable with cream and sugar, and probably more wholesome, since we are inspired to chew it.

For this method "wash rice until water is clear, place in a heavy granite or iron kettle, and add boiling water until nearly an inch over the rice. Cover tightly and boil fifteen minutes. Remove lid and push to cool part of stove. Take a soft cloth, fold several times, place over kettle to absorb moisture, and steam fifteen minutes, or until done."

On a gas stove cook until kettle is full of steam and then turn flame low and let cook for fifteen minutes. After the fifteen minutes cover with the several thicknesses of cloth and let stand for fifteen minutes over gas turned to the lowest possible point. If at any time during the first fifteen minutes of cooking the cover is removed the fire may have to be turned up until the rice boils up to the point where it would run over if the flame was not lowered.

Cooked Bean Sprouts.

If these tiny vegetables are not as fresh as posible the little tips will be brown. Perhaps it is not necessary to go to the trouble, an endless job, it seems, to remove them, but most of us who prepare our vegetables with care will wish to do so. These may be cooked and served alone as a vegetable in the same way as when to be added to a chop suey. They are commonly cooked in hot pork fat for five minutes, then soy sauce is added and they are covered and simmered for fifteen minutes. Butter can be used instead of pork fat.

Chop Suey with Baboo Sprouts.

One may make many operations in separate pans out of the cooking of chop suey, or by careful cooking get on with one dish, a frying pan. Bean sprouts being so delicate, are undoubtedly best cooked by themselves; onions and celery are also cooked and added to the meat. Dried mushrooms must be soaked and cut in bits. When one has meat stock, especially that from boiled chicken, each separate vegetable may be cooked by itself, but by adding those that need the longest cooking first to the meat in the pan when that has been fried and a liquid added, the whole will be good.

Cut one-half pound of pork chops into small strips and fry in the fat trimmings or in a little oil. Slice thin or chop two medium onions and fry them in the pan with the meat after it has become crisp and about the same amount of celery. Have ready about the same amount of bamboo sprouts as you have onion, which may be cut in either one of two ways. For a chop suey in which the ingredients may be distinguished easily, slice the bamboo across in the thinnest of slices; for a mixture more hash like, cut in little matchlike pieces, the length of the grain rather than across it. In this latter way you cannot tell what is bamboo, and what not, when the whole is done. You will get more the effect of the crisp bamboo if it is cut in the thinnest of flakes across the grain. Add the water in which the bamboo was canned and additional water to make a cup and three or four tablespoons of soy sauce, cover frying pan and simmer until the vegetables are tender. Serve with rice. Enough for four people.

Even such a chop suey as this may have fine strips of boiled chicken served over it as a finish.

Seaweed Jelly.

One ounce of agar-agar will make a gallon of jelly, or even more. It should be washed and soaked for twenty minutes, or half an hour, and then cooked in the necessary water until dissolved. It jellies at room temperature and for summer use in particular it is far safer than the meat gelatins. It has no flavor as these have. It can be bought in the long strings at the drug store or in a special package called vegetable gelatin, in which case it has been cut up fine.

Dried Mushrooms.

Filippini says that dried mushrooms in China are carefully washed in cold water, drained, fried in a pan with lard for about twenty minutes, transferred into a small pan with broth, then cooked until soft. They can be soaked until soft and cut in the fine pieces that are used for chop suey.

Small Brother Contest.

Her Brother's Revenge.

My small brother was angry at me for teasing him about a neighbor's little girl. He promised to pay me back, and this is how he succeeded:

A young man visiting in town had been paying me a great deal of attention. The day before his return home he bought a bunch of violets and, with a note, gave them to my brother to give to me. These I received and at once started to get ready, for the note said that he would call at 8 o'clock. At the time set I was ready for my friend, but at 10 o'clock I went to bed, angry and disappointed, for he had not appeared.

Several days later I heard the other side of the story. My brother, after giving me the flowers, had gone down town and bought a similar bouquet. Meeting the young man on the street in company with some friends, he handed him the violets, saying: "Here's your old flowers. Sister said you could have 'em; she don't want 'em."

Brother Needed the Money.

I was once keeping company with a desirable young man who seemed as interested in me as I was in him. One evening when he called I was detained You've heard that story about two women discussing a wedding. "Who gave the bride away?" asked one. "Her young brother," answered her companion. "He yelled out, 'Susie, you landed him at last.'" Perhaps he was your young brother, or perhaps your young brother got in his demoniacal work before you got as far as the altar. Or maybe the young imp wasn't your brother, but a diabolical young sister who pretty nearly queered the game for you. Write and tell us about it, anyway. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

a few moments in my room before going down. When I reached the drawing room the door was partly closed, and I could hear my 7 year old brother in there talking. I instinctively stopped to hear what he was saying. "Say, would you please let me feel of that diamond stud? I heard sis tell Nell Hanson she'd give a quarter to know if it was paste, and I need the quarter." My goose was cooked.

Then George Got Busy.

George lived in a nearby town and although he wrote frequently had called but a few times, and evidently felt so sure of me he thought there was no danger of my going out with any one else. However, Martin, an old time beau of mine, whom he had once met, again commenced calling, and my little sister, with whom he was a great favorite, came running in one evening as George was over and thinking it was Martin said: "Hello, Martin, did you bring me the candy you promised last Sunday?" She soon discovered her mistake, but it resulted in George coming to a definite understanding that evening.

Lost a Fine Money Maker.

The young imp who spoiled my chances was my 7 year old daughter. Having lost my husband, I was keeping roomers. One man, not handsome, but a good man and a fine money-maker, was rather sweet on me, and I had told my daughter how much better we could live if only he would pop the question.

One evening as we were all in the parlor Mary said to him: "O, won't you please be my papa? Mamma says she don't care how ugly you are as long as you make lots of money."

Well, next day he sent for his trunks. I lost a good roomer and future husband.

An Effective Laxative for Growing Children

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Highly Recommended as a Family Remedy.

In children the slightest irregularity of the bowels has a tendency to disturb the entire digestive system, and unless promptly remedied invites serious illness. The experienced mother knows that by training her children to regularity in this respect, and when occasion arises administering a mild laxative, she will have little need for the doctor's services.

Mrs. Leo Weigand, 3251 Central Ave., N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa., whose two boys, Frank and Joseph, are shown in the illustration, writes that she has found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a most effective laxative, not only for the children but also for herself, and that she will always keep it in the house to use when needed. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that acts easily and naturally, without griping or other pain or discomfort. It is pleasant to the taste so that children like it, and is equally effective on the strongest constitution.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be obtained at any drug store for fifty cents, and should have a place in every home. It will save many times its cost in lessened doctor bills and maintain the health of the entire family. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure to get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The HOME HARMONIOUS

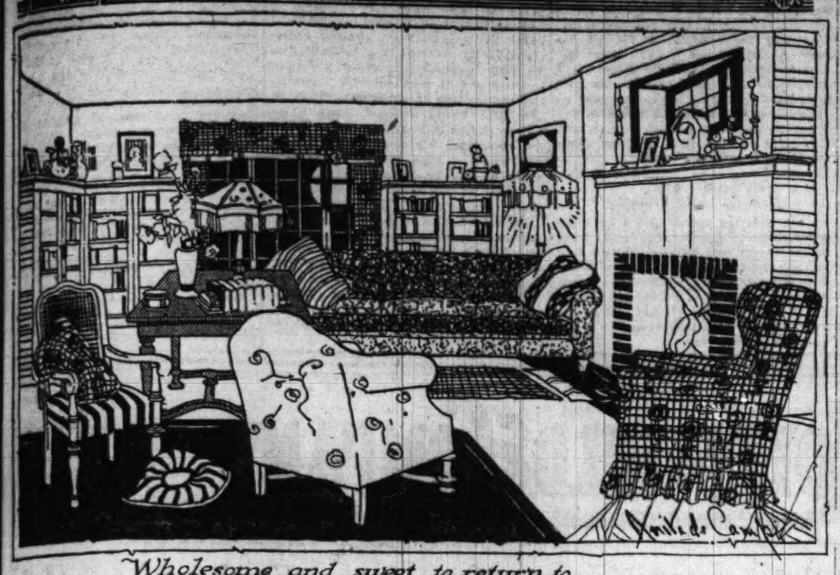
by Anita de Campi



Wholesome and sweet to return to

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

HOW often it happens that there is a charm about unpretentious surroundings that is utterly lacking in those that are more elaborate. Given a few simple, well chosen things, a fine perception in point of color, well considered comfort, and, above all, neatness and cleanliness, and riches are not missed.

Look, for example, at the tiny living room chosen for illustration here. The furniture is all of the most ordinary factory made sort, medium in price, the accessories are simple, and the rugs of the plainest, yet there is about the whole an air that is wholesome and sweet to return to. It represents all that is necessary.

Really the secret of success of the average interior lies not so much in what is put into it as in what is left out of it. Let us not have too much of anything. A few flowers, a few books, a few well placed lamps, a place to sit and a place to lie that offer honest comfort, and little is left to be desired.

The style would be hard to describe. There is no particular name for it. It is just home fashioned. The table is devised with a sliding shelf to write upon. This shelf has ink and a rack for pens built into it, so that the whole thing may be pulled out and written upon without disturbing the lamp, books, etc., arranged upon the table top.

The fabrics employed are inexpensive but attractive. The slip cover on the wing chair repeats the material used for the window draperies and for the extra cushion. It is of chintz in cross stripes of dull green on a light tobacco colored ground. On this are small flowers in dulled saffron pink and foliage of light sage green and gray. The upholstered pieces are in gray two tone. The lamp shades are in bright mustard yellow. The walnut chair with the cane back has a velvet and silk tan and brown striped seat and the two rugs are in deeper shades of tobacco.

Few and far between are the really worthy innovations in medium priced furniture, but one has been achieved this season that is destined to be of lasting benefit to buyers who combine thrift with good taste. That is a new sort of surface finish that is what might be called "fool proof." It insures against the heart break that usually follows when a careless guest sets a glass down on an exposed surface, thoughtless of the rim stain that will be left upon it.

This new surface cannot be marred. It cannot be scratched, and even pure alcohol [the most defacing liquid imaginable] will not stain it. Yet it is beautiful—a soft dull finish, an entirely novel process that is not applied on the wood, but rubbed in it.

A feature of this room is the huge bewider fireplace, with a great stone hearth, and the fire fixtures form an interesting part of the ensemble. On the great mantel is an old fashioned wooden clock, flanked by a pair of candlesticks. The bookcases entouring the room on a level with the mantelpiece give at first glance much the effect of a platerail.

A sitting room with pinkish taupe side walls has an allover carpet of rosewood color. The ceiling is old ivory and the upholstery in the furniture is old China blue, and the casement curtains are of brilliant begonia—shall we say red or pink?

Digitalis is an exquisite color; it is a deep shade of vistaria. "Would you do your dining room in lavender?" is a question with an element of absurdity about it. Yet I have seen it done, and most admirably. The side walls were panaled up to a little more than two-thirds the height of the wall in old ivory. The ceiling repeated this color, and the "upper third" was covered with a dock paper with the raised velvety part of the pattern in digitalis color on a ground of flecked coppery old gold. The curtains were of a pinkish chamois color. The ivory enameled furniture was upholstered in dull jade green brocade and the floor was covered with a hemp colored carpet.

Bridaline is a living room in pearl and sage green with touches of pink. A furniture group in this room is worth noticing. It is made up of a small square table and two console shaped tables. The latter fit to the two ends of the square table on occasion, enlarging it to accommodate a nice little company of friends. Ordinarily the consoles are set against the wall. These are part of the furnishings of a young couple's three room apartment.

The allover carpet is sage green. The wallpaper is in wide striped gray tiny leaf foliage design, alternating with a floral stripe showing larger gray leaves and suggestions of tiny pink flowers. A bench at the window holds a gay flower filled box, and this, together with the tables and the wood wainscoting, is painted a pale gray, almost white. The window draperies are of white voile, finished over into a valance at the tops, with no inside draperies.

It is seldom that a room is furnished wholly in wicker, but a sitting room, especially one in a country house, may be so treated quite satisfactorily. Grass cloth side walls go well with this and many flax rugs.

Lately I protested to a well known decorator against his putting a sofa directly in front of the fireplace. This, I maintained, had a discourteous air, and besides it discounted the importance of the fireplace, as it concealed the lower part of it completely. He promised to rearrange. And when I came in again what do you suppose he had done? Placed another sofa with its back to the first sofa, with just a long sofa table having two lamps on it between them. The two pieces occupied the whole center of the room.

I burst out laughing at the sight and he said: "O, well, if you do not like does-à-dos we will have vis-à-vis," and whirled them around one at either side of the mantel and at right angles with it. This had an inviting air and rightfully gave the fireplace its full value. "Nevertheless," he said, "in spite of the fact that the first arrangement was made solely to amuse you, several of my best clients who saw it took it in earnest, approved, and adopted it."

Answers to Inquiries.

P. R.: In a bungalow, a good finish is light putty colored calcimine or tint mixed with plaster. I think the popularity of floor lamps will last long enough to make it worth your while to buy one.

L. O. B.: Why not use plain voile for your curtains instead of crêpe de chine? I don't believe that you would like crêpe de chine for your curtains. Sunfast or casement cloth would cost less and would be more appropriate.

SUSAN B.: It is a popular scheme to paper rooms that open into each other alike. Any light neutral tint is chosen for this purpose and the general effect is enhanced by the use of harmonious colors on such a neutral ground. It is popular this year to use a great deal of bright brocade, damask, highly colored chintz, and cretonne.

* *

MRS. E. D. B.: For your thirty casement windows use simply sunfast in a good shade in a rather neutralised turquoise blue. I thank you for your invitation to call, and it may be possible at some time I shall have leisure to do so.

* *

MRS. E. D. S.: You forgot to inclose the sample. I quite agree with you about doing away with the white curtains. See if you can't get some sort of inside draperies that will tinge onto the color of your side walls and for the glass draperies; let them be not white, but either old ivory or ecru. I think your room would be improved by having the stained woodwork painted to some light color. Let it be just a shade darker than the color of your side walls.

* *

P. L. R.: Choose robin's egg blue and sand color for your striped hangings, with a light tobacco colored rug. A lamp shade made of flamingo red would be lovely with this, or, if you feel this contrast would be too violent, choose amber silk lamp shades.

MARTHA M.: With the old mahogany furniture, yellow and white stripe may be used effectively for wall hangings. Either that or pearl color. If white is to be a part of your scheme throughout the room it would be correct on your dresser. Cretonne is often used on the dressers now to match the inside draperies. It is cut to fit the top and placed under a fitted glass.

* *

BARTLEY: I believe that a table to match your furniture would satisfy you better than any other kind. The furniture itself being formal calls for this formal note. For the small chair, get striped damask brocade. Parchment colored satin stripe, showing a floral design alternating with a sort of a light brown, would be good.

* *

MRS. J. G.: Clearfax rugs are desirable for such use as you indicate in your letter. Could you put an adjustable screen clear across one end of your room and make a sort of dormitory for the three children out of that end by placing three beds side by side, with just space enough to dress in between them?

* *

MRS. F. W. M.: Use a varnish remover on your table surface. See that all of the finish is removed from it. Then give it a coat of shellac, then rub with powdered pumice stone and linseed oil. Rub down to a fine finish. Any paint store can furnish you with the filling necessary to use in the cracks before staining your floor.

Juice of Lemons! How to Make the Skin Smooth, White, Beautiful

Anygirl or woman can prepare a quarter pint of lemon massage lotion at small cost. Try it sure!

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes; to bleach the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with Orchard White this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of Orchard White, then shake well and you have a whole quarter pint of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this lotion will remain pure and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms, and hands it should help to bleach, clear, smoothen and beautify the skin wonderfully.

Any druggist will supply three ounces of Orchard White at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Bring Only $1.00 to Spiegel's

It's just as foolish to pay in advance for new home comforts as it is to go without them entirely. Waiting for them until the money is saved up is a waste of happiness. Furniture lasts for years. So why crowd into one pay-day an expense which can just as well be spread over many months?

Our business is arranged so that you can pay us as you use things—as you enjoy them. Then it's no hardship. Besides, it enables you to get better things—that last longer.

It makes it easy to buy more things at one time—so that they match. Then bright, new pieces do not "show up" shabby, old articles.

And there is no penalty here. We guarantee to save you money. Your account is opened before you step within our doors. You don't need even to ask for credit. Our display is perhaps the largest in Chicago; an entire building—six spacious floors in the loop—three other stores besides.

Marjory had been sent on errands to the corner grocery store and was proud of her ability to always bring back the correct article. On this particular occasion she was sent for a box of crackers. When her turn to be waited upon came she announced it in the following words: "Please give me a box of tackers." The groceryman, thinking that she meant carpet tacks, immediately wrapped up a package for her. Marjory noticed the mistake and exclaimed disgustedly: "How do you think they would look in soup?" W. E. B.

Bobby and his sister, Ruth, were visiting in the country. One morning, accompanied by their nurse, they went for a walk in the fields. Ruth was much afraid of snakes, and Bobby, much to her horror and disapproval, boasted that he wasn't "scared of snakes," and if he saw one he'd kill it. The words were scarcely out of the little fellow's mouth when a small garter snake glided down the path before him. Bobby, as fast as his small feet would carry him, ran in the opposite direction. Ruth and the nurse called after him, reminding him of his boasts. Bobby, without stopping, called back, "O, I'm not afraid of that snake, I'm just a-lookin' for a bigger one." D. A. B.

Jack had come to take Sunday dinner with his grandpa. A few minutes before dinner was ready some unexpected guests arrived. Grandpa, anxious to make the one none too large chicken go

We had been using baker's bread for several years. Mamma decided to bake again, but for some reason her bread was not successful. We older ones ate it, however, out of regard for mother's feelings, but the baby tasted it, then looked up, and said, "I want some bread that ain't we's." J. H.

Dorothy, who is 7, must have heard some elder lamenting the lost days of youth. After a hasty breakfast, curtailed by a disposition to sleep late of mornings with barely time enough to reach school and studies before the ardy bell, she saw her younger sister and brother skipping off to a long May day's enjoyment in the big yard and exclaimed: "O, for the days of 5!"

He's Thinner Now.

For a long time I had been keeping company with Christine, a little girl of 16. Every evening I made it my duty to call on her, as I had said my sayings and was waiting for her answer.

One evening as we were comfortably sitting on the davenport in the parlor it broke down on my side. I am four feet tall and only weigh 240 pounds. Christine, being angry at the downfall, gave me her answer at once, which was to flatly refuse me. She said nobody loves a fat boy, for they are of too much expense.

I left broken hearted, having lost both a wife and my weight in a short time.

Tommy's First Call.

A man about 35 years old lived next door to us and had never kept company with a girl, but there is a time for all things and that time came when a girl came to visit at our house. He asked permission of my mother to call that same evening.

He arrived, my mother introduced them, and left them in the room for a few minutes. He immediately leaned forward in his chair and said: "My dear friend, I thought I would tell you without further delay that I have always said I would never call on any girl except the one I intended to marry."

She arose from her chair, excusing herself, and asked my mother to send him home for her, telling him she was taken sick suddenly.

Now he does not even speak to any of our family, and his mother wonders why her Tommy does not care to ever come over to our house. H. W.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

The Mercenary Bridegroom.

My sweetheart was profuse with honeyed speeches and often would say that nothing could draw him away from my side.

At our wedding he was presented with an envelope containing money from friends who thought it wiser to give us cash than a lot of useless gifts. On arriving at our newly furnished flat I expected to be fondly clasped din his asms and to be told how deliriously happy he was, etc. But, alas, instead, as soon as pected to be fondly clasped, he dived into his pocket for the envelope and began eagerly counting the money, and I might as well have been a marble statue for all the attention I got.

Well, I've been told that after a man catches a car he ceases to run, but it surely did hurt to be displaced by the almighty dollar so soon. A. J.

Joy and Sorrow.

Before I was married the lady who was to share my joys and sorrows never cooked a meal in her life, and I had visions of meals off the arm of a chair for years to come. When we were married I weighed 140. Add four years and forty-one pounds and you have a picture of my disallusion and hers. S. A. P.

Something to Live For.

Before our marriage so many of my friends and relatives did and said everything they possibly could to prevent our marriage, simply because he didn't have anything but his daily wages. And before we were married he always was roaming around and never could feel contented. But he says now he feels like he has something to live for and is perfectly contented to be at home. M. C. R.

Just a Pastime.

Before we were married my husband's favorite pastime was drawing plans for a home that was to be located in our best residential section. That was eight years ago. The plan drawing continues, but I am living in three rooms in a house that must have been built a hundred years ago and my neighbors scarcely speak English. J. R.

Making Hay Now.

When a girl I used to like to cut the grass around the old fashioned flower beds, and unexpectedly my best friend came to call and said, "That is man's work, and not for a lady." But after we were married I cut grass, not because I liked to, but because the head of the house didn't think it high enough, even when it looked like a hay field. I. G.

An Even Break.

My aunt was matron in a large institution and when she announced her approaching marriage I warned her that she was sacrificing a good position. She said, "I'd give up the whole world for George." That was ten years ago. Last week when I condoled with her about George's sudden death she cheerfully responded, "It's not so bad; his loss is fully covered by insurance." J. V.

Nothing to Worry About.

My intended was consideration personified, but two months after our marriage, when I told him I had something in my eye, he said, "O, let it alone; it will work out." W. W.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Get a 25 Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair—You Can!

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength, and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

Weight Reducing Contest.

A Tragedy of Fat.

I never realized the tragedy of a fat mother until one day my young son came in crying and bearing marks of a recent fist fight with a neighbor boy. He was so convulsed with sobs he could hardly speak, but he managed to splutter out: "Harry said you were fat; that you were twice as fat as his mother, and we had a fight about it." In spite of son's devotion I woke up. I started to diet and exercise as you instructed and am glad to say now at the end of three months' devotion to it I am twenty-eight pounds lighter, and I'm going to keep at it till I get down to Harry's mother's weight.

Exercise in the Morning.

I am 5 feet 4 inches and I have always been rather stout, but lately I got so fat that I was laughed at and considered clumsy. I was told by a friend that if I left off eating fattening foods and took plenty of exercise in the morning I would reduce. I took his advice and have lost nine pounds in two weeks and am feeling fine. H. O.

Miss Ethel Lee of Minneapolis, who holds the northwestern skating championship for women, is a brilliant tennis and baseball player as well. In baseball she is credited with throwing and batting like an experienced leaguer.

In Miss Violet Pammel Iowa State college claims to have one of the greatest all-around athletes among university co-eds. Miss Pammell has won seven medals in athletics competition, her field of endeavor embracing golf, tennis, hockey, and basketball.

Forty-four of the older girls at the Carlisle Indian Industrial school volunteered their services by way of sewing or otherwise helping, when the patriotic women organized the Navy league for the furnishing of preparedness supplies.

Harriet Smith of Mount Pleasant, Ia., has just received her teacher's diploma at the age of 83.

ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and even shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use by you ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dust, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

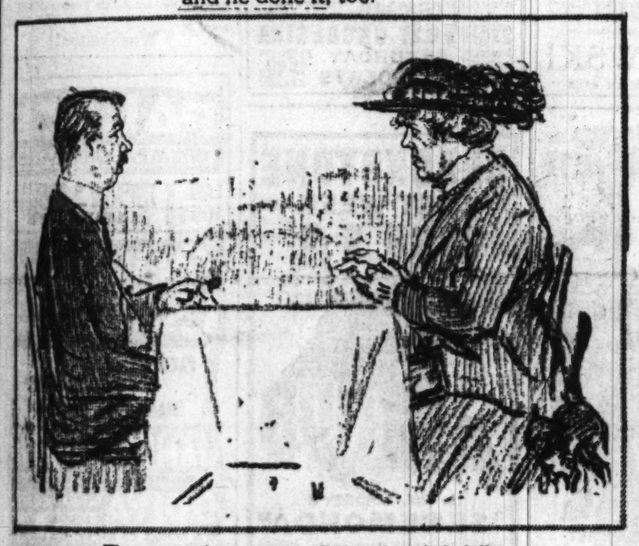
AMONG US MORTALS

DRAWN BY W. E. HILL

DINING OUT

"65c. w. w."

The elderly siren (who is paying for the dinner) and the artistic young man.



The man who was voted the class lady-killer when in college, and his little wife, who has opinions of her own. She is proving it to him for the seventh time this week.

Miss O'Hara, dressmaker, who comes in regularly for Sunday dinner, and applauds the efforts of the orchestra.

Leo, who is supposed to help in the kitchen, always seems to be swabbing around with a mop just next to the table where you are dining.

The fussy lady who is always on the lookout for foreign matter in the food.

The table d'hote orchestra doing its bit to the "Dance of the Hours." The piano is one bar ahead so far.

News and Views of the Theater

By Percy Hammond.

WALTER PRICHARD EATON, paging the American actor who can play a gentleman, listens in vain for an answering "Adsum." He suspects that the species does not exist, and he says that a producer seeking to cast such a rôle must choose either Charles Cherry or Bruce McRae, both of whom are ex-Englishmen, Louis Anspacher, before he wrote "The Unchastened Woman," complained that no American dramatists had ever put a gentleman into a play. "They can write queer people," said he, "but all their attempts at gentlemen result in blackguards." After Mr. Anspacher had achieved a gentleman in "The Unchastened Woman" he employed Mr. Reeves-Smith, an Englishman, for the character. Mr. Anspacher's gentleman, it will be recalled, browsed a bit, though married—his sweetheart being a pretty sociologist leading her own life.

Neither Mr. Eaton nor Mr. Anspacher makes clear his idea of what constitutes a gentleman—"a name defamed by every charlatan and soiled with all ignoble use. According to one poet,

St. Patrick was a gentleman
Who came of decent people, and Robert Burton deposed that since "cookery has become an art, a noble science, all cooks are gentlemen." Anatole France says that the table is the test, because it is easier to talk like a gentleman than to eat like one. Mrs. Malaprop's imagination caused her to see in Cerebus three gentlemen at once, and Shakespeare classified many things as gentlemen, from gardeners to the devil.

Mr. Eaton's specifications are similar to those of Lester Wallack, who once rebuked an actor for pulling up his trousers when he sat down. "You are playing a gentleman now," said Mr. Wallack, "and you are supposed to have more than one pair of pants." A gentleman will not wear a pink waistcoat with evening dress as, Mr. Eaton says, a prominent American player did a few seasons ago. "He will not," he continues, "as so many of our actors do, affect the ultra-fads of Broadway tailors—one button sack coats and turned-up cuffs. He will not sit down before ladies are seated, nor fail to rise when they enter the room, nor talk with the Broadway flat 'a.' His tone will not be that of a rent collector come on an unpleasant duty, or the gardener making love to the cook."

Mr. Shaw says in "The Man of Destiny" that the army examines its recruits in everything save courage. The marriage license bureau demands even less from those who want to create life than the war office does from those who want to destroy life. Mr. Eaton in his investigation of the qualities of a gentleman is similarly indifferent to essentials. Cyril Scott, for instance, in "Arms and the Girl," was well dressed and proficient at etiquette. But the way he bawled out the poor little Belgian waitress proved that he was not a gentleman. The movie directors sometimes think that a top hat, a fur overcoat, evening clothes, and an automobile cover a multitude of bad manners.

What gentlemen, Mr. Eaton might ask, are with us at present in the Chicago theaters? Well, the baseball player in "Bunker Bean" seems able to bear scrutiny as to dress, deportment, and character. Walter Hampden, in "Good Gracious Annabelle," conducts himself as a gentleman, though his clothes, like the Shrew's, are carved like an apple tart. There is a gentleman in "The Boomerang," an urbane, kindly, courteous, unselfish, humorous, well-to-do, well groomed gentleman, and played that way by Arthur Byron. The census might also include Mr. Hodge, recently departed, who in "Fixing Sister" committed no inexcusable social errors, though his demeanor was redolent of middle west commercial life.

Mr. Eaton, however, is not altogether wrong in his indictment. Many things in evening dress common to the American stage do not stand his assay. Asked to make a list of the Americans who can represent gentlemen of the first class, I should include:

John Drew,
Arthur Byron,
John Barrymore.

To this enumeration might be added the English-Americans:

Bruce McRae,
Reeves-Smith,
Cyril Keightley,
Charles Cherry.

The table is incomplete, of course. There are others, perhaps. And if Mr. Eaton finds our theater scant in actors who can play gentlemen he must admit that there are many who are good as gentlemen's gentlemen.

Miss Ellis Shannon's venture into vaudeville is with a sketch called "Champagne," by Edwin Burke. Herbert Kelcey does not accompany her.

The association of Miss Lucille Cavanaugh and George White as dancers will be no more after June 1.

Barry McCormack has succeeded Joseph Byron Totten as Muggsy the smiling pickpocket in "Turn to the Right" at the Grand.

MISS CLAIRE KUMMER, author of "Good Gracious Annabelle," prefers the gay distresses of wealth to the sordid joys of penury for dramatic material. "The rich," says she, "the rich make beautiful comedies. They are so irrepressible; they are so unrestrained; they have so little fear of consequences; they have so few of the ordinary everyday troubles. They make comedies of themselves, I assure you. I merely try to record them. They are the freest group of people in the world, and the very essence of light comedy is freedom."

The dress and setting of Du Maurier's "Peter Ibbetson" have been designed by Miss Caroline Dudley of Chicago, who decorated "Pendennis" for Mr. Drew. "Peter Ibbetson" will be presented Tuesday evening by John and Lionel Barrymore and Miss Constance Collier.

The four scenes of Sir Herbert Tree's dramatization of "The Newcomers" occur in the Colonel's library in the days of his prosperity; the ballroom at Lady Fareham's; the Colonel's bare chambers after adversity has come, and the triangle at Grey Friars where he dies.

Charles Hyson, the erstwhile Carl Heisen of Chicago, and Miss Dorothy Dickson have become uncommonly popular in New York City, where they are dancing in the revue in Cocoanut Grove, atop the Century theater.

A heartening piece of news is that Edward A. Royce has been engaged as general stage director for the musical enterprises of Messrs. Comstock and Elliott, producers of "Very Good Eddie." Mr. Royce for twenty years was general stage director for George Edwardes at the Gaiety theater in London. His skill is seen in the unusually intelligent arrangement of "Betty" at the Illinois.

Miss Ina Claire will emulate Miss Julia Sanderson and marry a martial man. Her engagement to Lieut. Laurence Townsend Jr. of the battleship Missouri is announced. He is a son of a former United States minister to Belgium and to Portugal.

Marriages less happy than Miss Claire's will be are those of Miss Belle Ashlyn of "The Passing Show" and of Miss Vere Michelena of musical comedy. Miss Ashlyn sues "Billy" Gould for a divorce, charging indifference; Miss Michelena seeks release from Paul Schindler, who led the orchestra in "Hip, Hip, Hooray."

"A Scrap of Paper," which held the readers of the Saturday Evening Post breathless through many agitating installments, is to be dramatized. A. H. Woods is the producer, Arthur Summers Roche the author, and Owen Davis the dramatist. Its stage name will be "Loot."

"The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" is the casual title of a new one-act play by Sir James M. Barrie.

Frank Keenan, disdaining lucrative contracts in the movies, will act the leading rôle in "The Pawn," a play about Japanese apies said to be headed toward the Princess theater via Detroit and other neighboring cities.

The song writers have written a ballad called "Somewhere in Delaware." South Dakota and Utah are now the only commonwealths left undesecrated by the tin-panners.

The New York Telegraph says that the revival of "Disraeli" recalls the old one about the two Radcliffe girls who were overheard talking at one of its matinées in Boston.

"My dear!" said one of them, "I couldn't remember to save my life whether Disraeli was in the Old or in the New Testament, so I looked in both and couldn't find him in either!"

The author of "The Heart of Paddy Whack," Miss Rachel Crothers, has been elected national chairman of the Stage Woman's War Relief, a guild whose purpose it is to aid the families of soldiers and sailors during the war.

The impending Harvard prize play is called "The Year of the Tiger." It is by Kenneth Andrews and its subject is Japanese. Miss Josephine Victor has been engaged to play it in Boston, April 23.

Cyril Maude, anxious to depart from San Francisco for the antipodes, finds it hard to recruit a company to appear in "Grumpy." He needs a leading man and a leading woman, but all the players seem averse to sailing the ocean blue at this time.

Among the actors' motor-boats proffered to the government are Arthur Byron's "Gypsy" and Emmett Corrigan's "Sea Breeze." Emmett Corrigan Jr. is serving aboard the battleship Arkansas; Mr. Byron's sons are too young for warfare.

Andreas Dippel's musical production, "The Love Mill," is to succeed "Betty" at the Illinois, April 23. The book is by Earl Carroll; the music by Alfred G. Francis.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The war, so far, has had no appreciable effect on the business of the theaters. In the matter of entertainment, in fact, we have for two years past been practically on a war basis, and although the tumult and the shouting have increased, the taste in entertainment remains the same. We have followed England in this. At first, which is to say during the season of 1914-15, we rather resented trivial plays. What right had we to be happy, or pretend a happiness we did not feel, when the whole world sorrowed? How could a people at war, or threatened with war, waste time with clowns and their jibbering?

But after less than a year of even so much as a paper war; after a few months of daily first page horrors for breakfast, we came to look upon the trivial plays as rather a sane relief from the conscious and subconscious tension of the tragedy that had come to stay. And so it is now, and so it probably will continue to be until the days of victory and jollification.

There is a more immediate reaction to the plays that have a war time suggestion, however. There is a bit more alacrity in the action of the audiences that spring to their feet when the orchestra plays "The Star Spangled Banner," or "La Marseillaise," or "God Save the King—and America" at the Globe, where Laurette Taylor is now concluding the performance of "Out There" with a ringing plea for recruits, spoken from the base of the Nelson monument in Trafalgar square.

And there is a thrill that will not still the whole evening at the Empire, where Maude Adams, as the little cockney in Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella," continues inspiringly to do her bit by caring for the war orphans, including small Gretchen, the "alien enemy."

And there is immediate reaction on the part of the audience when, in the last act of the Japanese fantasy, "The Willow Tree," at the Cohan & Harris theater, the English lad who had thought to bury himself in a garden and forget the world is sent back to his honorable country to fight for his George King by the Japanese princess for love of whom he had lingered.

But the actualities of war are not popular in the theaters, and are not likely to be. Nor the serious plays that add too heavily to the serious thought of the moment.

Perhaps fifty years from now the American white will be able to look upon the American black in the theater as something more than a minstrel. Given the talent and training for serious drama, there is no reason why the Negro actor should not be taken as seriously as the worthiness of his performance demands. But just now he is still a comic figure, and the more he tries to be anything else the more comic he becomes.

This is the handicap against which Mrs. Emelie Hapgood and the colored players whom she is financing struggled last week. In the Garden theater, which is used but infrequently nowadays, they offered three short plays written for them by Ridgely Torrence, a young white poet, who has conceived it as his minor mission in life not alone to develop a dramatic literature for the blacks but also to help them in their expression of it.

They had the backing of the Stage society, that generous Otto Kahn-Clarence Mackay group, who are always willing to help anybody or anything that promises well for art, and their first audience was both exceedingly fashionable and generously mixed. A black, tan, and cream colored audience, as it were.

In one box Mr. and Mrs. George Gould sat with a party of friends. Directly across the way a stage box was filled with Negro ladies and gents arrayed faultlessly in evening attire. The balcony was liberally stippled with Negroes, but the lower floor, following the unwritten rule of metropolitan theaters, was apparently reserved for white patrons.

The first of the three plays, which also proved to be the best, was a bit of comedy touched with poetry. "The Rider of Dreams" it was called and told the experience that brought a likable but typically shiftless playboy of the African world to a realization that life is real, that life is earnest, and white trash frequently just what it seems.

Because his wife was an economical manager and a practical Christian they had saved $800 to pay for their cottage. Then a white promoter got hold of the irresponsible husband, and, by promising to make a business man of him, and more particularly by promising to give him the finest guitar there was to be had, he induced him to draw the $800 from the bank that he might have it for the business.

The playboy has a wrench of conscience at sight of his wife's grief when she thinks the money lost, but he still clings to the guitar and his right to sing songs and dream dreams. Finally he is saved by a kindly old gentleman.

The colored players were quite happy in "The Rider of Dreams." They felt its poetry and sensed its drama. It concerned them, their lives, and their aspirations, their weaknesses and the strength of their faith. And they played it, if a bit stiffly, still convincingly.

The second play was tragic, but still concerned exclusively with the black race. It was the "Granny Maumee," which, four years ago, Dorothy Donnelly produced and vividly acted for the Stage society. The story is that of an ancient Negress who has sat blinded for fifty years, praying that a man child be born to her kin who shall grow up to avenge the death of her son, burned at the stake for a murder of which he was afterward proved innocent.

Word comes to her that a boy has been born to her granddaughter and is being brought to her. With the child in the house she calls wildly for an answer to her prayer that she be given sight, and the prayer is answered. But when she looks upon the baby's face she discovers it to be white. Wild with anger that her "royal black" blood should have been tarnished, she reverts to the voodooism of her forefathers and in a weird scene of incantation hurls the curse of evil spirits upon the defamers of her line. Out of the flames the vision of her dead son appears demanding that she purge her soul of hatred and join him, and she falls dead.

Place colored players in tragedy and they become set and imitative, though the young woman who played the role of Granny Maumee was splendidly in earnest. So it was with the third play, "Simon of Cyrene," a "passion interlude" built on the assumption that Simon the Cyrenian, a black man, willing to take up the sword in defense of the Savior before Pilate, hearkened to the injunction that he should love his enemies and helped bear the cross of Christ toward Calvary. REAL FLOWERS IN PICTURES.

WORD comes from Lasky that the company has decided to purchase the entire conservatory and nursery adjacent to the plant on the coast, because of the constant demand for cut flowers, potted plants, and other flowers. Without bothering to be in the least sarcastic or unbelieving, may we say that, judging from the kind of flowers we usually see over in the films, an artificial flower making establishment might have been more profitable? Perhaps, however, Lasky intends to start a crusade and give us much needed real flowers we have craved.

"One of the greatest arguments in favor of picturizing novels," declares Fred J. Beischofer, president and general manager of the Yorke-Metro, "is the fact that a good novel contains in the first place so much meat on which to start. Another great advantage of having photoplays upon books is the fact that each member of the cast may read the book and catch the story. This makes a lot of rehearsing unnecessary, and we need not call attention to the advertising value which a popular novel gives to the picture."

In "The Wild Cat" Jackie Saunders has a big Maltese cat that dives into a tank after fish. She also uses a big tame owl in a cage. Miss Saunders tried to use a tame bull snake, but the director drew a line at that.

Tsuru Hayakawa, the Japanese star, is to be presented soon in an adaptation of Wallace Irwin's fiction character, "Hashimura Togo," the Japanese cowboy.

The ukulele mania has Los Angeles in its thrall.

Mary Pickford, Pathé star, is answering fan notes in an original way these days. She begs that her correspondents prove their love for her by enlisting.

Houdini has, it is said, accepted the offer of the Williamson brothers and will be featured by them in "an international drama of thrills in the air, on land, and under water," receiving for his services the largest sum of money ever paid to any one person for any one picture. Houdini is the self-liberator, you know.

On the afternoon before Easter Sunday the large orange grove adjoining the Fox studio, California, rang with happy voices. The occasion was an Easter egg hunt given by the Fox kiddies for the youngsters for the Los Angeles suburb. One thousand eggs were boiled and dyed and a $5 gold piece was stored for the prize egg. This egg had been brought from the ostrich farm in Pasadena. It was an ostrich egg.

"The Birth of a Nation" will remain at the National theater one week longer.

Charles Ray, who is known as one of the best dressed men in pictures, declares he felt anything but "at home" in the ill fitting garments he was compelled to wear in the "Pinch Hitter," a new picture in which he is to be presented by Thomas H. Ince.

Margaret Keyes

Miss Keyes, at one time a singer in the Chicago Opera, comes back for the Stock festival: to her falls some of the music for contralto in Mahler's eighth symphony, in which, in Part II, she will typify the Muller Samaritana of the final passage of Göthe's "Faust."

EDDIE FOY.

Bert Baker and company:

"You stay out one more night and I'll go home to my mother."

"Is that a promise?"

"I want my rights, I want to fight, I want to be free, I want to vote, I want to hang around the polls."

"Well, I guess you might as well hang around the Poles as any other nationality."

"You don't know what home is."

"I don't, eh? It's a place where you go to change clothes."

"Get me a pin."

"I can't find one; here's a nail."

"What do you think I lost, a shingle?"

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry:

"Dazie, I'm crazy about you. I love you. I'd go thru fire for you!"

"But not with that collar on."

RIALTO.

Jarrow: I've promised my wife I'll give up all my bad habits, so after today I won't sing any more. I don't know what you would call my voice. I come from a musical family. Father was a finished musician. The neighbors attended to it. And mother was such a wonderful vocalist that she'd hold her audience for hours—yes, for hours. Then she'd lay it in the cradle and rock it to sleep.

But say, folks, can you stand a little scandal? I know some. I just met little Willie Green. I said, "What's the news, Willie." He said, "We're going to have a baby boy at our house pretty soon." I said, "How do you know it's going to be a boy?" "Because," said Willie, "the last time mother was in bed and we had a girl; now father's in bed."

While down at the railroad depot this morning I saw hundreds of men getting ready for a vacation. Yes, they were shipping their wives off to the country. Just as the train was about to pull out a fat man rushed up all excited and said to the conductor, "Have I got time to kiss my wife?" "That depends on how long you've been married," said the conductor. And there's the whole propcsition in a nutshell. The longer you're married the more your wife grows on you, and the more her family graft on you.

McVICKER'S.

Follett and Wicks:

"I know a funny joke about your nose."

"Go ahead and 'pull' it."

"Have a care!"

"I'd rather have a beer."

"Are you acquainted with any deaf people?"

"Not to 'speak' to."

"Why, you idiot, when you want to speak to deaf people you make signs."

"All the deaf people I know are superstitious."

"What has that to do with it?"

"They believe in signs."

"Your wife tells me you talk in your sleep."

"Yes; that is the only chance I get."

Ask Me! Ask Me!

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

CAN C.,II: Entirely welcome. Yes, I like Pauline Snow. Mebbe.

RECRUIT: You can't be too enthusiastic about your flag. Thank the powers that be that you have not only the health and physique but the willingness to fight for your country. I'm proud to know that you, a fan, are not a slacker.

HENRY: William S. Hart says he is not married and all I can do is to take his word for it.

E. R.: Yes, you will soon be able to see Earl Williams in "Apartment 29." Rather sensational, I understand.

ISOBEL F.: If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope, I'll take great pleasure in sending you the printed material I have on how to become a photoplayer. Yes, I have a list of studios which I will inclose. You are entirely welcome.

JEAN C.: A letter addressed to Ethel Clayton, care of the World Film corporation, 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York, will reach her. In private life Miss Clayton is Mrs. Joseph Kauffman. Mebbe.

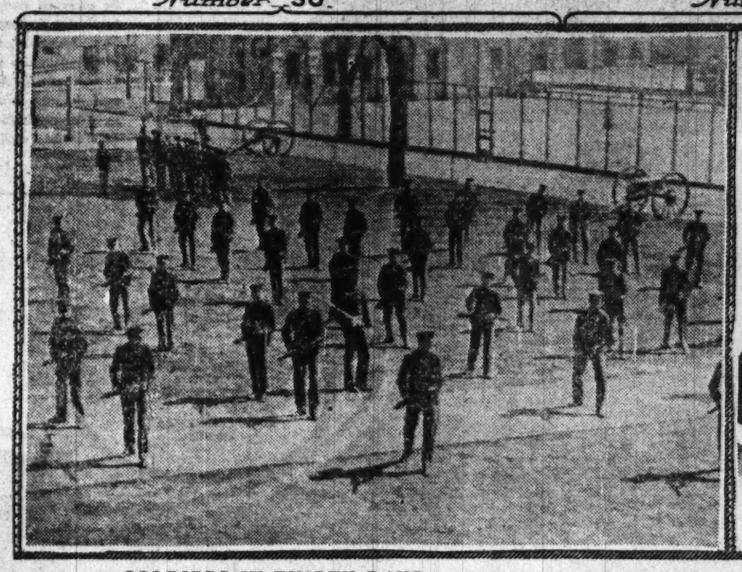
GLORIANNA: Mrs. Sidney Drew was born in Sedalia, Mo., April 18, 1880. Sidney Drew was born in New York, Aug. 28, 1864. You're welcome.

The Selig-Tribune—Semi-Weekly

The World's Greatest News Film.

In the two issues this week are shown:

Number 30.



SOLDIERS IN THIRTY DAYS.

The raw recruit, all hands and feet, patriotism and awkwardness, may look a bit difficult at the start. Thirty days' military training, however, makes a marked difference in him. He's erect, alert, and knows the whereof and wherefore of his anatomy.

Number 31.

"BILLY" SUNDAY ON THE JOB.

"Billy" Sunday, arriving in New York to begin his "spring drive" against the sinning millions of the metropolis, was met at the Pennsylvania station by a delegation of his supporters. Mr. Sunday looks fit and declares that the spirit of war is in him.

German Shells Put New Clause in Coast Leases

By Mme. X.

POSSIBLE aspects of the coming summer present themselves to the mind—especially as such affect Chicago people. If any of our fellow citizens are leasing houses for the season on the Atlantic seaboard, as is a popular custom among our rich and leisurely, they are counseled to follow the example of easterners. The latter are including a clause in their renting contracts which absolves the tenants from any responsibility for rent or damage if the houses they occupy are within a bombarded area.

It may seem a far fetched measure of financial self-protection, but one not entirely uncalled for. It would be a real solace to a house renter to feel, as German shells were crashing about his summer abode, that at least he wouldn't have to pay any further rent for the menaced structure.

Full of courage, or full of confidence in our assembling fleet of U-boat chasers, coast scouts, and in the United States navy are the James B. Wallers, who have signed a lease without this proviso for the same attractive house at Coolidge Point, near Manchester by the Sea, which they have occupied now for five or six summers. It stands on an exposed, wind swept promontory overhanging the ocean.

Perhaps they are counting on their son-in-law, John Borden, protecting them in his armed yacht, the Kanawha, one of the swiftest on the Atlantic seaboard, with a capacity for twenty-one knots [or twenty-five miles] an hour speed. But the probabilities are that he will be sent as a sea scout to some more exposed position.

He is at present kicking against an unkind fate which has laid him by the heels at the one time in his life when he most craves unfettered activity. He is ill in bed in his mother's house in New York, with two nurses and a physician in charge. A violent cold, that threatened pneumonia, has for the time being made him a helpless, impatient patient. He cannot personally superintend the mounting of the four cannons his boat is to carry, nor take part in the preliminary steps which are fast converting one of the smartest pleasure yachts afloat into an up to date, perfectly appointed adjunct of the nation's mosquito fleet, with a crew of sixty-five fighting seamen.

Mrs. Borden and their two children are with Mr. Borden in New York.

Plan Summer on Seashore.

Other Chicagoans who usually go to the seashore and who don't propose to change their plans because of any German menace are the Biddeford Pool colony, which includes the E. W. Cramers, the William Odells, the John C. Kings, Mrs. Henry Dibbles, and Mrs. C. M. Ely.

Further north at Bar Harbor will assemble as usual Mrs. R. Hall McCormick and the Misses Elisabeth and Mildred McCormick, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, the Harold Howards, and, possibly, the Edward Blairs, though the latter are more uncertain of their movements.

South of Boston on Cape Cod the George Paysons will go, as usual, to Hyannisport. Mrs. John M. Clark and Mrs. Cecil Clark Davis will, as in former years, betake themselves to Marion, Mass., while Mr. and Mrs. Hale Holden and their family will brave the perils of the sound at Black Point.

Secure as they doubtless all will be in their belief in the protection of the British navy, the wide stretches of the Atlantic, and in Uncle Sam's fighting fleet, there are bound to be many anxious glances cast seaward by our fellow-citizens, and there'll be more than one scare, it is safe to prophesy.

Guns Boom About Lake Forest.

The summer in this part of the country, while it promises a greater sense of personal security, will not be without its strong military flavor. It is proposed to drill 100,000 men at Fort Sheridan between now and next autumn. They will be fully equipped for rifle practice, machine gun drill, and artillery practice. Lake Foresters and residents of Highland Park will have to learn to take their daytime naps with the roar of sham battles beating on their ears. It's going to be a noisy summer for them.

The youthful student of local geography would, if asked to bound Lake Forest, describe it as being bounded on the south by the U. S. army and on the north by the U. S. navy. The Great Lakes Naval Training station has recently acquired 150 additional acres west and south of the station, as it is expected to make this one of the largest, if not the largest, naval training station in the country. I've forgotten how many thousand able bodied, trained seamen they expect to turn out there this summer. Already Commander Moffett has in training three times the number of men the post was designed to accommodate at one time.

War Halts Club's Plans.

Just south of this station lie the grounds of the new Shoreacres club which was founded last summer to be a sort of land and water club. The war will halt the early development of this latest comer among clubs. Some members are suggesting that the grounds be turned over to the naval station to be used for drilling, or that they be devoted to growing potatoes and other useful fruits.

The probabilities are that neither of these suggestions will be acted upon, and that, beyond laying out a golf course, nothing will be attempted. The hope of some of the founders of the club that it would develop water sports and minister to the joys of aviation must also be indefinitely postponed. Those advocating the emphasis on aquatic delights ran against a snag when they found that it is against the law to build a private harbor. Any harbor is public property, or the property of the nation.

The objects of the club are "to promote and encourage golf, boating, swimming, tennis, and such sports as may be authorized by the board of directors." The membership is limited to 225 regular members, five officers of the army or navy, and such foreign consuls as are not permanent residents of Chicago, and five honorary members, among whom will be the commandant of the naval training station and the United States army commander of this part of the country.

In the list of founders of the club is only one woman, Mrs. Darius Miller. On the membership list there are only three women, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, and Mrs. Robert W. Patterson. Stanley Field is president. The three vice presidents are Alfred L. Baker, Samuel Insull, and Harold F. McCormick. Honorary directors are E. L. Ryerson and H. C. Chatfield-Taylor. Donald Ryerson is secretary and Alfred E. Hamill is treasurer. On the board of governors for varying terms are, besides those already mentioned whose names all appear again on this board, O. E. Babcock, Charles S. Dewey, John A. Stevenson, Garrard Winston, Frank Hibbard, William McCormick Blair, Edward S. Moore, and A. Watson Armour.

The site for the club is one of the loveliest on the north shore, rivaling that of the Lake Shore Country club further south at Glencoe. The tardy appreciation of the beauties and possibilities of the land along the lake between Chicago and Milwaukee is incomprehensible to the old resident in this part of the world. Why there's an inch of land yet on the market between these two famous metropolises we fail to understand.

Historical Pageant at Dunes.

At the south end of the lake next month on Memorial day, May 30, and on June 3, there is going to be a great celebration to put the sand dunes on the map. The Dunes Pageant association is planning a wonderful open air fête for those dates with a historical pageant in the afternoon and a mythological masque in the evening, the two being separated by great open air suppers, the biggest picnics ever given in this part of the country.

The ultimate object of the undertaking is to have this beautiful region, one as famous abroad as it is at home, turned into a national park.

There are thirty miles of pure white sand beach there backed by the shifting dunes, one of nature's miracles, in whose sheltered nooks grow every species of wild flowers from cactus to violets, rimming clear, mirroring pools with an exquisite mosaic of many colors.

Among the most recent contributors to the fund necessary to present the pageant are Cyrus H. McCormick, Watson Blair, Robert Allerton, Samuel Insull, Frank Hamlin, Walter Kirk, Irving K. Pond, Mrs. Francis C. Farwell, Mrs. Howard Spalding, Mrs. Edward Morris, Mrs. P. D. Armour, Mrs. William S. North, and Mrs. E. A. Leight.

The roads leading to this region are reported to be in excellent condition—a great inducement to motorists.

Bakst Exhibit Tomorrow.

The Arts club altered its plans for the Bakst exhibit, which was to have opened in its galleries yesterday, and will have a formal opening tomorrow evening, when Martin Birnbaum, the well known critic, connoisseur, and collector, will give a talk on "Leon Bakst." Although he was born in Petrograd, Paris, which calls him "notre incomparable," shares the honor with Serge de Diaghilew of having discovered Bakst.

Into a world of drab tints the young Russian has introduced an orgy of emerald, indigo, geranium, leopard spots, vermilion, black, and orange. As Mr. Birnbaum expresses it, "it became difficult to remain a collected observer or critic before these dazzling creations, which aroused feverish emotions and overcame the senses like a flask of attar of roses."

Think what a revelation to a puritanic world was that combination of Bakst's splendid orgy of color with Rimsky-Korsakow's astonishing music, and the voluptuous and exquisite dancing of the Russian dancers!

This exhibit at the Arts club will include some remarkable portraits and the artist's masterpiece in oil, "The Terror Antiquus," which won the gold medal in Brussels in 1911, and has not been shown in this country outside of New York. Mr. Birnbaum is the prophet and expounder of Bakst, as well as being his personal friend.

Of course, if you're musical, or a lover of Italy, or like to be seen with the beau monde, you'll go to the Albert Spalding recital tomorrow afternoon at the Blackstone hotel, to augment the fund for the support of the American hospital at Florence.

Chicago Shy on Flags.

Those who return from eastern cities complain that we in Chicago are lax in the matter of flinging our banners to the breezes. In Boston, New York, and Philadelphia, in every eastern town and village, from every farmhouse, chateau, and rural bungalow, floats or flutters our national emblem. To demonstrate your patriotism hang out your flag. If you haven't one, go forthwith and procure one.

If it gets grimy and dingy, wash it. A patriotic fellow citizen of the gentler, but not less passionately loyal sex, who lives on that stretch of Lincoln parkway which lies between Pearson and Chestnut streets, has her stars and stripes laundered every week, so that it always looks radiant and admirable.

The musical given by Mme. Gauthier at the Casino club last Sunday afternoon was a "tres chic" affair. The little cantatrice, with her wonderful dark eyes, thick, night black hair, glowing color, and her audacious, brilliant Javanese and Malayan costumes, made a striking picture as she stood against the club's vivid green background, with the setting sun throwing a glow over her, while she sang queer, syncopated, minor keyed Javanese and Malayan songs.

Among the guests was a young Swiss artist named Thevanes, who wore to the club an enchanting garment which he called a trench cloak, it being a copy of the official surtout worn by French officers. It is made without buttons; it laps over from side to side, and is held together by an extremely tight belt, which gives it a smart look.

One of the enterprising guiding spirits of the Bandbox saw him wearing the cloak, and, with that swift grasp of immediate possibilities which is one of

Wear Gossard CORSETS They Lace In Front

Women on the Stage Prefer Gossard Corsets

IN the past few years thousands of actresses, singers, and their more active sisters—the chorus girls—have decided on Gossard Corsets, and wear them in preference to all others. Especially is this true of movie actresses. Few vocations are more exacting than is the American stage.

Bodily freedom, yet perfect figure beauty, regardless of figure type, is always demanded by an audience, and we have the word of thousands of actresses that in a front-lacing Gossard Corset they are better able to perform their arduous roles in perfect ease and comfort. The greatest tribute they pay a Gossard is that they believe it is the correct foundation for their outer wearing apparel.

"You are in style when you are in a Gossard," said a prominent actress, and her statement is literally true.

Ideal Short Slender Figures

The short slight woman will find in the many Gossards designed for her figure a priceless comfort in the free modeling of the hips and the light pliable materials with only enough boning to gently round the figure to that graceful side silhouette so difficult for the slight woman to attain. The waist line is perfected and the bust line given the appearance of more fullness.

There is a Gossard for every figure type. Whether you are tall or short, heavy or slender, there are many models specially designed for your figure at $2.00, $3.50, $5.00, $6.50, $8.50, $10.00 and up to $25.00.

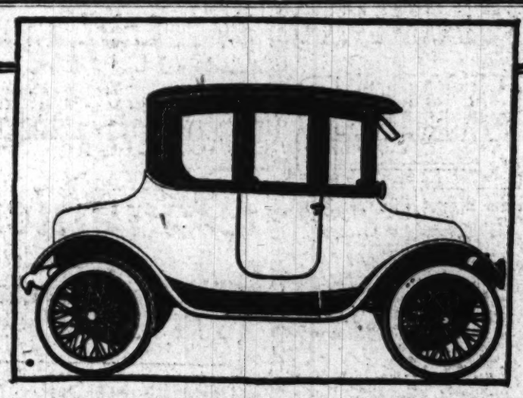
OHIO ELECTRIC



THE OHIO MAGNETIC CONTROL

THE Nile barge of Cleopatra summed up all that stood for luxury in a luxury-loving day. But time has developed advanced ideals. Today the luxury of motion has a meaning inconceivable years ago. For instance:

Step into the Ohio Electric. Take the driver's seat. Lightly press a button and away you go—gliding smoothly and silently as slowly or as rapidly as you care to drive. No car could be easier to operate. The Ohio Electric has a magnetic control—a big, exclusive advantage. By a slight pressure of the fingers you start, stop and regulate the speed of your car.

In appearance the Ohio Electric is unapproached. It has lines, finish, comfort—everything. Its body is of hand-hammered aluminum—practically seamless—another exclusive feature. And an Ohio Electric may be bought for as little as $2380.

A demonstration of this car will be a revelation to you. Ask us for one.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

New England Women Close Club Season

A RECEPTION and musical last Tuesday afternoon at the Blackstone hotel closed the club year of the Chicago Colony of New England Women. In the receiving line were the officers and directors of the club for the season just closed, Mrs. Robert Fowler Cummings, Miss Zella Clay Brown, Mrs. James Blackstone Barnet, Mrs. Charles Pratt Hulbert, Mrs. George Lewis Chatfield, Mrs. Seymour Walton, Mrs. Frances Sedgwick Smith, Mrs. Walter Scott Hull, Mrs. Sylvester Wilson, Mrs. Guy Clive Barnes, and the president of the Minneapolis colony, Mrs. Francis W. Little.

The Chicago colony was organized in 1907, the twelfth colony established by the National Society of New England Women. There is sometimes a confusion of the New England Colony club with the Chicago Colony club. Eligibility to the New England Colony club demands that the candidate be either herself born in New England or be of New England ancestry, and it has no connection whatever with the Chicago Colony club.

The object of the Colony of New England Women is to perpetuate the memory of illustrious New Englanders, to bring together New England women for their mutual pleasure, to help financially and with encouragement New England women who may be in need, and to instill in the youth of the land a love for the traditions of New England.

Immediately after the reception on Tuesday Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Frances Smith, director on the national board, left to attend the annual congress at the headquarters in New York. Mrs. Cummings was elected president general of the national society. She is the first western woman to hold that position.

The new officers of the Chicago colony are: Miss Lelia Clay Brown, president; Mrs. Walter A. Nelson and Mrs. Charles Pratt Hulbert, vice presidents; Mrs. James Blackstone Barnet, recording secretary; Mrs. George B. Van Norman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George Lewis Chatfield, treasurer, and Mrs. Seymour Walton, assistant treasurer. The directors are Mrs. Walter Scott Hull, Mrs. Anson Lee Bolte, Mrs. Samuel Parmly, Mrs. Guy Barnes, and Mrs. Wilbur H. Ford.

Wild, "The Kettle Sings, or The Domestic Conscience," in the Playhouse next Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The various departments will hold business meetings in the afternoon at 2 o'clock instead of in the morning as scheduled. On Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock the interstate conference for preservation of the sand dunes will be held in the club rooms and Miss Alice M. Gray, Eames MacVeagh, Earl H. Reed, and Jens Jensen will speak.

About Music and Musicians

By Frederick Donaghey

TENTATIVE figures on the intake for Mr. Stock's festival-week favor the first performance Tuesday night, of the Mahler symphony, with the second repetition, Saturday night, next in favor, and the Wagner program, Friday night, third. The management says that the sale to-date is a promise of prosperity for the venture. Monday night is to be devoted to what in the theater would be a "dress-rehearsal" of the symphony: the press will be admitted, with escorts for the multitude of choristers, who, of themselves, will make a numerous audience for those passages in which they are not concerned.

That the Wagner performance is telling is an amiable sign in contradiction of the foolish chatter of the last fortnight in respect to a popular disposition to boycott this item of the festival as a measure of patriotism. Like nonsense has been talked and written in New York with respect to German opera in next season's Metropolitan schedule; but the management is planning, apparently, to include the usual percentage of Wagner with German singers. The New York Evening Sun says: "The present German government is in no way responsible, willy-nilly, for the contributions of its dead composers: contributions which, if cast out from our midst, would leave our music poor, indeed."

Alfred Hertz is among the important German musicians in process of Americanization: he filed his intentions more than two years ago while still a New-Yorker.

The Metropolitan is in the last of its twenty-three weeks' season in New York.

The Metropolitan's final revival of the season was given to Franco Leoni's one-act opera called "L'Oracolo," as yet unknown in Chicago. Its libretto is a making-over of Chester Bailey Fernald's little play of San Francisco's Chinese quarter, "The Cat and the Cherub," a brief "sensation" of twenty years ago, when it was made to seem important by a managers' wrangle. Another play of like theme and treatment was involved, "The First-Born."

The spring season of opera in Havana with Rosa Raisa and Farrar has been abandoned.

Miss Sophie Braslau and Mischa Elman, in Chicago last week, made formal denial of the rumor that they are betrothed.

Lucrezia Bori, whose loss of voice last season was attributed to a slovenly operation on her throat, announces that she is recovered, and is to return next season to the United States.

The intimation from the Opera management that the new soprano from Paris, Genevieve Vix, will open here in Massenet's "Manon"—vis-à-vis with Muratore, doubtless: no other Des Grieux is imaginable—makes interesting a recent list of attractions in the Paris theaters: that piece was in the ready schedule of the Opéra-Comique; Massenet's short piece called "Le Portrait de Manon" was in another house; and an operetta, "La Petite Manon," was in performance in a third.

Puccini's new opera, now called "L'Oiseau de Passage" and again "Rondine," has as yet been listed by neither Campanini nor Gatti-Casazza for importation. It is in this season's répertoire at Monte Carlo, where the company includes Alice Zeppilli, Gustave Huberdeau, Marcel Journet, Alfred Maguenat, and Maurice Renaud, all of whom have sung with the Chicago Opera. Zeppilli was listed to return this season, but remained abroad in fear of the submarines. Renaud, one of the most versatile and gifted men in opera, did not, in two or three appearances in the first season, make enough of an impression in Chicago to warrant the management in taking him on as a permanent member of the Auditorium company; but he was a factor second only to Mary Garden, herself, in such success as marked

Margaret Matzenauer

Madame Matzenauer, now a reasonably familiar figure in Chicago through her appearances in this season's Opera and a recital, is to return on Friday night of next week to serve Mr. Stock as soloist in the all-Wagner program of his festival-week. She will sing from the parts of Elizabeth, Brünnhilde, and Isolde.

Oscar Hammerstein's spectacular venture of a decade ago in opposition to the Metropolitan.

Hayden Coffin, the London tenor, has the song of "Tommy Atkins" in revival there: the news in this statement seems to lie in the fact that nobody else dusted it off in all the months since August of 1914. This ditty has had more than twenty years of intermittent popularity: it was brought into the United States in 1894-95 in the first of the musical comedies imported from the London Gaiety, called "A Gaiety Girl," Coffin with it has revived a lovely ballad of the light-opera 'eighties—"Queen of My Heart": Chicago theater-goers with a memory may recall the late Eugene Oudin's singing it in "Dorothy." Coffin, too, may be recalled by some as a well-bred singer without much voice: he was in Chicago with Lillian Russell in "Giroflé-Girofla."

"Gismonda," one of the turgid melodramas Sardou wrote for Bernhardt and that were made known in the United States by the late Fanny Davenport, has been made into an opera with music by Renzo Bianchi. The "set" of these plays included "Fédora," "La Tosca," and "Théodora," which have been put to like use: the veteran William Furst, who put together the music played with the film called "Joan the Woman," used "Theodora" as the subject of an opera produced about twenty-five years ago in San Francisco. The "Fédora" opera by Giordani was made known in Chicago in 1913-'14; and Puccini's setting of "La Tosca" has since its premiere been the beloved implement of at least one hundred percent of the sopranos.

An item of news from London has to do with preparations for a music-drama with Coleridge Taylor's "Hiawatha" score as the basis.

Sir Henry Wood's famous orchestra in Queen's Hall, London, is now fifty percent of women as a result of the war's use of men.

Melba, back from Australia, is singing in the west: she is, by present plans, to appear once or twice with Muratore early in the next season of the Opera.

"Composers, your country needs you! Band together, and resolve not to weaken the defense of our land by writing enervating patriotic hymns, courageous cantatas, and songs with fragments of the national anthem as a refrain!"—Leonard Liebling in the Musical Courier.

The Week's Music

THE ORCHESTRA'S final program of the formal season's twenty-eight will be the Friday-Saturday one of this week. Mr. Stock lists Beethoven's "Leonore" overture known as No. 3, Brahms' second symphony, Richard Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," the Siegfried Idyl, and the prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

The tenth and last of the season's Pops will be Thursday night, when the program will be made up of Wagner's March of Homage, Beethoven's fifth symphony, the overture to "Mignon," Mr. Stock's arrangement of Liszt's "Liebestraum," Hellmesberger's arrangement for violins of Mayseder's Concert-Etude, and Weber's "Jubilee" overture.

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. Y

Easter Parade of Fashion in Fifth Avenue

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—My subject for this Sunday is handed to me by precedent: The Easter parade. It went marching up Fifth avenue as in other years—but with a difference, and that difference, alas, betokened not any progress upward toward the light, nor would be the glory of an Easter parade to herald, but our acceptance of an international obligation, of a duty to defend the rights of mankind.

Right in the midst of the discreet display of spring costuming, a little less riotous than in other years, a ferocious blast of a motor horn startled paraders. They could see a machine part traffic and approach madly. It was a gray sightling car, olive drab and somber, and it passed with a whirr, always keeping the line of traffic in front of it and always closed in by the line it had passed in its rear. It was like a messenger, heralding to Easter celebrators that something dark and awful was coming, we knew not what.

The paraders knew of it before the event, however. Almost every man of them wore a piece of red, white, and blue ribbon, in lieu of an Easter posy, tied in his buttonhole. Machines out on the avenue were draped in flags and a woman wheeled a go-cart on the sidewalk, in which sat smugly wrapped a little child wielding a flag almost too big for him.

In the Parade.

As for the rest of the news of the Easter parade—Clarence Mackay and his daughters, Ellin and Miss Katherine Mackay, were in it, as were the other of standbys, the Cornelius Vanderbilts. This year they walked up the avenue side abreast, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius, the son, Cornelius Jr., and the daughter, Miss Grace. People said to these two after, just as they did to all of you about a million years ago, when you were young, "How you have grown! And how you do look like your mother!" Last year these two were children, and this season they classify naturally among the grownups.

James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, paraded. He was with Miss Mrs. Vanderbilt Twombly. Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard were also out, and they had with them their growing family, in which the little Finley Jr., formally adopted, was led by Mr. Shepard. The little fellow had a great deal of trouble keeping his hat on in the gusty wind. It was a pretty white hat that turned up on one side and down on the other, and he seemed to be impressed with an economical sense of the importance of holding on to it. Mrs. Shepard and the little girl recently taken into the household. With the two masculine upholders of the family walked Mrs. Shepard's niece. Mrs. Charles De Loosey Fabrina and her daughter were paraders.

Many Flower Trimmed Hats.

As for the costuming: Matrons wore dark satin costumes with heavy fur coats or mantles. An unusual number of flower trimmed hats, both large and small, were noted on the best dressed New York women. The flowers were arranged in wreaths either about the top or the base of the crown. A contrasting silk facing was often seen. The barrel silhouette, in evidence, was conservative.

The younger well dressed set seemed to have adopted the new high stock collar of white net and lace, with the long cuff of lace showing between or over the coat fronts. The suits were uniformly dark blue or putty colored gabardines, strictly tailored, with a medium skirt, rather full skirted coat and a tight skirt. Skirts were longer, but not ankle length. The popular wool topcoat was the "too much mustard yellow."

The new high hat worn by many men caused much attention, comment, and smiles from the other men. This new style is terribly flat of brim and the crown sides converge at a dangerously oblique angle toward the top.

There was no one style of corsage bouquet worn by the women as in former parades. All kinds of flowers were seen. An odd style showed two distinct bunches worn together, such as a bunch of violets with one of lilies of the valley and a few extra gardenias.

War Hastens Weddings.

As for the war, its actual effect thus far on society has been to precipitate marriages. One of the conspicuous nuptials celebrated during the week which in times of peace would not have taken place for many weeks to come is that of Miss Gladys C. C. Fries and E. Roland N. Harriman, son of the late railroad magnate and Mrs. E. Henry Harriman. The bridegroom is one of the five heirs of the great financier and a brother of the romantic young bridegroom of a year ago, whose engagement was disclosed when the girl who is now his wife fell off her horse when they were riding.

The marriage of the week took place quietly in the chantry of St. Thomas' church, because the young bridegroom has offered his services to his government and these services were promptly accepted. He will be assigned to work in the proposed coördination of railroad transportation and will be off for his work nobody knows how soon.

The bride is one of the most charming looking of young girls. She has a lovely mouth, which is serious in its expression, and mild, direct eyes, which look at you and seem to reflect something, as a well does. But nothing in her personality gives up their secret of what it is. Her hair is lovely. It falls into beautiful waves low over her forehead and covers her ears. She wears simple costumes. In one in which her picture has been taken she wears the simplest, Priscilla-like white collar and a little ruching around her sleeves.

Miss Bowen a Bride.

You remember about my telling you a few weeks ago of the exciting return home of William Stephen Van Rensselaer, third secretary of the United States embassy in Rome, when he found his way in these troublous times across the ocean to claim his bride. He came on the boat which bore our former ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard. The marriage took place last week and was really a lovely, as well as a very smart, affair. Miss Rixana Wentworth Bowen was the bride. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Winthrop Bowen of 5 East Sixty-third street.

The marriage took place in St. Thomas', with Dr. Ernest Stires officiating, and among the guests were the Cornelius Vanderbilts, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, former Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. Choate, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lorillard. Maurice Roche was one of the ushers.

What will be of interest to you, I thought, was the magnificent costuming. Never, so said the guests, had colors in their blending looked prettier than in the bridal outfit.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a robe of heavy satin with a court train of cloth of silver, richly embroidered. Her veil, of rare point lace, covered the dark coiffeur, being caught at the back by a spray of orange blossoms and falling half way down the train. A string of pearls and a small diamond brooch were her only ornaments. She carried an armful of Easter lilies.

The maid of honor wore a dress of pale pink chiffon and lace with a moire sash of iris blue and a hat of natural straw wreathed with pink rosebuds. The bridesmaids were in frocks of flesh colored chiffon and lace of similar design, with leghorn hats of iris blue, the crowns covered with the yellow wood anemone. All carried bouquets of iris and phlox. The bright colored flowers were tied with iris colored tulle.

Now you can have a Perfect Complexion!

A Specialist Has Perfected a Home Complexion Treatment Guaranteed to Make You Look Years Younger.

He learned that certain Oriental beauties owe their flawless complexions to an emulsion of an extract of the seeds of a wonderful Oriental flower. This emulsion is so beautifying, so marvelous in its virtues, that you will be joyfully surprised at the quick improvement in your complexion. You simply anoint your face with it, not neglecting under your chin, where women show their age so plainly. Then wash with warm water and a face cloth. Do this twice a day, at the times you would otherwise wash your face. Follow these directions a few days and you will really look years younger. It is so astringent that wrinkles, crows feet and enlarged pores vanish like magic; the skin becomes many shades lighter, fresh, clear and youthful. This treatment will also banish blackheads and pimples. It is ideal for massage, and women say it prevents and removes freckles. If your hands get rough and red it will keep them soft and white. If you honestly want a perfect complexion go to The Fair, Buck & Rayner, or any big drug store or department store and ask for creamed La-may (French, Crème L'Amé). You get enough for a month for only 35c. Do not forget this treatment is guaranteed. Your complexion must quickly show a marked improvement or your dealer is authorized to return your money without question. You are sure to be delighted. Millions of women have received this offer and everyone heard from writes Lilla Blanche Dearing, who says: "This wonderful preparation has cleared my skin, lightened my complexion and given natural color to my cheeks. My friends say I look many years younger than my age." Remember, Crème L'Amé is guaranteed. There is also a delightful La-may Face Powder which you will find stays on better than any other complexion powder.

CAUTION—Crème L'Amé (La-may) is not a cold cream, nor is it a greaseless cream. Cold creams are made largely of petroleum, which not only grows hair, but relaxes the skin, encouraging wrinkles, crows' feet and enlarged pores. Greaseless, peroxide, or vanishing creams and lotions are made largely of soft soap and glycerine, which dry and age the skin. We will give One Thousand Dollars to anybody who proves this is not true. Furthermore, we will give One Thousand Dollars to any chemist who analyzes Crème L'Amé (La-may) and finds it contains petroleum, glycerine, cocoa butter, lanolin or anything that can grow hair. Crème L'Amé (La-may) is a compound of beautifying extracts of the seeds of Oriental fruits and flowers. No other complexion preparation is sold under such a positive guarantee. When Crème L'Amé (La-may) has banished your wrinkles, reduced your enlarged pores, cleared your skin, lightened your complexion and given natural color to your cheeks, you will know why it is the most popular complexion preparation sold in New York. Out-of-town readers can order by mail of the American agent, Herbert Roystone, 106 East 19th Street, New York.

the chief attributes of genius, asked him if she might have the coat to copy at the Bandbox.

"But it is my only coat!" he exclaimed. But when he heard what the Bandbox was and how many of the children of the frontier were supported by the Bandbox, he volunteered to go the following day to that gay and fashionable shop and to draw designs for costumes for the proprietors, while they took the model of his cloak. Which he did.

So now, if you would be a la mode, get a trench cloak as part of your summer wardrobe. Besides being deliciously comfortable it is deliciously becoming.

The English trench cloak goes the French one one or two better, as it includes a lining of blanket or fur, which is buttoned in so that the coat is serviceable for cold or for milder weather.

Doing for France.

What American girls are doing for France makes fine reading in the latest report from the Paris office of the American fund for French wounded. They trundle crates and cases on baggage trucks, and load auto trucks with heavy boxes. In the transport service they run motor vans all over the country on good and bad roads at all hours of day and night. They are always ready, always efficient, always cheerful. In January the A. F. F. W. aided 501 hospitals, and provided 631,142 hospital articles and supplies. A splendid record!

Write to your senator and congressman and ask them to support the general staff universal military service bill and to cut out the proposed restriction on tobacco. Any one who has had any experience in foreign hospitals and in the actual warfare knows what a cruel prohibition this would be. To watch the look of peace creep over a face twisted with pain by the application of a surgical dressing, when a cigaret is placed between the sufferer's lips, is proof of the value of the Indian weed as a tranquillizer.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Fuller of 6 Scott street announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Edward Warren Everett, which took place on April 7 at the Plymouth Congregational church with only members of the immediate families present.

The marriage of Miss Verona Goss, daughter of Joseph J. Goss of Rogers Park, and Clarence D. Alsfasser took place on April 9 at the home of the bride's uncle, Ferdinand Goss of 5304 Kenmore avenue.

FUTURE EVENTS

War relief benefits for the sufferers among our European allies seem only to draw greater crowds and larger sums from us, now that we have an added responsibility towards our own country's needs. Tomorrow afternoon the Italian wounded are to be the beneficiaries of a violin recital to be given by Albert Spalding at 3:30 o'clock in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The proceeds will go to the American hospital for Italian wounded in Florence, Italy, and a number of young Chicago society women who have attended school in Florence will act as ushers. The hospital is the only one in Italy maintained by American money and has never before made an appeal of this sort in America. Among those who will usher are Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Chester D. Tripp, Mrs. Donald MacPherson, Mrs. William B. Mann, Mrs. Donald Forgan, Mrs. G. Thomsen Von Colditz, Mrs. John Edgar Freeman, Mrs. Stanley Rickcords, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Miss Mildred McCormick, Miss Mabel Linn, Miss Gladys Hambleton, and Miss Martha Clow. Large groups of seats have been taken by society women, many of whom will give luncheons at the hotel preceding the recital.

Lieut. Sir Ernest Shackleton, the noted British explorer, will be in Chicago soon on his way across the continent to New York, where he will sail for England to go on duty aboard one of the British warships. While here he will lecture at Orchestra hall on Monday evening, April 23, under the auspices of the Geographic Society of Chicago, and will show many pictures made in his recent explorations in the Antarctic ocean. Sir Ernest will arrive in the city next Sunday, and will be entertained at many affairs. He will be the guest of the University club. Among those who have taken boxes for the lecture are Mrs. T. B. Blackstone, Mrs. Byron L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rosenwald.

Another benefit entertainment will be given on Friday evening at Orchestra hall for the permanent blind relief war fund, when Mme. Alys Lerrayne of the Paris opera will sing and Sergt. Maj. Robert Middlemiss, late of the Scottish borderers, who was blinded at Gallipoli, will speak of his war experiences. There will be French-English war pictures.

The Mary Thompson auxiliary will give its annual entertainment tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. building at the corner of West Monroe street and South Ashland boulevard. A motion picture entitled "How Life Begins," which is a part of the educational propaganda being used by the hospital, will be shown to teach how plants and animals come into existence. Between the reels Miss Sarah Jones of the University of Wisconsin will give a short talk on heredity. The proceeds of the entertainment will go to the fund for the nurses' home. Dr. Bertha Van Hoosen is one of those in charge of arrangements.

An exhibition of paintings by Leon Bakst will be shown at the reception to be held tomorrow evening at the Arts club. A lecture will be given by Martin Birnbaum.

Mrs. Theron Colton will give the final one of her series of bird talks at the Three Arts club tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Williamson, Mrs. George Henry Musselman and Miss Florence Williamson of 3030 Sheridan road will give a reception on Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at their home.

Three modern one act plays will be given under the auspices of the Art Student magazine staff on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock and Wednesday evening at 8:30 and on Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock in Fullerton hall of the Art institute, the proceeds to go to the American Red Cross. "The Wonder Hat" and "An Idyll of the Shops," both by Ben Hecht and Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, and "The Pot Boiler" will be presented, many of the young people being active in Red Cross work and some of the young men being on the verge of being called to war duties.

Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine of New York will head the list of patronesses and be present if possible at the joint recital of her niece, Miss Marjorie Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Valentine of 4342 Ellis avenue, and Miss Maude De Voe on Monday evening, April 23, in Central Music hall, when Miss Valentine will make her debut as a monologist. She is already well known in Chicago society and club circles for her dramatic ability.

Members of the St. Columbus Social club will give a charity card and dancing party on Friday evening at the Hotel Del Prado. Miss Nellie Kavanaugh and Miss Mary Walker are chairmen in charge.

A recital and dance for the benefit of the Blind Babies' association of the United States will be given at the Edgewater Beach hotel on Thursday evening. Cave Thompson, the blind pianist, will play, and Florian Varkony, baritone, and Miss Lucille Gregg La Verde, soprano, will sing.

A black and white costume ball will be given on Saturday evening at the South Shore Country club. Many dinner parties at the club will precede the ball.

The Corpus Christi Social club will give a card party on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 4916 Grand boulevard. Mrs. George Neybert is chairman and will be assisted by Mrs. Ella Crowe, president of the club, and Mrs. Clarence E. Mercer, secretary.

The Association of Collegiate Alumnae will have an authors' reading on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Chicago College club. Among those who will read from their own works are Miss Sophonisba Breckinridge, Miss Julia Cooley, Mrs. Annie P. Kenny, Mrs. Katharine P. Girling, and Miss Katherine E. Dopp.

Present day Russia will be the subject of discussion at the Cordon on Tuesday evening, when Victor Yarros will be the speaker, and the writers of the club will act as hostesses. Those members of the club who have Russian costumes have been asked to wear them, and it is announced that Russian dishes will be served at dinner preceding the reception.

An afternoon musical will be given for the benefit of the outing fund of St. Paul's choir boys at the parish house, Dorchester avenue and East Fiftieth street, tomorrow at 4 o'clock, under the direction of Miss Rachel Busey Kinsolving and John Allen Richardson. Among the patronesses are Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter, Mrs. H. A. Bressert, Mrs. H. W. Gentles, Mrs. A. Stamford White, Mrs. Isham Randolph, and Mrs. Jesse Holdem.

The Friendly Aid society will hold its annual meeting and election of officers on Friday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Edward Tilden, of 5020 Woodlawn avenue, who will entertain the society during the day.

The Maimonides Hospital Aid society will give a benefit card party at Mandel's tearoom on Friday afternoon, April 27, at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Joseph L. Davis, president of the Daughters of Indiana, will entertain the members of her board at a breakfast at the Edgewater Beach hotel on Thursday. There will be eighteen guests, the party going to the matinée later.

News of the Religious World

The Rev. Norman B. Barr

By action of the Presbyterian Ministers' association today has been designated as Olivet day for the Presbyterian churches of Chicago and vicinity. The Rev. Norman B. Barr is superintendent of the Olivet institute and pastor of the Olivet Memorial church. The church, originally dedicated as the Olivet Memorial church, is located at Penn and Vedder streets, and is now used for work in the German and Italian languages. Olivet church services are now held at 1440 Sedgwick street, in the building formerly known as the Sedgwick Street Congregational church.

Olivet institute includes all manner of institutional work distributed through sixteen buildings. The aim of the trustees and friends of the institute is to raise funds to erect a central building with ample facilities for a great auditorium and social features.

Property is now owned free from debt valued at $140,000, and it is proposed to erect the new building at Blackhawk street and Hudson avenue, across the street from where the church offices now are. The Sedgwick street church is one block from the proposed site of the new building.

A single gift from an unnamed donor of $100,000 and $30,000 additional from other givers is the amount in hand towards the $250,000 which must be raised before the new building will be begun.

Dr. Barr will speak this morning in the Rogers Park Presbyterian church and this evening in Olivet church. The Rev. Prof. C. B. McAfee will present the subject to the First Presbyterian church, Oak Park, and the Rev. John Timothy Stone will speak on the institute at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Other pastors have promised to speak and distribute literature about the institute to their congregations.

Methodists Raise Fund to Better Camp Grounds

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

DESPLAINES Camp Meeting day will be observed today in the 208 Methodist Episcopal churches of Chicago. Last Tuesday a campaign to raise $30,000 was begun by two teams, one each of ministers and laymen, and the result of their canvass is to be announced at a banquet of the Chicago Methodist Social union at the Auditorium hotel next Friday night. It is expected the full amount will be reported at that time. The captain of the ministers is the Rev. T. K. Gale of Wilmette and the captain of the laymen is G. H. Stineback of Oak Park. The Rev. E. B. Crawford of the Garfield Park church is general chairman and the Rev. Albertus Perry of Park Ridge is executive secretary.

The Desplaines camp ground, located sixteen miles northwest of Chicago, was established in 1860. When the battle of Bull Run was fought, resulting in a rout for the northern army, the camp meeting was in session. A war rally was immediately held when the news was announced. Patriotic speeches were delivered and patriotic songs were sung. The camp meeting has been held every summer.

As a part of the improvement plans which will be made possible by the raising of the $30,000 the grounds are to be fited up in such a manner that they will be open for use for educational, religious and social occasions throughout the summer instead of being limited to ten days, as hitherto. The plans for the camp meeting which begins July 11 are announced to include sermons and addresses by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, the Rev. W. R. Wedderspoon of St. James church, the Rev. George Wood Anderson, formerly pastor at Scranton, Pa., and the Rev. Fred B. Fisher of New York.

The new pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, Sixty-fourth street and Harvard avenue, the Rev. H. Samuel Fritsch, formerly of Medina, O., will preach today the initial sermon of his new pastorate. Dr. Fritsch is a graduate of Valparaiso [Ind.] university and of the Chicago Congregational Theological seminary. While in Chicago he filled pastorates in nearby towns. He received the degree of D. D. from his alma mater. He has been pastor for six years in Medina, and was formerly pastor of the Congregational church in Billings, Mont., said to be the largest Congregational church in the state. He succeeds in the pastorate of Pilgrim church the Rev. A. J. Francis.

A midjubilee meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held simultaneously on Tuesday in seventy cities. It marks the half way point in the five year program in preparation for the golden jubilee celebration on the founding of the society. A luncheon will be held on Wednesday at 12:30 at the Hotel Sherman at which the speaker will be Bishop Thomas Nicholoson and Mrs. J. N. Reed will be toastmistress.

The Rev. Charles F. Wishart will begin this evening a series of five sermons on "God in American History," in the Second Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Twentieth street. His subject tonight will be: "The Founding of the Colonies."

The "Alert" men's Bible class of the North Shore Baptist church, Leland and Racine avenues, of which the Rev. J. S. Ebersole is pastor, will have charge of the regular evening service of the church tonight. The general subject will be "Christianity a Man's Job." P. P. Bilhorn will lead the music and the speakers will be Robert Moffett, teacher; E. T. Hardy, president, and Artnur Burrage Farwell. W. H. McKee is in charge of the devotional department of the class.

Ground for the new St. Dorothy's Roman Catholic church, Sventy-eighth street and Eberhart avenue, will be solemnly blessed today at 4 o'clock by the pastor, the Rev. John Oleanlan. The work of construction will begin tomorrow morning.

The Rev. Richard D. Hughes, pastor of the Emerald Avenue Presbyterian church, is the new president of the Presbyterian Ministers' association.

Tonight at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall promises to be patriotic night. Frank B. Willis, former governor of Ohio, and one of the Republican spellbinders, will speak on the subject, "The National Spirit." "Blessed Columbia" will be sung by Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdien and the choir of 100 will sing "America," by Converse. Albert W. Harris, president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, a trustee of the club, will read the scriptures, and President Charles M. Stuart of Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, will offer prayer. Mr. Willis served in congress two years before his election as governor of Ohio. Previous to entering politics he was a professor for twelve years in the Ohio Northern university, a Methodist institution located at Ada, O.

The Rt. Rev. A. J. McGavick will lay the corner stone of the new church and school of Our Lady of Solace Roman Catholic church, Sangamon and Sixty-third streets, today at 4:30 o'clock. The Rev. T. E. O'Shea is pastor. The cost of the new structure, excepting the furniture, will be $55,000. It will be 52x136 feet and will have a tower eighty feet in height. It will be built of gray pressed brick, with Bedford stone trimmings. The schoolrooms will surround the church, which will rise in the center.

The Congregational club will hold a gala night tomorrow evening at the Hotel La Salle. S. W. Gillilan, a humorist, will speak on "Sunshine and Awkwardness."

Now Spring Calls a Handsome Group of Suits to "Her Colors"

Second Floor

The vogue for the almost plainly tailored suits for spring is emphasized in this group of authentic styles which we feature for Monday at $25. Note the fullness of the skirts without the flare at bottom, note the many ways in which buttons are used for trimmings, the natty belted backs or belts all around, the sash effects that tie in front, the cleverly shaped revers, the large collars with overcollar of plain or fancy silk, the tailored stitching and, withal, the modish cut and length of both coats and skirts.

They're made of velour checks, men's wear serges, gabardines, taffetas and poplins, only six of the many models are illustrated, many fancy styles included, as well as the always popular semi-tailored effects, superior workmanship throughout, all with the appearance both in style and fabric of much higher priced suits, in all the desirable shades for spring and summer wear, including black and navy, all sizes but not every size in each style or color. A careful comparison of prices asked elsewhere for similar suits will quickly convince you that this is, indeed, an unsurpassed offering. Choice for Monday,

Mme. Coates' Dressmaking School,

the Dressmaking School that so many hundreds of women have been awaiting, the most thorough and practical school of all—for the course is positively complete in 14 lessons, from the first to the last step in dressmaking—and is taught under the personal supervision of Mme. Coates, just as in former years—covering in a plain, comprehensive, up-to-date practical method the study of The 34 Steps in Skirt Making, The 46 Steps in Waist Making, The 64 Steps in Tailoring. This instruction and training is not simply a series of lectures. The cutting-fitting, altering, and constructing of all garments are done in the school room under Mme. Coates' supervision. Special work is given for home study and application. Accurate and economical cutting will be thoroughly taught, together with perfect fitting and correct altering, constructing, making and finishing underwear, waists, skirts, suits and gowns, while the principles of correct handling of difficult portions of garments, such as plackets, buttonholes, belts, sleeves, collars, cuffs, etc., are dealt with as individual subjects.

Army Announces Plan for Use of Motors in War

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—Officers in the quartermaster corps headquarters who were assigned to the task of estimating the needs of an army of 1,000,000 men in the way of transport, have reported that from 35,000 to 40,000 automobile trucks would be required and recommend that these be about evenly divided between the one and one-half and the three ton types.

The army has at present 2,000 trucks, practically all of which are in service on the Mexican border. These are deemed sufficient for the needs of the regular army and no further purchases will be made until the new forces have been raised, drilled, and organized to a certain degree.

The quartermaster corps expects to be able to purchase all the additional trucks directly from the manufacturers. The offers of trucks from scores of private firms will not be accepted unless some unforeseen emergency arises.

Basing their figures on the reports of the advisory commission of the council of national defense, army officers believe that domestic factories will be able to turn over to the government 1,000 trucks within the first month after the contracts are placed, and that this rate will be raised to 4,000 per month by the end of six months.

Each motor truck company will be made up of twenty-seven cargo trucks, one repair and kitchen truck, and two oil and gasoline supply trucks—all being under the supervision of a "truck master." This organization also will apply to motor car companies which will be organized.

If the recommendations made to the war department are adopted, companies of the three ton trucks will be used for hauling supplies and ammunition from "rail heads" over good roads; companies of the one and one-half ton trucks will be used over the inferior roads to distribute the stores from the point at which the work of the larger cars ends, to the field trains of mule wagons, which in turn will take the loads to the various units.

A repair truck will follow each truck company as that division moves, in order that it may care for overnight repairs, but a "second class base" with repair shops will be established at each rail head for the more elaborate repair work, and still further back "third class bases" will be in operation.

Civilians who are interested in the field of automobile transportation and who desire to aid the government can do most useful work at this time in organizing purely volunteer companies of trucks, motor cars, and motorcycles with their respective personnel.

These should be organized along the lines of the regular army requirements, and the men enrolled should be eligible for enlistment in the quartermaster's reserve corps. The war department has under consideration a suggestion that such volunteer companies be recognized by some design of badge to be placed upon the cars and by the issue of a suitable badge to the personnel.

A large number of inspectors will be needed for the first lot of trucks ordered for the army. Col. Chauncey B. Baker, quartermaster's corps, U. S. A., who has been supervising the preparatory work in his department, is drawing up a list of those recommended for this work.

URBS IN HORTO

Means a City in a Garden, But Our Forefathers Didn't Foresee Motor Plows in Chicago's Back Yards.

Motor plows, country cousins to the limousine, trundled up West Twenty-second street last week and showed the city dudes what they could do by getting busy in a territory supposed to be anything but agricultural. The work was done under the auspices of the city garden bureau, which proposes to coax inexpensive "eats" out of vacant lots. Miss Josephine Huddleston was piloting the contraption pictured when the photographer snapped it.

Hoosier Automobilists Form State Reserve as Aid to National Guard

INDIANA motorists, not content with preparedness measures confined to cities or other restricted localities, are organizing a state-wide "motor reserve." The enrollment list when completed is to be on file at the headquarters of the Hoosier State Automobile association and in the hands of the Indiana national guard, to form a nucleus from which volunteers may be called, not only for military purposes but for any emergency need, such as those presented by tornadoes and floods.

Acting under the advice of Adjt. Gen. H. B. Smith of the Indiana national guard the motorists are following an organization plan proposed for the regular army and including motor car, motor truck, and motorcycle companies. Under this arrangement a motor car unit is made up as follows:

One carmaster.
Three assistant carmasters.
One machinist.
One helper.
One cook.
One watchman.
One trumpeter messenger.
Twenty-eight drivers.
Twenty-seven cars.
One wrecking car.
Five motorcycles.

The truck company is similar in makeup, with the exception that there is no wrecking car. Motorcycle organization is similar in number of machines and men, but there is no wrecking unit and five motorcycles are for officials.

For present purposes the cook specified for army units is to be dispensed with, for the reserves will serve only for short periods. The motorcycle parts of the units are considered necessary, for these men and machines act as messengers and will be valuable in any mobilization.

The duties of the officers, car master, and three assistants are, briefly, as follows: The car master commands. The company may be broken into three sections, if necessary, each in charge of an assistant car master, with nine cars. Otherwise the three act for their sections as does the car master for the whole company. He goes ahead with the first car and sets the pace. If a dangerous piece of road is encountered he stands by while the cars pass. He will see that all members of the company are thoroughly instructed and competent. He is responsible for the cars, the men and their condition, and the discipline of the organization. In the army he reports to and receives instructions from the quartermaster every evening and receives orders from him as to the work or the road for the next day.

In Indianapolis plans are being made to organize one each of the three units provided for. Any owner or driver of a car, truck, or motorcycle is eligible to join, whether or not he is a member of the Hoosier Motor club, the local organization in charge of the project. In other cities the president of each local motor club has been authorized to act as car master and to organize a motor car unit, or to appoint some members to act for him.

Although authorized and sanctioned by national guard officers, the motor reserve will not be officially a part of the national guard. "Unofficial auxiliary" is what they call it.

HOW WILL WAR AFFECT THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY?

The automobile editor of "The Tribune" put this question last week to a dozen leading American manufacturers of automobiles. Here are the replies received up to the time this section went to press:

Needs of Government May Reduce Output.

BY HUGH CHALMERS.

[President Chalmers Motor Company.]

Detroit, Mich., April 12.—We cannot now foresee any unfavorable effect of the war upon the industry. If the government should require any number of automobile plants to manufacture munitions or other war products, it would greatly reduce the number of pleasure cars manufactured, but I believe the sale will be equal to the demand during the war period unless something wholly unforeseen should come up to injure the general business of the country.

* *

Foresees Gain in Automobile Prestige.

BY WALTER E. FLANDERS.

[President Maxwell Motor Company.]

Detroit, Mich., April 13.—Our belief is that the war will have a beneficial influence on the automobile business. It will emphasize the importance of rapid methods of transportation and will bring into prominence the marked advantage of automobiles over other means of getting from one place to another.

* *

Prosperity to Permit No Let Up in Buying.

BY HENRY M. LELAND.

[President Cadillac Motor Car Company.]

Detroit, Mich., April 12.—So far as the Cadillac company is concerned, I see no reason why the war should have any appreciable effect on its business.

We have orders on hand covering every car we can build for some time to come, and production is being pushed to the limit. We are constantly placing contracts for material and are planning to maintain and increase production, the same as we have always done.

I do not see any reason why the war will affect the average man's use of his car. With continued general prosperity, of which few have any doubt, there seems to be no reason why people will not continue to buy new cars as they have always done since the inception of the industry.

Packard Head Sounds Note of Warning.

BY ALVAN MACAULEY.

[President Packard Motor Car Company.]

Detroit, Mich., April 13.—I do not think it can be successfully argued that the war will aid the automobile industry or expand the demand for motor cars. On the contrary, there are good reasons to believe, I think, that this is a wise time for manufacturers to be conservative in planning output.

Public Won't Be Able to Get Enough Cars.

BY JOHN W. BATE.

[General Factory Manager Mitchell Motors Company.]

Racine, Wis., April 13.—Perhaps anybody's guess on this matter would be as good as my own. However, it is my opinion that the demand for automobiles will be equal to the capacity of the builder to provide this commodity, although I fear the automobile builders will have to limit their outputs on account of our government's requiring much material that would otherwise go into the manufacture of motor cars. This, I believe, is going to make a shortage, and the public is not going to be able to get all it may call for.

This is my opinion, at least for this season. What would happen later is very hard to forecast.

War Incomes Will Make More Motorists.

BY J. C. FLOWERS.

[President Premier Motor Corporation.]

Indianapolis, Ind., April 12.—Personally, I feel that the war will tend to increase business rather than depress it. Large manufacturing orders from the government and greatly increased orders from our allies, due to their greatly increased purchasing power as a result of the American loan, will put stupendous sums into circulation, and this money must find its way into the pockets of the public.

Thousands upon thousands of new automobile prospects will be created among those who have looked upon the motor car as a luxury beyond reach. Slightly higher prices will prevail, both in the first cost of motor cars and in their operation, but increased money making power will more than offset this.

The war will greatly stimulate all American industry, and thereby make the entire country more prosperous, which means a healthier status for the motor car industry.

WAR

Straws Which Show How the Current of Sentiment Lies in the Automobile World.

POSSIBILITY that the entire automobile racing schedule for 1917 may be abandoned developed last week in the announcement that members of the American Speedways association will meet in New York within the next ten days to take definite action on the problem. A decision must be reached at once, so that entrants and drivers who have agreed to send racing cars from Europe to this country may be notified as to the situation.

Plans are well under way for turning the Chicago speedway into a training camp for military chauffeurs. Dario Resta, last year's racing champion, has been offered the post of chief instructor. An aviation school has already been installed at the speedway, and the management's announced intention is to make the plant as useful to the government as is Brooklands, the great English speedway, to the British authorities, who have taken it over as an aviation school, training ground, and mobilization camp.

The board of directors of the American Association of Garage Owners has forwarded to President Wilson and the chairmen of the foreign relations committee of both houses copies of a resolution pledging the assistance of garage owners in mobilizing the country's resources in the transportation of men by motor cars. The entire membership also is pledged, where needed, to help fill the ranks of the army and navy.

Frank M. Busby, general manager of the Louis Geyler company, is starting a poll of all Hudson car owners in Chicago and the vicinity to learn who among them will contribute their services and cars for military service. Many of these, of course, have already enrolled in the reserve corps being organized by the Chicago Automobile club.

The Motor Club of America, organized in Chicago last fall, has issued a general call to automobile owners to list their cars for military service at the club's western headquarters at 616 South Michigan avenue. The organization has 5,584 names on its membership list.

As you turn the corner of a slippery street, it's reassuring to know that your are putting up that square right-angled resistance of theirs to the treacherous skid.

If you haven't been able to slip the chains on—as the careful driver should, with any tire, in very bad going—you can feel safer, at least, with Batavias than with any other non-skid tires; because they are the original indented tread and use the right-angle pattern skid resistance of the chain itself.

As three-quarters of the time motoring is a fair weather sport, this security tread with its indentation gives maximum speed because of a minimum surface touching the road.

Two Power Ranges Combine These Opposite Virtues in the Peerless Eight

The delectable purr of an ideally soft, smooth, flexible motor may now be had in a car capable of stupendous feats of power and speed.

Two Power Ranges make the Peerless Eight a car of "dual personality"—of unbelievable contrasts of performance.

A "Loafing" Range

For all ordinary driving you will use its "loafing" range. In this range it performs all those feats of smoothness which distinguish the really fine from the ordinary car in the every day service of an exacting owner. And in this range it is on half rations, consuming fuel so sparingly as to shame many a lesser powered six—even many a four.

A "Sporting" Range

Among the finer cars of the day, there are a few which pretend no compromise with the demand for the gentler virtues of soft, smooth flexibility. Such cars are out and out exponents of the more rugged virtues of brute power and speed. In its "sporting" range the Peerless is ready to vie with such cars in their own chosen field.

Let us demonstrate how much more your motor car will mean to you when you can run the whole gamut of motor car performance with one and the same car—the Peerless Eight.

Dunes Park Plan Adds Interest to Lake Shore Tour

By John De Long.

OF ALL the roads which lure the touring motor tourist into the country, perhaps those of most general interest are the ones leading to the dune country of northern Indiana, that beautiful and unique region of sand hills on the southern shore of Lake Michigan. The routes leading to this wonder section are now in excellent condition and the tourist should not hesitate to drive over them at this time.

Nature lovers who are vigorously making a movement to preserve this remarkable territory from commercial encroachment, have been receiving much encouragement in their undertaking. Early in February Secretary Lane of the interior department recommended to congress that a large portion of the dune country be purchased by the government and set aside as a national park. This has focused attention on this movement a great deal, in which thousands of people are expected to take part, is to be given over to the dunes on Memorial day and on the Sunday following that holiday. The pageants will be staged at Port Chester, a resort on the lake shore north of Porter and Chesterton, Ind.

On a beach of almost white sand, with the blue lake bearing replicas of the canoes of Father Marquette and the Indians, will be set a stage marked off by totem poles. On this stage hundreds of players, some of whom are to be real Indians, will re-tire the history and personages, the legends and myths of the first inhabitants of the district.

Few people realize the romantic and historic interest of the dune country. The site chosen for the pageant is just east of Fort creek. The creek is but a slender ribbon of water now, but in the old days, when the dune country was full of little lakes and streams, this creek, connected by a short portage with the Little Calumet river, was one of the principal routes for the canoes of the fur traders and Indians. The strong fort built here by the traders to protect the valuable stores of furs gathered in the pine woods or brought from the south for transportation to Fort Mackinac was one of the chief strategical points of the northwest during the revolutionary war and its commandant, Lieut. de Linctot, ranked only second to Clark in the work of winning the middle west for the United States. In the dune country Father Marquette spent much of his time. And from time immemorial the Indians who came down in great numbers clear from Mackinac to the Indiana dunes to gather plants from which they extracted poison for their arrows and drugs for medicine and intoxicants harbored their canoes between the wooded hillsides of Fort creek.

All the rich history of the dune country will come to life again in the pageant, which is to be written by Thomas Wood Stevens, whose name has been from the first closely connected with pageantry in the United States.

The Prairie club for several years has had an annual frolic or pageant near its clubhouse in the dunes. This year the pageant has been planned on an enormous scale to include public spirited individuals and organizations already aroused to the danger of losing the dunes as an ideal playground and laboratory for scientific research. Represented by the incorporators and by affiliation with the Dunes Pageant association, the organization formed includes the Friends of Our Native Landscape, the Chicago Historical society, the Audubon society, the Chicago public library, the Chicago public schools, the Municipal Art league, the Art Institute, the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, and other organizations.

The actors and spectators for the pageant probably will be drawn almost entirely from Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan, but the affair is expected to bring home to the whole nation the unique beauty and appeal of this dune country, whose central location and long sandy water front alone should give it a distinctive place among our national parks. In the days of the early explorers and up to a century ago the dune country was not only full of lakes and streams, but densely wooded with forests of great trees and underbrush, through which the explorers cut their way. The lakes now are mostly meadows or marshes, and the woods have been thinned out by fires, which sweep over some part of the dunes every year. Yet the dunes are by no means barren hills. On a few of the hillsides the trees form solid banks. In some of the glens and lowlands the woods are not dense, but close. But the thin woods which fringe the hills give the dunes a peculiar charm all their own.

The grass is seldom thick, except in some of the old lake bottoms. But even before the wild flowers start to come up, white, blue, yellow, pink, and purple, the grass surfaces present an amazing variety of colors which are wonderful to behold. A fire of unusual extent swept over the dunes last fall. Such fires burn off the plants, but injury to the trees is not superficially apparent. In fact, it only adds another variety to the beauty of the dune landscape. The burned meadows are indescribable deep browns, while on the hillsides the green continues and the mosses light up the Flemish surfaces. And this is the rare and beautiful stretch of land which those who know it wish to have preserved as Nature's gift to the people of all time.

Motorists who decide to drive to the scene of the pageant festivities will find the trip skirting the foot of Lake Michigan a fascinating one. For the run to Port Chester the following route is recommended.

Michigan boulevard, Thirty-third street, South Park avenue, Grand, Oakwood, Drexel, and Hyde Park boulevard to Jackson park; curve left and follow winding drive along shore of Lake Michigan, crossing bridge between lagoons and taking left curve past lagoon and golf shelter. Leave park via South Shore drive, passing South Shore Country club and angling left and right, still on South Shore drive.

Continue to Eighty-third street and turn left at large church. Drive east two blocks and join trolley line, following same on Burley and Buffalo avenues to Ninety-second street, and, turning left, crossing bridge over river and continuing south in Ewing avenue to Indianapolis avenue. Turn left and continue on fine macadam and brick pavement, with trolley tracks, across Wolf river to prominent five corners. Turn right and follow trolley line to forks, bearing left on fine concrete road across Lake George. Use caution not to pass first four corners after crossing Lake George. This is at extreme northeastern edge of Hammond. With trolley and railway one block ahead, turn left on Gostlin street, cross railway lines and go to Forsyth avenue, East Chicago, turning left in Chicago avenue.

Keep on to Calumet (23.2 miles). With bank building on left, turn right with trolley and continue to end of road. Drive past Grasselli Chemical works and cross narrow wooden bridge. At prominent cross roads, slightly over two miles from Calumet, turn left with trolley, cross railway, and continue to end of road where trolley leaves to right. Turn left across railway tracks into Clark road. At crossroads, with trolley station on right, turn right in Fifth avenue, following same straight east through Gary (32.4 miles). Continue in Fifth avenue through Aetna, Miller, and East Gary. At end of road, with brick store, turn left. At three corners bear left and at end of road turn left and right at cemetery.

At crossroads disregard sign and keep straight through. Seven-tenths of a mile beyond turn left, leaving heavy telephone poles at little white schoolhouse and following narrow road. End of road turn right and at next crossroads turn left. Cross railway and then turn right along the tracks. Drive through crossroads to end of road, where turn left. Cross railway tracks and go through edge of Porter (forty-nine miles), passing large church on right. Continue to crossroads and turn right at large sign. From prominent crossroads (fifty-one miles) drive north to Port Chester, a resort on the lake shore west of Waverly Beach and Tremont. To the uninitiated it should be explained that Port Chester derives its name from a combination of Porter and Chesterton, the nearest towns.

Run a Ford with Coal Oil? Sure! It's Easy Enough

STATEMENTS of kerosene enthusiasts that economy of operation on kerosene as compared with gasoline comes not only from the difference in the price of the fuel itself but also in a greater mileage per gallon on kerosene if carburetion and compression are properly cared for seems to be borne out by a recent A. A. A. test of a Chicago system for using kerosene in which a distance of twenty-five and five-tenths miles was run on a gallon of kerosene, as against twenty-three miles on a gallon of gasoline with a Ford car and stock carburetor.

This test was made under sanction of the American Automobile association and under the supervision of L. A. Hillman, representative of the A. A. A. contest board. With the same setting of the carburetor at which the economy test was made, an acceleration from ten to twenty-five miles per hour was made in fifteen and six-tenths seconds. With that adjustment the car idled down to ten miles per hour, but with a richer adjustment its running was good at four miles per hour. The car has been in service since last autumn, during which period the carbon had been removed twice, according to the owner. It had been operated on kerosene since it came from the factory. During the test the top was down and the windshield up, and with the three passengers, weighed 2,156 pounds.

The system used consists of a patented means of heating the intake gas by passing is through a specially designed manifold heated by the exhaust gas. In starting a cold motor, gasoline is used, the change to kerosene being made by a valve on the dash as soon as the engine warms up.

An $89,000,000 Load.

Hugh Chalmers took four guests for an automobile ride the other day in Pasadena, Cal., where the motor magnate has his winter home. Somebody who observed the party did a little figuring from "inside" information and announced that, as he doped it out, the car was trundling around the possessors of just $89,000,000.

At Mr. Chalmers' side in the front seat was Charles Weeghman, restaurateur and president of the Cubs. The back seat was crowded with the robust forms of William Wrigley, gum man and sportsman; William D. Walker, vice president of the Cubs, and A. C. Fiamondon, merchant and baseball fan.

Of course, all the motorists except Mr. Chalmers were Chicagoans.

Replace it with A VESTA

No other battery will give you as long life, as dependable service, as much peace of mind as the Vesta—because there is no battery made like the Vesta.

No other battery is so constructed to protect you so positively against short circuits, "treeing," and other annoying, expensive battery troubles.

Vesta Indestructible Isolators prevent short circuits; Vesta Impregnated Wooden mats prevent "treeing;" Vesta Titanium hardens the lead plates, precipitates impurities and adds vastly to the battery's strength.

No other battery has a single one of these life-prolonging features.

And finally, whatever make of battery you may have, we will make you just as good an allowance as the manufacturer of your old battery. In replacing an old battery or buying a new one, it is safe, wise business to get the Vesta. It costs no more—gives double the service.

It is very seldom necessary to make an adjustment on a Vesta Battery; however, when it is necessary, adjustment is made on a basis of eighteen months' service.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

COURAGEOUS AND COWARDLY CONGRESSMEN.

It is possible that a congressman who votes for universal liability to military service may offend the sentiment in an unintelligent or cowardly congressional district. There may be districts in sections of the United States so little interested in the future of the nation and so greatly interested in their parochial affairs that they would punish the representatives who voted for the nation and against them.

But if the district be ignorant or yellow, prejudiced or selfish, why should the congressman be? He furnished one of the votes which declared war on Germany. He expects the men of the United States to back up his vote by the offer of their lives. Why should congress be immune from sacrifice? What excuse is there for a man who has voted other men into war dodging a manifest duty because the performance of it might bring disagreeable consequence?

If by the act of congress many American men must sacrifice everything, may the congressmen who voted them into this sacrifice consult political expediency and retain any vestige of self-respect or any decent standing in the opinion of the nation?

The man in congress who hesitates because he fears the political consequences to himself is the most shameful, odious, selfish coward the American nation could produce.

The congressman who voted against the declaration of war might salve over the blister on his conscience if he votes against an efficient method of making war.

The congressman who voted for the declaration of war and who votes against effective ways of waging it, and does so because he fears the political consequences to himself, is despicable beyond the imagination of the devil.

If a congressman will put his political future in the scales against the security of the soldiers his vote has called into action and will allow the weight of his opinion to register in favor of his chances and against the soldiers' chances, that congressman is damned before any tribunal of decent human opinion.

If he is yellow and his district is yellow, he ought to have voted against war. He ought to have voted for peace at any price rather than for war at a price to be paid by other people. A yellow district ought to have a yellow congressman and the people and their representatives ought to stand revealed in their true colors.

A congressman who served red gods cannot ask that the sacrifice to them be made by other people than his own. He voted his own people into the service of the red gods and he ought to see that, willing or unwilling, they send their sons to the ceremonial.

The vicarious patriotism of voting other people's sons into this service will leave his soul tainted and his mind corrupt. This will be dishonest and scheming cowardice, not frank and exposed cowardice.

Shall the congressman be exalted at the expense of other people's expenditure? Congress at this moment is the first line of American defense. It may be possible that some sacrifices will be asked of it. It may be that yellow districts will repudiate a brave congressman for a vote which insures the security of the nation and disturbs the serenity of the district.

What excuse has the congressman for not making this sacrifice of himself for the good of the nation? How can he reconcile it to his conscience that, having called willing men to the flag, he neglects to force to their support the unwilling men who will benefit from the sacrifices made by the brave?

Why should a congressman be exempt from the penalties of unusual times? Why should his political considerations be more important than the future of the American republic?

A coward in congress is the worst coward of all. The man who stands for the volunteer system against the system of universal liability is a coward. He may try to decorate his emotions with rhetoric and to embroider his fear with phrases, but he is afraid.

He is afraid to vote that his constituents shall do what they ought to do. He is afraid to demand that they shall follow him, their representative, in the vote which he cast and which committed them as well as the rest of the nation.

He is afraid to risk his personal welfare for the national good. He is afraid to vote for equity and justice. He hides behind sophistry to conceal timidity. He mouths principles and reveals cowardice.

If congress were brave and intelligent it would stake every personal consideration which possibly could be involved and do so for the welfare of the nation. A yellow district, enraged by the enforced obligation of doing its duty, might punish a brave congressman, but that congressman's peace of mind would be secure and he could hold the yellow district in contempt and be held in honor by the nation.

FORESIGHT AND CONTROL.

Foresight is more needed by a democracy than by an autocracy.

We ought to realize this today if we have never done so before. Confronted by a situation which is unequaled in grave possibilities in our history, we are not only unprepared to meet conditions; we are unprepared to prepare. When the situation calls for clarity and unity of purpose and vigor of action, our counsels are chaotic and our will paralyzed.

On all ships the will of the captain is supreme, because on the sea control is necessary. Nations at times are in a similar condition. We do not mean that the executive should have no checks, but control in some responsible form is the overshadowing need. Lincoln overrode laws and usurped authority masterfully at the outbreak of the rebellion, but no nation can afford to depend upon the good fortune of having for every crisis a wise and selfless usurper.

An autocracy can summon its powers with more promptness and effectiveness than a democracy. A democracy which emphasizes individual liberty must fall into confusion unless it foresees events and provides the machinery to deal with them. It must provide for the exceptional.

Ardent democrats seldom sufficiently value the practical importance of control. They confuse control with tyranny. Yet it is necessary to all government and should be worked out as definitely and fully in a democracy as in any other form of organization. In a democracy the mere theorist and the eloquent talker are leaders in public life, since it is such men who affect opinion, and democracy is government by opinion. Yet these are men least fitted to action, and when the need for action in its highest concentrated form, war, is called for they fail us.

The greatest problem of democracy is control. The sentimental democrat seldom realises this, although it has been the failure of popular governments to solve it that has raised the strong man upon their ruins in days of peril and disaster.

WHERE RESPONSIBILITY LIES.

Charles Martin, Adolph J. Sabath, James McAndrews, Thomas Gallagher, and Henry T. Rainey of Illinois; George K. Denton, William Cox, Lincoln Dixon, and Henry A. Barnhart of Indiana, and Frank E. Doremus of Michigan are the men from whom the middle west demands honest military legislation.

At the organization of the house of representatives neither the Democrats nor the Republicans had a clear majority. The Democrats had the advantage of the administration patronage and obtained enough votes to elect the speaker and name the committees. The vote was so close, however, that had these representatives seen fit to insist that only patriots should be placed upon the committee on military affairs they would have prevailed. They did not insist. They took their perquisites and their patronage. They allowed to be returned to the committee on military affairs the men who are responsible for our going to war without an adequate army and without machinery for making such an army, for our not having a sufficient staff to do the executive work of the army, for our having an insignificant amount of artillery unfit for use in European warfare.

The administration has offered a bill to permit the nation to begin building up an army after war has been declared, and these men have prevented its consideration for a week and are bending every effort to defeat it.

According to the rules of the house, carefully devised to permit spoilsmen to control legislation, it may be possible for the antipatriotic majority of the committee on military affairs to present a bad bill for the consideration of congress and to manipulate so as to prevent the presentation of proper amendments and to leave members the choice of enacting a bad bill or preventing the passage of any legislation. This they did in the previous congress.

If bad legislation results the men from the middle west who aided creating the unpatriotic machinery of the house will be held responsible.

The middle west is the heart of the nation. It has a higher patriotism than other sections of the nation. It would not tolerate such congressmen as compose the majority of the committee on military affairs. Unfortunately the middle west cannot vote these men out of congress, but it can and will vote out of congress the men whom it holds responsible for putting these men on the committee on military affairs if the committee on military legislation continues to betray the nation.

WAR TAXATION.

It is with a great deal of relief that the thinking people of the country will hear that war finance measures are not to be concocted over night by politicians and academic theorists. Great bond issues will have to be authorized for emergency uses without delay, but these can be taken care of, at a time when our resources are greater than ever in our history, without serious dislocation of the healthy normal of our economic life.

But the problem of war taxation is a much more delicate one and should be given the most thorough study and consideration. A large part of the cost of our belated preparation and of the conduct of the war will and should be paid by taxation, but this involves heavy burdens which should be carefully and equitably adjusted.

Radical taxation in the way of increases of the income tax, the excess profits tax, and the tax on luxuries will be accepted with philosophy and patriotically approved. But if it is drastic without intelligence it may very well bring about a commercial disaster. Profits which are the result of war supply should be heavily taxed, but not without consideration of continued efficiency. If everything above 8 per cent were taken in every case, as, for example, from some of the railroads, efficiency would be seriously impaired and the public would be injured, not benefited. The test of former profits will have to be carefully applied, for in many cases revenue was far below normal in the years immediately preceding this of our entry into the war.

A good deal of demagogy inspires the outcry against war profits. These profits up to this time have not been at the expense of the American public, but, on the contrary, have benefited wage earners and producers. The farmer, moreover, has been one of the chief beneficiaries of war conditions and will continue to be. So the phrases which our superheated reformers and pacifists who want to punish somebody because there is a war ought to be shut out of congressional counsels when war taxation is formulated.

Heavy taxation must come, but it should be calmly and justly planned so that the healthy normal processes of the nation's financial and business life may be conserved so far as is possible under abnormal strain. This and this alone, so far as our financial measures are concerned, can bring us through the war without domestic misfortune and permit our energies to be directed fully to the pursuit of victory and peace.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1917: By the Brentwood Co.]

LORD BATH, who has just been created a knight of the Order of the Bath by King George, is one of those British peers who live nearly all the year round on their estates, in much old time statelliness and feudal splendor. His principal country seat, Long Leat, in Wiltshire, was described by Lord Macaulay as the most magnificent in all England, and the great historian's verdict still holds good today.

The marquis is a tall, good looking man, with clean cut features, dark hair, and blue eyes. At one time he was reported to be engaged to Princess May of Teck, but the latter became the consort of the then Prince of Wales, and is now Queen of England, while Lord Bath eventually married Miss Violet Mordaunt, a very pretty woman of rather diminutive type, who was brought up entirely by her aunt, Georgina Lady Dudley, owing to the fact that her mother, the late Lady Mordaunt, was out of her mind.

He lost his eldest son, the late Viscount Weymouth, a lieutenant in the Scots Guards, at the front in France in the early part of last year. Fortunately he has a younger son, now 12 years of age, who will succeed in due course to his honors and extensive estates.

Lord Bath comes from good old stock, and the derivation of his patronymic, which is Thynne, is not a little curious. At the end of the fifteenth century there lived John de Boteville, who had two brothers, Thomas and William. To distinguish him from them he was described in legal documents as De Boteville de le Inne, "Inne" in residence. De le Inne gradually became corrupted residence. Dee Inne gradually became corrupted into Thynne, which is pronounced as if written Thin.

It was Sir John Thynne, secretary to the Duke of Somerset and knighted on the field of Pinkie, who received from him as a gift the old Augustinian priory of Long Leat, which Henry VIII., on the dissolution of the monasteries, bestowed upon Sir John Horsey, from whom it passed to the duke. Long before Sir John had completed Long Leat, Queen Elizabeth, to whose court he was attached as controller of the royal household, insisted upon paying him a visit there.

When he died the house was still in an unfinished condition, and one of his successors, Sir James Thynne, called in the advice of Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of St. Paul's cathedral, who planned all sorts of additions and improvements. During the time of Sir James Long Leat was visited by Charles II., by his queen, and by his brother, afterwards James II.

On his death without issue it passed to his nephew, Thomas Thynne, popularly known as "Tom of Ten Thousand," in allusion to his income of ten thousand pounds a year. It was this "Tom of Ten Thousand" who was murdered in Pall Mall, and whose striking memorial in Westminster Abbey is a familiar object to every tourist from the new world visiting that ancient fane.

Tom Thynne's murder has always remained more or less of a mystery. It seems that the 14 year old widow of young Lord Ogle was forced by her grandmother into marriage with Tom Thynne. The little woman seems to have been averse to the union, and after the wedding ceremony had taken place declined to accompany her husband to Long Leat, which he had prepared and beautified for her reception. In fact, she proceeded at once abroad with her aunt, Lady Temple. Immediately afterwards her husband, Tom Thynne, was killed in Pall Mall while driving along in his carriage.

Some historians of the day insist that the murderers mistook their victim for the Duke of Monmouth, natural son of King Charles II. Others again that the crime was committed at the instigation of Count Koenigsmarck, who had been an aspirant for the hand of Tom Thynne's bride. Within a few months after this murder the victim's widow, not being over 15 years of age, consented to accept the hand of the Duke of Somerset, and some of the standard "Peerages" do not even record her connection with the Thynne family.

A distant cousin succeeded Tom Thynne at Long Leat, and it was his son who was the first Marquis of Bath, George III. and Queen Charlotte being among the visitors at Long Leat during his day.

Mr. Botfield accordingly dropped the matter, as far as the College of Heralds was concerned, and wrote to the late Lord Bath asking him whether he would give him any assistance in his researches. The marquis (whom Thackeray portrayed as Lord Farintosh in his novel, "The Newcomes"), although a Tory, was renowned for his savage hatred and profound contempt for Lord Beaconsfield. He made due inquiries about the ironmaster. Finding that he was a respectable and worthy old fellow he suggested that he should pay him a visit at Long Leat, and that while there he could go through all the family papers and history. The ironmaster accepted the invitation, was most courteously and hospitably welcomed and entertained by the marquis, persuaded himself, as the result of his researches, that he was a scion of the ancient house of Boteville, and promptly assumed Lord Bath's armorial bearings, without, of course, the coronet, and also without any objection on the part of the marquis.

The result of the latter's kindly complaisance was that when the old ironmaster died, without wife or children, he left nearly the whole of his immense fortune to the Marquis of Bath and his heirs, whom he described as "his family," the remaining balance of his possessions being bequeathed to his sister's son on condition that he took the name and the arms of the testator.

There was no difficulty about the nephew taking the name of Botfield. But when it came to applying for permission to the College of Heralds for the assumpion of Mr. Botfield's arms it was found that the testator never had any legal right to the coat-of-arms which he had used—namely: that of the Marquis of Bath—and that it was impossible to establish any affiliation between him and the ancient house of De Boteville.

NATIONAL NEGRO HEALTH WEEK.

NEXT Sunday is Negro health Sunday and with it Negro health week begins. The National Negro Business league and the Tuskegee Negro conference for 1917 are jointly responsible for Negro health week. The 1917 Negro conference specialized in discussion of Negro health and got squarely behind the proposal for Negro health week previously made by the business league.

The colored people all over the nation are asked to unite in observing national health week in the belief that in carrying out the suggestions outlined in a booklet issued by the committee which is managing the week they will be doing the best possible service to themselves and to the race.

Next Sunday is set aside as a day of prayer for better health conditions. Each minister is asked to preach a special health sermon to his congregation. Ministers are also to arrange for other health meetings and health talks in their churches during the week. Cleanup committes are to be appointed, and these are to plan coöperative cleanup movements for streets, alleys, and public places generally and also to stimulate each individual to clean up his own premises.

The committee on health week has put out an excellent pamphlet of eighteen pages. This should be used as a text book in every Negro school in the country during the week.

From this book we learn that there are 450,000 Negroes in the south seriously ill all the time. Each Negro loses from work eighteen days a year on the average on account of illness. The annual cost of the illness of Negroes is $75,000,000. One-half of this sickness is preventable. Forty-five per cent of the deaths among Negroes is preventable.

"This means that 45 Negroes out of every 100 dying each year ought to live. Help us to save the 45," the book says.

The diseases most fatal to Negroes are: Diseases of infancy, from which 27 per cent of all Negroes die; pneumonia, responsible for 11 per cent of their deaths; diseases of the heart, 8 per cent; Bright's disease, 7 per cent; diarrhoea, 6 per cent.

The diseases which annually sweep away such large numbers of our people exact their greatest toll of babies and children and of our young men and women, who, being in the prime of life, constitute economically and intellectually the most valuable asset for the future progress of our race. Our only remedy for this fearful drain on the pick and flower of our young womanhood and manhood is a widespread inculcation of the habit of clean surroundings and clean living.

We are told that 600,000 Negroes now living are certain to die of consumption unless something is done to prevent it—consumption spread by bad houses, insanitary methods of living, carelessness and excesses. But of all things that help to overcome consumption nothing is so important as abundant fresh air.

Do you sleep in a room where you keep the windows tightly closed in cold weather? Do you try to keep out fresh air because it may chill you? Do you work in a room or a shop where the air cannot enter? If so, you are hasarding your life and are inviting death.

Open your windows and keep them open at all times, especially during the hours of sleep. If you have not covers enough to keep you warm in cold weather save money and buy ample covers permitting you to sleep with your windows open. It will do more for your good health than all the medicine you can buy. You will find, too, that your bed is made much warmer in cold weather if you will place layers of old paper between the blankets.

The writer of this pamphlet knew the folly of writing to his people of the need of fresh air without having something to say of how to keep warm and comfortable with plenty of fresh air.

The pamphlet next says malaria is the costliest disease which afflicts the south and that it is more common among Negroes than among whites. "In order to keep down malaria, screen your windows and doors and drain the swamps and other low places in your vicinity," it urges.

I wish the pamphlet had put more stress upon the necessity of taking quinine in ample quantities and for a sufficient length of time when one has malaria to effect a complete cure.

These are the only two diseases touched upon by the bulletin, but other diseases are struck out through the advice of how to live. It is advised that each community appoint a clean-up committee. This committee is to plan for cleaning up of individual homes by individuals and some coöperative work as well. The program is as follows:

[1] Move out and burn up all unnecessary rubbish, unused old clothing, and waste. Take all the furnishings out of the house and sun them for a day.

[2] Brush down the walls and ceilings. Scrub the floors and unpainted woodwork with strong lye and hot water.

[3] Paint or whitewash. Sun well.

[4] Clean up the yards. Whitewash the fences. Add one quart of salt to five gallons of whitewash.

[5] Repair the stable, barn, and henhouse. Whitewash. Clean out all filth.

[6] Look after the ceilings and wells and make sanitary the toilets at the school houses and churches.

"There are two other important things which, if done well, will give you good insurance against disease," the pamphlet says. "The first of these is to protect the well or spring from which comes your water supply. Typhoid fever is often spread because the water supply is contaminated. Sickness and general ill health follow the drinking of dirty and impure water.

"In order to protect your well from contamination see to it that it is not located close to an outhouse, a pigpen, or a stable. You should completely cover the well with a watertight floor and raise the top of the well above the ground, so that no surface water can wash into the well with the rain."

The possibility of infecting the water through a dirty rope is stated. If the drinking water comes from a spring the necessity of fencing it off and even of covering it and piping it is emphasized.

How many rooms have you in your house? How many people sleep in the bedrooms? Upon these questions depend much of your safety from disease. Overcrowding makes bad air, bad morals, discomfort, disease. If you live in a one room house build another room. No family can procure that privacy essential to modesty, that fresh air necessary to health, and that self-respect necessary to progress so long as that family is in crowded quarters. Every Negro man who lives in a one room house is called upon to build another room this year.

Then the people are advised to equip their homes with sanitary toilets. Much disease is caused by insanitary toilets. Move the old toilet to a new place away from the vicinity of the well or spring. If the back boards are soiled, knock them off and put clean boards in. Then get a lard firkin, or bucket, or a water tight half barrel and put it under the seat, so that the top fits in close to the seat board all around. When this is done, hinge a seat cover so that it cannot stay open, but will fall and automatically close.

Now, to keep this sanitary privy sanitary. Put a box of dry top soil in the privy. Supply it with a scoop or shovel. See that this toilet is used by every member of the family. See that some of the dry earth is thrown into the bucket after each use of the toilet. When the tub is nearly full put into a wheelbarrow, take it to the woods, and bury the contents well below the surface of the ground. Do not bury the tub contents anywhere near a well or spring.

The pamphlet concludes by stating that advice as to matters of public health can be had by writing to Tuskegee or to state and local boards of health.

Diphtheria antitoxin, typhoid vaccine, and other serums, antitoxins, and vaccines can be had from state and local boards of health. Information about consumption can be had by writing Tuskegee or the different state tuberculosis societies. Literature as to campaigns for better health can be had by writing Mr. Allen W. Clark, Kinloch building, St. Louis, Mo.

About one-tenth of the people of the United States are Negroes. The total Negro population of the country is approximately 10,000,000. There are communities in which all the people, or practically all, are Negroes. In the 1914 report of the census office the mortality rates of cities with a large Negro population are given in a table separate from the general city table, since such cities always have a high death rate.

In the following cities in 1910 more than 25 per cent of the population were Negroes: Birmingham, Mobile, Montgomery, Washington, Jacksonville, Key West, Pensacola, Atlanta, Augusta, Savannah, Frankfort, Henderson, Lexington, Paducah, New Orleans, Asheville, Charlotte, Durham, Greensboro, Raleigh, Wilmington, Winston-Salem, Charleston, Chattanooga, Jackson, Knoxville, Memphis, Nashville, Alexandria, Danville, Lynchburg, Newport News, Norfolk, Petersburg, and Portsmouth. In Montgomery, Jacksonville, Savannah, and Charleston more than half the population are Negroes.

All these cities with a large Negro population claim their high death rates are not the result of low sanitary standards. The unduly heavy death rates among Negroes are due in the main to consumption, infant mortality, typhoid fever, and pneumonia. Each of these groups is classed among the preventable diseases.

The death rate of Negroes in northern cities is high. For instance, the death rate of New York City is around 14. Dr. Guilfoy gives the death rate among Negroes as about 27. The percentage of Negroes to whites, however, is so small that it does not seriously raise the death rate of New York City or any other large city in the north.

In 1916 Dr. Trask of the public health service made a careful analytical study of Negro death rates. His conclusions were:

1. The Negro death rates of most communities of the United States are not discouragingly high.

2. They are undoubtedly lower than they have been in the past.

3. They are as low as many white population groups possessed twenty or thirty years ago, and are, in fact, as low as some white populations possess at the present time.

4. With the economic and industrial progress of the colored population its death rate will gradually approach nearer to that of the white population. The committee in charge of health week will agree with the conclusions of Dr. Trask. They say:

"Ten years ago the Negro death rate was about 29. Now it is about 22. The health improvement that has been accomplished for us in a single decade indicates that our death rate can be greatly reduced and should encourage us to do everything possible to bring our death rates down till it more nearly equals the death rate for white people."

APPENDICITIS SYMPTOMS.

Interested Reader writes: "What are the early symptoms of appendicitis? What treatment would you advise except an operation?"

REPLY.

1. Griping pain in the right lower part of the abdomen, tenderness in this region. This followed by fever and by pain in the region indicated. These are the symptoms which suggest the need of an examination. Examination shows fever, pain, and tenderness over McBurney's point and leucocytosis.

2. Go to bed at once. Stop eating. Send for a physician.

KEEPING TOOTHBRUSH CLEAN.

J. C. G. writes: "[1] Kindly tell us the best and most sanitary method of keeping the tooth brushes in the bathroom. Should they be shut up, damp, in the medicine cabinet, or left out, in a holder, exposed to the dust, etc.? [2] Is the smoking of a pipe and some cigars (no cigarets) every day injurious to the digestive apparatus of a man of 'bilious temperament,' subject to severe sick headache once or twice a month?"

REPLY.

1. Leave them in the open. Light and air are good sterilizers. Sun them occasionally.

2. Yes. I do not know that the migraine habit affects the case much.

LOT WILL BE CLEANED.

Chicago, April 5.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I am living in a six flat building next to an alley. The other side of the alley is a vacant lot, and my dining room and bedrooms overlook the lot. At present it is an eyesore and a disgrace to the city. It is used as a dumping ground for several flat buildings in the vicinity and is covered with ashes, tin cans, old papers, rotten vegetables—in fact, junk of every description. It is also used by fruit peddlers who come up the alley to deposit their unsaleable goods.

If this is not remedied before hot weather it will be a breeding place for flies and disease. J. C.

The matter was investigated by an inspector from this department and a notice was served on the owner to remove accumulations of cinders and empty tin cans from the rear end of vacant lot.

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

OPENING UNION AVENUE.

Chicago, April 6.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I would like to know what and who is the cause of Union avenue being closed to traffic between Eightieth and Eighty-first streets.

EDW. SHAFFER,
660 West Eighty-first place.

The location referred to is private property. The city council, however, passed an ordinance on March 1, 1917, providing for the opening of South Union avenue, from 115.8 feet south of Eightieth street to 246.4 feet south thereof. As soon as the court enters the order of possession in the condemnation proceeding instituted for this purpose all obstructions in the way of said improvement will be removed.

EXPRESS COMPANIES AND THE ADAMSON ACT.

Chicago, April 8.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In your opinion does the Adamson eight hour law affect those employed by express companies, especially men employed in the handling of express matter on passenger trains? There are men employed on straight railway expressmen and others which are joint baggage and express, but are paid by the express company.

P. B.

Express company employes who are not "actually engaged in any capacity in the operation of trains" would not come under the act. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SEE AN ATTORNEY.

Chicago, April 9.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I loaned money on a note June 15, 1916, six months after date. Is this note barred?

J. Smith.

On the facts that you state, the note will be barred by the statute of limitations on Dec. 15, 1917. If the maker refuses to pay, we advise you to place the matter immediately in the hands of an attorney.

A DEBT OF HONOR.

Omaha, Neb., April 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—When Germans leave their native land and go out into the world to make a new home for themselves they do not look for another Germany, but seek a country where they may live in greater freedom and comfort.

When I was a young man of 18 I was attracted to America. I have not been disappointed with my choice. I have found what I desired and sought.

My experience will fit the case of 99 per cent of the Germans in this country. We bade farewell to the home government because we could not sanction its practices we left the land of our birth to seek more favorable living conditions. We naturalized as citizens of the United States because we were better pleased with conditions here than in Germany.

Germans who have become citizens of the United States are honest men who consider that they owe, in war as well as in peace, a debt of honor to the nation that welcomed them with open arms, offering them opportunities and privileges which their own land did not afford. However strong the ties of blood, not 1 per cent of the German born citizens of America would dream of repudiating that debt of honor when the necessities of their adopted land call for payment.

COL. W. F. STODDER.

THE RIFT WITHIN THE LUTE.

Chicago, April 11.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—News from Washington seems to indicate the "little army" men still exert a tremendous influence for evil. They say the volunteer system must be tried out for a period of at least thirty days before universal training or conscription will be considered. Thirty days now may spell defeat for the allies. We know positively that a delay of that length in the planting of crops is going to mean starvation for us next winter. What thirty days may mean to army organization and training may seem dimly fraught with peril, but the fact remains that the peril is there whether it is plainly discernible or not.

It is hardly probable that a knowledge of the feeling existent in the corn belt of Illinois toward voluntary enlistment would serve to change the selfish and narrow minded view of congressmen who are putting politics and personal good before the good of the nation. Men are saying they will not enlist and fight unless they are driven to it, and it is fair to assume that such an attitude exists throughout the country.

The United States has chosen. This is not a time for congressmen to take thought of future political jobs or what their prestige is to be in their district a few years hence. Their only concern now should be the United States of America, its army and its navy.

Men are needed; they must be had. The injustice of the volunteer system has been demonstrated and the people themselves say it will not work. Conscription is the lesser of the two evils and should be chosen in preference. But the fair way is through universal training. The president should lose no time in adopting an attitude of unmistakable firmness on this issue. Congress should be given facts in plain terms and the measure passed at once. F. O. P.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE.

Chicago, April 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—There are a large number of business men between the ages of 18 and 45 in the city, single and married, who would welcome an opportunity to receive military training. In case of emergency it is but a matter of time before they would be called upon for duty, and a little in the rudimentary principles of a military life would not be amiss.

I would suggest an enlistment for six months. Drills should be held [illegible] for a specified number of hours, and one day a week should be set aside for each member to report for eight hours' duty as guard at public buildings, railroad stations, etc. At the expiration of the enlistment or on showing proficiency in drill and upon passing an examination members might be discharged with a certificate showing the amount of training received and their grade.

E. J. Dorsey.

PROHIBITION AND THE WAR.

Chicago, April 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—THE TRIBUNE editorial, "Why Man Power and Taxes" is an admirable statement of economic principles. Such principles do not change. What is true in war is true in peace.

For years the manufacturers of and dealers in intoxicating liquors urged the claims of their business on the ground that they furnish a market for grain and give employment to labor. When we give sober thought to economic truths we realize at once that this condemns the business. The liquor traffic is a parasitic industry. It does not support life, but lives at the expense of other life. At best, it depletes property and human energy in useful end and injects into the [illegible] politic an element most distracting and demoralising.

If the two billions and more annually spent in the United States for intoxicants were kept in the channels of legitimate trade the effect on public welfare would be immeasurable. No other [illegible] can be taken by the American people which will mean so much toward [illegible] preparedness for war as to prohibit the liquor traffic. M. C. Hanna.

WASTING OUR ENERGY.

Chicago, April 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have read that there is a movement on foot to change the names of all our streets having German names [illegible] the exception of the one bearing the name of the two illustrious poets, Goethe and Schiller. I am sure that all clear thinking, fair minded citizens will agree that this is carrying "patriotism" a little too far. We know that all the patriotic clubs and societies of Chicago were among the first to inform President Wilson that they stood behind him in the war. Now let the one [illegible] get on with the last part of the program which he sent to an [illegible] Mr. McConnell wrote Conroy as soon as [illegible] to spend it myself in one of the largest German publishing houses in the country, sends all over [illegible] the German race but with the [illegible] government of Germany, and it is extremely improbable that the [illegible] men constituting the German government will ever know of this [illegible] if it is permitted to go through, [illegible] would be certain to deeply wound the feelings of hundreds of thousands of loyal German citizens [illegible] whose honor these [illegible] named. Mrs. Ernesta Drinker Bullitt
FROM A PAINTING BY CECILIA BEAUX

THERE is saying a lot in England these days about cheerful books, not the "glad" book, but the ordinary bit of mingled foolery and wisdom which cheers but not inebriates. "Bindle" (Stokes) by Herbert Jenkins, for instance, is said to have lured smiles from English lips leaded at the corners by the great conflict, and some of the great critics are recommending that England read more of comedy to make it think less of tragedy. Now we're in England's shoes and almost the entire reading public has turned to books about the war.

The public library, importuned usually for fiction, for manuals of business, for books on early gardening, for bird books and wild flower volumes, now finds itself asked for military books to the exclusion of everything else. The government manuals had to be withdrawn from circulation and kept for reference until more copies could be ordered. Two hundred copies of "The Plattsburg Manual" (Century), by Lieut. O. O. Ellis and Lieut. E. B. Gary, U. S. A., have been ordered, and the twenty-five which were in the library were out before the order had been definitely declared. The books on the navy are quite as popular. Every young man or boy who goes into the library asks for a "war" book. Perhaps after we have been at war for two years and a half we shall welcome books which will make us stop thinking of things, but just now somehow the only books of any immediate importance seem to be the ones which either directly or indirectly can help us to find our personal bit to do, or can help us to understand what it's all about.

"Mobilizing America." (Macmillan), by Arthur Bullard, is a little volume which states with absolute clarity what America is facing in mobilizaton. The day before war was declared we may have had different ideas about what we wanted. Now we are at war and there is only one idea which any of us can have and that is that we must mobilize our individual minds as well as our national resources.

Mr. Ballard doesn't say exactly that, but he does declare that a sympathetic public opinion is the foundation of any efficient plan of mobilization. He points out that England and France have suffered severely by adverse public opinion, and that the censorship and the attitude of labor toward the increased amount of work to be done has been vitally changed by two years of warfare. He tells in the simplest manner possible just what our national program should be to make the most of the crisis and to avoid the mistakes which our allies have made. It isn't exhaustive. It isn't too serious. It was written for those of us who have been blinded by our imagined insularity, who have lost interest in the political economy of the war, who think that mobilization is merely a matter of getting over night unconquerable an army of a million men armed with pitchforks and patriotism. Mr. Ballard has lived in France and England during most of the war and has been studying the mobilization problem thoroughly.

"Obstacles to Peace" (Houghton-Mifflin) is C. S. McClure's record of the interviews he had with the men in whose hands the fate of Europe has rested, interviews with Von Bethmann-Hollweg, Von Bissing, the German governor in Belgium; Talaat Bey, the all powerful Turkish minister; with Count Tisza, the Austro-Hungarian prime minister; with past and present ministers of foreign affairs, and with Lord Northcliffe. Every one discussed freely the issues of the war and peace and they secured for him some unpublished documents of great importance.

"Life at the United States Naval Academy—the Making of the American Naval Officer" [Putnams], by Ralph Earle, rear admiral U. S. N., has an introduction by Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, who says "the one thing that is needed more than any other is a greater and more intelligent interest on the part of the public in the life of the naval academy, for the safety of our coasts and, indeed, of our whole country depends not only on the welding together of masses of steel in the form of ships but in the training of officers for these ships. A greater Annapolis is as essential as a greater fleet." Annapolis has been a favorite second act scene in musical comedy for many years, and so we know what it's like, of course. But the time for musical comedy is past now.

With the death of Sergeant Pilot Alan R. McConnell, author of "Flying for France" [Doubleday-Page], there remains only one of the six original members of the American—now the Lafayette—escadrille in France. Norman Prince, Victor Chapman, and Kiffen Rockwell have all been killed in aerial battles. Lieut. William Thaw is the only one of the six who is still flying for France. Elliott Cowden is in the United States and Bert Hall in Russia. James McConnell was born in Chicago and he has four relatives here. They say that they go to the front expecting that they will not be the ones to get killed, and yet with the last package of manuscript which he sent to an American magazine, Mr. McConnell wrote: "Please send the money as soon as you can. I would like to spend it myself." There is little of his own personal achievements in "Flying for France," but it is enough to know that he was awarded the coveted Croix de Guerre.

"All's Well" [Doran] is John Oxenham's contribution to helping to see it through. It contains the hymn "For the Men at the Front," of which almost 6,000,000 copies have been sold for the benefit of the various funds for the wounded. The volume of verse is dedicated to Mr. Oxenham's son Hugo, Second Lieut. Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders [Ian Hay's regiment, by the way], and to "all his comrades in arms on land and on sea, and to all sorely tried hearts at home and elsewhere. . . . in perfect assurance that since God is, right must win." John Oxenham wrote "Bees in Amber," you remember. He is one of the most popular of the English versifiers.

With all the talk there has been lately about our censorship, Rudyard Kipling's "Sea Warfare" [Doubleday-Page] is an especially timely argument for publicity. This verse and prose about the admiralty was written with a decided purpose. The British admiralty had as passionate devotion to secrecy as any organization ever had. They found that silence about the British navy was making the British almost forget they had a navy. So Kipling and Alfred Noyes and others were called in to write up the fleet. At first refusing any publicity whatever, they are now actually hiring press agents. Kipling's articles appeared in the press and are now bound in book form. Rudyard Kipling and Mrs. Kipling are staying in Bath just now.

John Buchan, author of "Greenmantle" (Doran), has been appointed chief of the British foreign office publicity department. About his new novel he says: "During the last year in the intervals of my official work I have amused myself with constructing this tale. It has been assembled in every kind of off place and moment, in England and abroad, during the long journeys, in half hours between greater tasks, and it bears, I fear, the mark of its gypsy begetting." Before his appointment to the foreign office Mr. Buchan had been in the British intelligence department in England and on the continent since the beginning of the war.

Joseph Pennell's "Pictures of War Work in England" (Lippincott) were made under the supervision and with the help of the British government. The volume contains an introduction by H. G. Wells. They are actually what they say they are, drawings, remarkable ones, of munitions factories, mines, everything that war is making its own in England. The originals are being exhibited in the principal cities of England, France, and Russia, and they will come to the United States under the sponsorship of the entente. Mr. Pennell is an American citizen and the only artist who has been allowed by the British government to make a thorough pictorial record of war work.

Natalie Sumner Lincoln is working on her eighth book, "The Nameless Man," whenever she has a spare moment from the immediate duties of preparedness. She is adjutant of the camp of the second encampment of the First National Service school of the woman's section of the Navy league, which is held in Washington from April 16 to May 26. She is also treasurer of the women's section of the Navy league and chairman of the lecture committee.

Lord Dunsany, whose plays have made such a reputation for him in this country and who is "explained" for the first time in "Dunsany, the Dramatist" (Little-Brown) has rejoined his regiment after recovering from the wound he received during the Irish rebellion. He is 6 feet 2—a fine target for the Germans, he calls himself. You pronounce his name with a long "a" and the accent is on the—any. R. K. Wanted to know.

By some inexplicable means—perhaps merely by the innocence of her American smile—Ernesta Drinker Bullitt succeeded in getting by the censor with the diary which she had written in Germany untouched. To be sure it's mostly a chatty record of teas, dinners, visits to schools, and uncontraband facts, but there are enough little observations, sentences of description of the lack of food, of the German attitude toward a victory or a defeat to make one wonder how Mrs. Bullitt got her diary back in its entirety. Papers of her husband's were cut to ribbons and she had many of the same facts in her diary, "fortunately," she says. She and Mr. Bullitt visited Germany, Belgium, Austria, and Hungary last summer. Mr. Bullitt was a special correspondent for a Philadelphia paper. Because it is the only diary of an American to come through the censor's hands untouched it has a special interest now.

One New York publishing firm gives these twelve reasons why books have advanced in price since the war began. Startling, aren't they?

1. Paper has increased in cost.100%
2. Ink has increased in cost.... 50%
3. Press rollers have increased.200%
4. Binder's cloth has increased. 25%
5. Binder's board, increased...100%
6. Gold leaf has increased..... 25%
7. Leather has increased.....100%
8. Glue has increased..... 50%
9. Labor has increased..... 10%
10. Thread has increased..... 50%
11. Paper boxes have increased. 50%
12. Crash and supplies increased 50%

Johannes Joergensen, the Danish poet, whose life of St. Francis of Assisi has won much attention, is the author of "False Witness" (Doran), published abroad under the title of "Klokke, Roland," which is said to be the first authoritative expression of the Danish angle on the great war. It has been very popular in the Scandinavian countries and has been confiscated by the authorities in Germany.

Here's an interesting paragraph from "The Pan-German Plot Unmasked" (Scribner's), by André Chéradame. They seem to have miscalculated just a trifle, don't they?

"In 1898, before Manila, the German Rear Admiral von Goetzen, a friend of the kaiser, said to the American Admiral Dewey: 'In about fifteen years my country will begin a great war. . . . Some months after we have done our business in Europe we shall take New York and probably Washington, and we shall keep them for a time. We do not intend to take any territory from you, but only to put your country in its proper place with reference to Germany. We shall extract one or two billions of dollars from New York and other towns.'"

"What will our new soldiers read?" an eastern newspaper asked and Forrest B. Spaulding of the New York public library answered by telling what the national guard did read when it went to Mexico: "It was my work to select 4,000 books and ship them to the Mexican border for the use of the guardsmen," he said. "I put in a number of volumes of poetry, recent verse nearly all of it. I was guyed for doing it before the shipment was made. But nobody is laughing now. The first volumes to be worn out were the works of poetry, notably Kipling verses and those of some of our latter day American poets. They were worn literally to shreds."

Proportions.

WHEN the red sun at evening travels along and down the western rim, revealed in the thickened and glorified atmosphere as a visible sphere upon which folk may look and not be blinded, it creates magnificence in distance, visual if not appreciable. There are between the red sun on the rim and the folk who look at its disk out of the west window of content, ninety-three million miles of space, insignificant in the stellar spaces, appalling to the human egotism.

This is the greatest distance which can be observed intimately by men from clearly defined object to clearly defined object—from the western rim of the world to the red globe which as it sinks loses radiance and gains color from and gives color to the worldly envelope. A measuring stick for infinity it is thus for a few reflective, glorified moments, the largest measure which the casual perceptions can contain.

The fox sparrow has been in the dried weeds, the yellow hammer in the white oaks, the hermit thrush in the brown leaves, the junco on the seeded lawn, the chickadee in the wych hazel, the kinglet in the viburnum, woodpeckers on the maples, robins in the open places. Young onions are springing. Winter parsnips come to the table. A fire of logs burns.

Intimate life has been fresh and sweet at hand. The red sun travels the western rim and is about to leave the intimate world to warm odors and swarming insects.

And Arcturus shows its brilliance in the eastern sky, a hundred light years away.

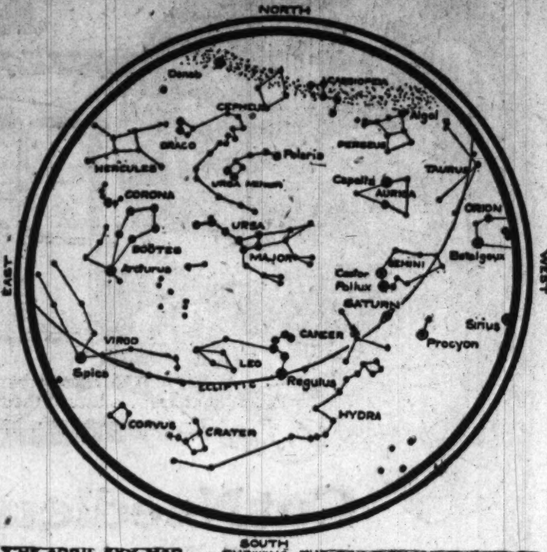
ASTRONOMY
by CLIFFORD RAYMOND



THE APRIL SKY MAP.... SHOWING THE POSITION OF THE STARS AT 8 O'CLOCK TONIGHT.... DRAWN BY S.F. MAXWELL.

ARCTURUS.

APRIL is the month of Arcturus. It connotes hepaticas and the hermit thrush, swelling buds and young leaves. In early March the great spring sun comes up about 8 o'clock and in April is up at sun down, rising as the twilight fades, and with evidences of spring so prominent in the air and under foot, the brilliant in the east is sentimentally the spring star.

No star is easier to find and identify. It swings off the handle of the Big Dipper. If the eye follows an imaginary curve continuing the curve of the dipper handle it comes to Arcturus. It is about 30 degrees from the end of the handle. The distance between the stars forming the outer edge of the bowl of the dipper is 5 degrees. This, as probably need be said repeatedly, is the measuring stick of the sky, the distance between the two stars. With it in mind, 30 degrees is a distance easily estimated.

With only the most general directions Arcturus is unescapable. It is too brilliant and too isolated in its brilliance. Nothing which rivals it is close to it.

Arcturus is a yellow sun, probably farther along in development than our sun, but of the same general class and so far exceeding our sun in size and heat that if the sun were so distant from the earth as Arcturus it would be invisible to the unaided eye, to be found only with instruments.

It is estimated that in light giving power Arcturus exceeds the sun a thousand times. We see it as it was at least a hundred years ago. What is seen is the visible signs of light which started at the incredible speed of light shortly after the Napoleonic wars.

No catastrophe has happened to the star, but if one had happened nearly a hundred years ago there would be no evidence of it visible on earth. Light can travel around the circumference of the world more than seven times in a second. It travels at the rate of over 186,000 miles a second, about six trillions of miles a year, and at least a hundred years is required for the light of Arcturus to reach the earth.

A WONDERFUL ANÆSTHETIC.

Oft in the stilly night,
When slumber soft evades me,
And counting sheep or other soporific
Inducing practice jades me,
When soporific strategems
Are arid of repose,
And I just lie with staring eye
And gaze along my nose.

I say, in the stilly night,
When ev'ry nerve is raging
And anodyne I crave for mine,
Or sedative assuaging;
When lenitives I long to lure,
With not a len' for taking
To soothe the blight of niveous night-
Canescent night of waking.

Ah, then I have an antidote,
A balm to cure my woe,
Nepenthe sweet with joys replete,
For, rising up, I go
To see vitascopic vampires,
As they slither, squirm, and creep,
And there I view a reel or two,
And, presto! I'm asleep!

The Studebaker SIX
—As to Quality

For sixty-five years the name Studebaker has stood for honorable dealing with the public.

Studebaker has put into its product the most careful and experienced workmanship and the best materials that money can buy.

These combined with time honored honesty are the things that make quality.

In the Studebaker Six, quality is present in the material, deep in the vital parts where it is revealed by years of durability and by silent, smooth running efficiency.

There is further evidence of Studebaker quality which you can plainly see.

Compare its beautiful paint and varnish work with that of any car on the market.

Compare the quality of its genuine leather upholstery with that of cars costing $2000 or over.

Note the high grade, leather bound crimson carpet in the tonneau, the genuine, pin tumbler Yale ignition lock.

Note the heavy gauge crown fenders, the beautiful head lamp mountings.

These are outward evidences of quality, but the real quality in Studebaker cars is that which meets emergencies, the life giving "factor of safety" which is splendid insurance for you to buy.

Come in and let us show you point by point the evidences of Studebaker quality.

Let us convince you that to equal the Studebaker in quality you have to pay many hundreds of dollars more.

It is well worth your while to investigate.

ART by Louise James Bargelt

Bakst Pictures to Be Shown at the Arts Club

BAKST in all his glory of color and weirdness of design appears at the Arts club tomorrow evening. This is one of the most important exhibitions the Arts club has held since its beginning, and there are said to be paintings in this display never shown before. Also there is his masterpiece in oil, "Terror Antiquus," which won the gold medal at the international exhibition in Brussels in 1911 and has not been shown outside of New York on this continent.

Tomorrow evening Martin Birnbaum will lecture at the club on Bakst and his work. This country certainly owes much to Mr. Birnbaum for his efforts to bring Bakst's paintings to America. For two years he argued with and coaxed and finally prevailed on Bakst and various European owners of his pictures to allow them to leave Europe.

Leon Bakst, who is one of the foremost of colorists, is a most enthusiastic disciple of the joy of living. His pictures are chants to radiant, pulsing pleasure in all thing earthly. He believes that it is only through happiness that there is any real art, and in the life of all ages he seeks for self-expression. Besides the present age he plucks material from the days of antiquity, Greek or Roman, Chinese, Japanese, or Egyptian; quite impartially he takes whatever will serve for the purpose he desires.

If you are a genuine modern in art you will adore Bakst. Even perchance you should not be you can't help being interested and amazed at what he presents. The French rave over him and the Russians and even the English enthuse considerably. It is only lately that American cities have been able to view him closely through exhibitions and through the Russian ballet.

Bakst is a Russian Jew, born in 1868 in Petrograd. When he was near 30 he went to Paris and there revolted in good vigorous fashion against most things academic and most things accepted. Later when he returned to Russia he took to painting portraits of royalty and high officials. It was a "Pieta" that virtually "ousted" him from the obscurity in which he was basking into the limelight of the world's aghast attention.

He painted the Christ and the Mary as peasants, realistically, and with Mary suffering violent grief. But instantly a general displeasure on the part of juries and critics was exhibited. On all sides he was scored and finally in a righteous indignation he withdrew the picture and severed all connections with royal and official patronage. He betook himself to Paris, free to follow his own tastes and desires.

It was not long before he came in contact with the young school of Russian dancing which was headed by Nijinsky. Promptly he commenced designing settings and costumes for the ballet, "Cleopatra." With the dark drab shades in vogue Bakst in true revolutionary fashion swung far to the other extreme and ran a vast gamut of singing, dancing, shouting colors. Colors must arouse emotions, he declared seditiously. Then came forth his leopards' spots, his serpents' scales, his mad vermillions, and his triumphant, blatant emeralds. They shrieked at one another and yet somehow they shrieked in a miraculous harmony that won Paris to him on the instant. In order to accentuate the warmth of the passions emphasized in the ballet he used every color but white. And these colors, accentuated by the sensuous dancers and the astounding music, made of the opera something approaching a real marvel of creation.

As a colorist Bakst ranks higher than as a designer. He uses gold and silver profusely, though many of his most vivid effects he gets through his yellow, and there is a true and barbaric love in his soul for the bold, primary colors.

Despite all his extravagances Bakst is a student and a scholar with a substantial fund of substantial learning behind him. No image evoked of ancient Greek personages or still more aged Egyptian or Persian characters but is scrupulously correct. But with his knowledge he mingles a vast imagination and feeling. These have come to him as a heritage of his race and he possesses them in abundance.

At the Art Institute exhibitions are blithely holding their own and attracting the crowds in spite of the lure of the spring outside. The architectural exhibit is still in full swing and gaining strength with its daily revelations of what man is doing in this twentieth century to make earth beautiful as well as useful. The Whistler etchings remain and the Haney pictures in the corridor. Then, too, the Caxton books are still on exhibit and the room of oil paintings by the French master Monticelli.

The Art Students' league will hold its twenty-fourth annual exhibtion in the Art institute, May 4 to June 11. There are to be a goodly number of prizes, one of which will be a prize of $100 by William O. Goodman. This will be divided into prizes of $50, $25, $15, and $10. These will be awarded to the best picture or group of pictures by one exhibitor. Then there will be a T. J. Keane prize for a pencil drawing, an Art Students' league prize for a pen and ink drawing, a Julia S. Griffith prize for a chalk drawing, an honorable mention for an oil painting, and the Art institute Alumnæ association prize.

A bit of news interesting to etching and engraving lovers is the national organization these artists have formed and which is likely in its scope to include all workers in pictures in black and white. The society is to hold exhibitions of contemporary artists in engravings, etchings, and lithographs in all the large cities of the country, and later these exhibitions will be supplemented by lectures and articles. In this endeavor the work of the artistic print in many of its phases will be developed and brought more extensively before the public.

The society is to be called the Painters-Gravseurs of America, and such men of note as Childe Hassam, George Bellows, Ernest D. Roth, and Mahonri Young are connected with its founding. Behind it the etching has many men of genius; men like Hokusai, Holbein, Rembrandt, Durer, and Daumier. The Chicago Society of Etchers will probably be interested in forwarding the growth and plans of this new organization since the Chicago society has always identified itself with all worth while enterprises.

The Car That is Appreciated for Itself

Some moderate priced cars owe their success almost entirely to the fact that they are moderate in price. It's different with the Dort.

Dort popularity and success are built solely upon thorough quality and unquestionable honesty. The Dort could be priced much higher and still be an exceptional value.

When you buy a Dort you become the owner of a truly handsome car, a dependable and efficient car, a complete car—in short a "quality car."

Obviously, knowing motorists appreciate this kind of a car.

A High Standard Made Higher Still

Were they so disposed, Dodge Brothers could not lower the quality of this car.

They are no longer free agents, because public opinion has established a standard for everything bearing their name.

They dare not fall below the high estimate that has been formed of them as motor car manufacturers.

The American people are quick to detect deterioration.

And what is much more important—they expect the constant improvement of any product in which they repose complete confidence.

They would be slower to forgive a fault in any car Dodge Brothers might build, than in one they esteemed less highly.

Every dealer in Dodge Brothers cars knows that the customers who come to him, come with the highest possible expectations.

He knows that the thing he is selling primarily is Dodge Brothers word and their good name.

He knows that he is not merely dealing in motor cars, but acting as custodian for Dodge Brothers reputation.

Naturally, this knowledge of what is expected by the buyer breeds a deep sense of responsibility.

In the Works, it has the effect of inspiring Dodge Brothers to a constant personal oversight of all of the manufacturing operations.

Their own life-long zeal for good workmanship is sharpened and stimulated by a realization of what the public expects from them.

The entire institution is honestly permeated with the idea that quality and performance are paramount and all-important.

And so, a standard which was naturally high, has been made higher still, by the bestowal of complete confidence on the part of the public.

It is a mutual contract which offers constant inspiration to the manufacturer and constant insurance to the customer.

With the interests of buyer and seller so closely knit together, the result, everywhere, is what might have been expected.

It is impossible for Dodge Brothers, with all their great facilities, to build enough motor cars to satisfy the public.

It will pay you to visit us and examine this car.

Announcing a Very Important Discovery

WE KNOW, now, that the Prōdium Process of compounding rubber does prolong the life of the tire.

That fact has been established by a year's exhaustive experience.

Republic Tires made by the Prōdium Process do undoubtedly last longer.

They do undoubtedly wear down slowly to a smooth and even surface—like a piece of steel.

They do develop a tensile strength beyond anything hitherto known.

They are unmistakably stronger and tougher, with greater spring and responsiveness.

What we have actually produced is a rubber so tremendously strong that a strip of it, an inch and a half square, will suspend more than three tons of dead weight.

We have now built more than one hundred thousand sets of Republic Tires by the Prōdium Process.

The evidence is not only abundant but positive.

We are so sure of the facts, that on the strength of our certainty the output of the Republic plant will be trebled.

The merit of the tires has so advertised itself that an unprecedented demand has sprung up everywhere.

From four to five hundred new and unsolicited customers are being reported every day.

We are straining every nerve to spread the distribution to every city and town in the country.

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

Don't Ask Too Much Speed of That New Car

To insure that the working parts of the motor adjust themselves properly this car should not be driven in excess of twenty-five miles per hour during the first 500 miles.

THIS notice now appears on the windshield of every car shipped by one of the largest manufacturers of automobiles. All engineers and most good mechanics know that nothing is so injurious to a new mechanism as high speed, yet probably a vast majority of new cars are driven at high speed inside of twenty-four hours from the time they are delivered to their owners. It is this tendency on the part of the inexperienced drivers which the maker is trying to combat.

In no other line of manufacturing, possibly, is the product so quickly turned over to the mercies of a man who knows little of its mechanical construction and still less of the way to take care of it.

"A high speed passenger locomotive offers an excellent comparison," says an expert in the ways of automobile engines. "The locomotive is built to run easily and pull a tremendous load at seventy miles an hour. But is that locomotive put at once into such service? Hardly. The superintendent or master mechanic who would permit such a thing is not fit to hold his position. The locomotive is run 'dead' in a freight train to its point of delivery. Then it is easily and carefully 'broken in' by being given slow freight service before it is turned over to the passenger crews.

"It is a good deal the same in the case of a steamship. The ship is built under a contract guaranteeing so many miles per hour, but no shipbuilding concern would think of submitting a new boat to a trial run until after its engines had ample time to 'wear in.'

"It should be the same with motor cars. The better a car is built, the more care should be exercised when the motor is new. Careful handling of a car when new means a better and smoother engine and fewer repair bills."

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS by HIGH SPEED

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

Will you please explain in your department of questions and answers the meaning of advancing and retarding the spark. How is one to know the point at which to have the spark lever to obtain the best results?

B. E. VAN G., Clinton, Wis.

When the spark is advanced it occurs earlier, or before the piston reaches the top of its compression stroke. When the spark is retarded it occurs later. On cars that are cranked by hand the spark should always be retarded, for if it is advanced too far there is danger of a back kick that might reverse the motor and the crank and possibly cause injury to the operator. The exact position to advance or retard may be determined by running as far advanced as possible, or until a knock is detected. Then retard the spark until the knock disappears. In this way you can learn the exact position where the engine produces the greatest power.

Last winter my car froze up and cracked the water jacket. One of the cylinders was badly scored and at the time the jacket was repaired I had a sleeve welded in. Some time later I discovered that the mechanic, in welding the jacket, failed to make perfectly tight one of the rivets holding the sleeve. Now there is quite a little leak around the rivet. The mechanic who did the work has gone out of business and moved away. Is there any simple way of stopping the leak?

P. MCARTHUR, Lafayette, Ind.

The best way would be to have the motor taken down and the rivet tightened by welding, for if it is allowed to go the way it is the sleeve may become loosened and cause a lot of trouble. Try cleaning the surface around the rivet, after which apply a coating of "smooth on" cement, which is good for stopping small leaks.

Will you please publish in your column the best route at the present time between Chicago and Sturgeon Bay, Wis.?

F. L. C., Oak Park, Ill.

At the present time the lake shore route to Milwaukee is the best of several bad ways of reaching the Cream city. Later on, when the roads begin to dry out the heavy sand on this route would make travel over it next to impossible and one of the inside routes would have to be used. The shore route runs through the north shore suburbs, Waukegan, Kenosha, Racine, and South Milwaukee to Milwaukee, 90.5 miles. From Milwaukee the route continues along the lake through Lakefield Corners, Port Washington, Cedar Grove, Sheboygan, Erdman's Corners, Wendel, Newton, Manitowoc, 84.7 miles; Two Rivers, Two Creeks, Kewaunee, Algoma, and Maplewood to Sturgeon Bay, 62.6 miles. Good roads from Milwaukee on.

Indiana Progresses.

Gov. Goodrich of Indiana has signed the bill creating a highway commission for the state, which thus presents no longer the curious anomaly of being one of the only two or three remaining states which have no such body, though boasting some of the best roads in the country. The change puts Indiana in line for more than $2,000,000 to come from the federal government under the provisions of the Bankhead-Shackleford federal aid road law. Hitherto the road situation in Indiana has been a matter of local concern to the counties and townships.

Race Records Issued.

Automobile records up to 1917 are given in a booklet entitled "1916 Automobile Contests," issued by the contest board of the American Automobile association. It presents the results of all automobile contests held in 1916 under the rules and with the sanction of the A. A. A., and is compiled from the official records in the office of the contest board by W. Harvey Traband Jr. and T. B. Shoemaker.

The booklet gives the list of registered drivers, mechanicians, racing cars, and stock cars for 1916, also the licensed tracks and speedways. A summary of the Glidden tours is included. Among the useful tables given are French and American equivalent measures, gradients, piston displacement, and a reference table showing equivalent speed in miles and kilometers per hour over the measured mile or measured kilometers from twenty-four seconds progressively by one-fifth second to fifty-nine and four-fifths seconds.

Copies of the book may be obtained for 50 cents each from the contest board of the A. A. A., 501 Fifth avenue, New York.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has declared for the metric system of weights and measures, and proposes to adopt it as rapidly as possible in all its work. Tires exported from the United States to other parts of the world have long been stamped in millimeter sizes, and the general adoption of the metric system in America appears now to be only a question of time.

J. Frank Stacy, recently appointed distributor of the Maibohm in Chicago, reports a surprisingly large number of orders from army officers who want Maibohm roadsters shipped direct to anticipated camps along the border. Mr. Stacy has directed that officers' orders shall take precedence over those of civilians wherever any conflict may arise.

"Shipping automobiles on flat cars is getting to be a fine art nowadays," says Herman Staebler, Reo branch manager in Chicago. "The other day forty-five 'flats' loaded with 135 Reos for Los Angeles passed through a Chicago freight yard. I went out to look them over, and not only found a factory man detailed to ride with the shipment but discovered a fire extinguisher on each car. That's efficiency."

If for no other consideration, declare the builders of the National, the twelve cylinder V type motor has justified itself in the present crisis in the fact that its makers can adapt themselves most readily to the manufacture of motors for military aeroplanes. Indeed, such a development would be completing a circle, for it was the aeroplane that inspired the multi-cylindered automobile engine in the first place.

From one R. Vlieger, who sells Marmons in Utrecht, Holland, the Marmon Chicago company has a letter telling of his troubles in providing tires and gasoline for his clients. It's an impressive tale of woe and desperate resourcefulness.

A 2 year old Maxwell touring car out in San Diego broke another record the other day, when Clarence Bradshaw, a Californian, drove it over 46.5 miles of ordinary road on one gallon of fuel. The best previous record, according to the Maxwell statisticians, was that of Ray McNamara, who also used a Maxwell in driving 45.6 miles on the same amount of gasoline.

"Truck attachments for Fords will prove a big factor in the transportation of troops and supplies," says E. F. Kirchberger, president of the Commercial Truckmobile company. "Pershing's experience in Mexico showed how vitally important it is that a truck be first of all simple. In a Ford chassis with a truck attachment you get the utmost in truck simplicity."

Reo

That "50 per cent Over-size" is really a Tire Saver.

HAD YOU THOUGHT of it in that way? Or had you, like some others, figured that the extra strength you get in your Reo the Fifth as a result of that Reo factor of safety, would make your car heavier therefore harder on tires?

DO YOU KNOW of any other five-passenger automobile, regardless of weight, that is as easy on tires as Reo the Fifth. Do you know of any other owner who will say so?

OF COURSE when we speak of five-passenger cars we mean cars that are big enough to really, and comfortably seat five, full-grown, average size adults—not the skimpy little ones that you can get them in only by using a shoe horn!

ASK ANY OWNERS of the various makes of cars and you'll be surprised to find that many light flimsy ones are tire-eaters—insatiable!

WEIGHT ISN'T half so important a factor in tire consumption, as speed or balance or correct alignment of wheels—correct design in the steering construction and in brakes. Not half so important. Ask any engineer—yes, any engineer.

IF YOU WATCH you'll note that the front tires on some "light" cars actually wear out faster than the rear. Yet the bulk of the load is on the rear.

WHY IS THIS? Tell you: Steering spindles are too light.

WHEN IN TURNING you happen to touch the curb the spindles give. Wheels lose their alignment—and then the rubber grinds off as on an emery wheel.

WE MENTION this one cause of tire wear not because it is the only one or the most important. It is only one of many. But it is simpler to explain—and doubtless one you had not considered when the salesman was extolling the "lightness" of the car he wanted to sell you.

THERE ARE OTHER reasons which also result from under-size in parts of the rear axle construction which eat up the tires at that end too.

YOU DON'T SUPPOSE the Reo engineers, with all their experience, (ripest in the industry) put an ounce more material in a part than they consider right, do you?

IF IT'S THERE it ought to be there—you can be sure of that.

INSTEAD OF SAYING that all vital parts in Reo cars are "50-per cent over-size", we might say instead that parts in other cars are 33⅓ per cent lighter than Reo engineering believes they should be.

IT'S THE SAME THING save that the other is "standard practice" among makers who build to meet a price.

THE REO FOLK look on Low Up-keep as their final goal in designing. One item in Low Up-keep is tire economy—tire mileage.

AND THEY ATTAIN THAT, not by skimping parts such as gears, shafts, bearings and steering spindles, but by making such parts ample in capacity, and so rigid they cannot be bent or sprung by ordinary or even extraordinary strains.

SEE THAT YOUR CAR is built that way—select a Reo this time—and you'll discover some things about low up-keep, gasoline and tire economy, that will surprise and please you.

Exhaust Echoes

An advance of $100 in the price of Detroit electrics went into effect yesterday. "We delayed the decision as long as possible," says D. E. Whipple, Chicago branch manager, "but cost of production has increased steadily and the indications are that this tendency will continue for some time to come."

Evidence of "business as usual" was provided at the Chicago Athletic club recently at a dinner given by the Packard Motor Car company of Chicago to its salesmen. Sales in this territory during March, it was reported, showed an increase of 150 per cent over those of the same month last year. The local men were congratulated particularly on their showing in the "Lincoln highway sweepstakes," the Packard selling contest now under way throughout the country.

After weeks of hardships and perseverance a Studebaker crew has reached the floor of the Yosemite valley, and the San Francisco distributor of Studebaker cars is entitled to the Desmond silver trophy offered as the prize for the first car to get into Yosemite. This is the fourth consecutive year a Studebaker car has been first into the Yosemite.

Figures turned over to Otto C. Owen, Chicago distributor of the Dort, by the Illinois Central railroad after a recent test show that of a large number of motorists observed at railroad crossings 55 per cent crossed the tracks at high speed, looking neither to the right nor left, while two-thirds of all the cars observed went over at better than thirty miles an hour.

The Willard Storage Battery company's campaign to develop its service facilities in Chicago has developed to such an extent that there are now fifteen Willard service stations in various parts of the city.

A demonstration of the adaptability of the King five ton semi-trailer and fifth wheel used in connection with a Ford tractor attachment was made in Chicago last week, when a tractor-trailer outfit carried a five ton load through the streets and performed various difficult stunts, such as backing into a warehouse in narrow quarters. The new device was reported to be as easy to handle as an ordinary truck.

A 2,000 ton steel press—one of the largest in the world—is being installed at the Toledo factory of the Willys-Overland company. Its mission is to make side rails for motor cars.

The LITTLE THINGS That Help

For Motorist Campers.

Many motorists who believe in touring because "it takes you out in the open air" will want to go the whole route this year and sleep outdoors. For these a variety of camping equipment has been devised, one particularly compact device being a folding bed with shelter top and side curtains, designed to be packed, when traveling, on the running board to which it is attached. The bed is of a flexible spring mattress, brie 48 inches wide by 78 long. The shelter top, of army khaki, is attached to the side rails of the bed, and supported at the outer end by a special footrail. The outfit when folded together forms a bundle 5x8 inches in its smaller dimensions and 51 inches long. It can be set up or taken down, it is claimed, in three minutes. Investing in one will separate you from $42.

That Backward Look.

If you are buying a spotlight nowadays you will do well to get one that incorporates a rear view mirror. Legislation requiring these is being urged in many states, and in New Jersey they are already a matter of necessity if one would obey the law. Many types of windshield spotlights now have this added convenience. The one illustrated contains its wiring in the friction bracket and costs $7.50.

Hot Coffee and Things.

Speaking of camping, there's a little hot plate device to be used with a tank of gas similar to what we used to carry for our headlights before the electric lighting systems came in. The tiny stove, weighing six pounds will cook or heat anything you are likely to want in camp. Rubber tubing from the gas cylinder is connected by a simple attachment, and the size of the flame may be regulated as in an ordinary gas stove. If you desire you may have a "two way valve," with one branch leading to the stove and the other to a stem and burner for lighting.

A Novelty in Grease Cups.

Motorists who have been annoyed by the grease cups of their machines becoming cross threaded will appreciate a new cup that has just been placed on the market. An improvement over the old construction prevents the threads from becoming crossed when replacing the cap on the base after refilling with grease. The base of the new cup is made with a centrally placed perpendicular post which engages in a center sleeve in the cap in order to align the engaging threads and prevent them from crossing. The post is square, with rounded corners, and as it enters the center sleeve it engages with a flat spring that serves as a locking device to prevent the cap from working off.

Here's Why!—

GMC Trucks are Superior

Hundreds of business men throughout Illinois and in other states have read at least some of the TRUCK TALKS reproduced on this page.

During the past three months one Talk has appeared each week in The Chicago Tribune.

The Talks were prepared by men thoroughly familiar with GMC Trucks—men who know truck construction and truck performance.

These TRUCK TALKS Give the Facts

It has been the endeavor in each Talk to tell clearly and concisely definite reasons why GMC Trucks are superior—why they render more dependable service—operate at reasonable cost—require only reasonable attention—and why, in our belief, they are the best truck investment any business man can make.

They're man-to-man talks—each statement is based on facts—each Talk contains only such statements as can be absolutely substantiated: There are no meaningless general statements—no exaggerations—no boastful claims—no unjust comparisons. The talks are interesting and instructive, and are, we believe, well worth careful reading.

Step by step they cover the thirteen essential features of truck construction—features which are of vital interest and value to every truck owner, present or prospective.

For, after all, it's the way a truck is built that alone determines its service value: Time spent in investigating a truck's construction is time well spent.

We urge you to get this series of GMC TRUCK TALKS and to read them then or save them for future reference. After reading them, not only will you know more about GMC Trucks, but you'll better appreciate the value of the many distinctive GMC features—features that mean so much to the truck owner in truck service and truck economy.

Write or Phone for Complete Set of GMC Talks

It is not our intention to print GMC TRUCK TALKS for general distribution, and they will not be sent to you unless requested. But we have printed a sufficient quantity to supply the needs of those who are really interested in motor trucks, and we will gladly mail a set to you upon request.

A request for these talks does not obligate you in any way—they are sent with our compliments.

Call and Inspect GMC Trucks

We invite you to call and inspect GMC Trucks at any time. We welcome the opportunity to give you complete information on any of the models—to show you our Service Department and our facilities for caring for GMC Trucks in service.

To insure prompt and efficient service we carry a large stock of parts for all size GMC Trucks in stock and employ a corps of experienced truck repairmen. Let us give you the names of many well known Chicago companies using GMC Trucks.

Here we graphically portray the Willys-Overland progress which has made possible the stability of the Willys-Overland industry as it stands today.

You have a very real personal interest in Willys-Overland progress because it has been the factor that has largely determined automobile values.

And it is today a stabilizing influence—which keeps automobile prices moderate in spite of tremendously increased costs.

Broadly speaking that producer has the lowest cost per car who has the courage to produce the largest output and the reputation which makes a ready market for that output.

For years Willys-Overland output has been the largest in its class—and Willys-Overland costs have been relatively the lowest.

The steadfast Willys-Overland policy has been to use this advantage of lower costs to increase value in the Willys-Overland product by both improved quality and lowered price.

That policy today is applied to the most comprehensive line of cars ever built by any one producer.

Touring car prices range between $695 for the roomy, easy riding, 106-inch wheelbase, five passenger Light Four and $1950 for the big, luxurious, 125-inch wheelbase seven passenger eight cylinder Willys-Knight.

In between there are Big Fours, Light Sixes and the Willys-Knight Fours and body styles ranging from roadsters and sport models to sedans and limousines.

And every car has shared in the savings and economies of our greater production—every car is, we believe, value-pre-eminent among its kind.

Let us help you, from our experience, to decide which Overland or Willys-Knight will best serve your particular need.
